Government Weather Report.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—Forecast:

Western Pennsylvania and Ohio—Fair and warmer Thursday. Friday, fair, much colder; brisk southerly winds, shifting to northwesterly.

West Virginia—Fair and warmer Thursday. Friday, fair, colder; southerly winds, shifting to northerly.

"Indian summer weather will continue for a while longer," said Assistant Prognosticator Eddy last night. The warm wave will continue to-day. This afternoon shirt waists will be allowed. There has been a decided rise in temperature in the west, and most of the northwest, and the balmy breezes are floating toward Pittsburgh. In a few points in the northwest it is pretty cold, but in most places, particularly in the Missouri valley and the Colorado district, the mercury has gone up. In St. Louis there was a maximum yesterday of 68, which beat Pittsburgh's highest score by 22 degrees.

Scattering showers in some parts of the country are reported, but there is no promise of rain for Pennsylvania, and mountain people must still watch for forest fires. On the northern borders there were some snow flurries yesterday.

FIRE SWEEPS SEVEN ACRES

Big South Side Mills of Dilworth, Porter & Co. Destroyed, Entailing Loss of $500,000 and Rendering 600 Men Idle.

TENEMENT HOUSES IN DANGER FOR SOME TIME

Energetic Work of Firemen Prevented Spread of the Flames. Building Collapsed When Fire Was at Its Height, Completing the Work of Destruction—Plant Was of High Standard and Was a Pioneer in Pittsburgh District.

The big spike mills of Dilworth, Porter & Co., Ltd., Bingham street, South Side, were completely destroyed by fire last night. Seven acres of buildings are in ruins. The loss will be more than $500,000 and 600 men are out of work. Two small mills, a storehouse, and part of the foundry alone were saved. For a time it seemed that the flames would reach the tenement district, but the quick work of the firemen prevented such a catastrophe. Minor officials of the mills were hopeful for a time of saving the valuable automatic machines, but when the blaze was at its height at midnight they were ruined by the falling in of the ironclad roof.

The loss includes the automatic machines, a large amount of stock recently shipped into the mill and some 20 railroad cars standing on the mill siding.

The mill proper is divided into various smaller mills. According to the statement given by the night manager the following were destroyed: 18-inch mill, 16-inch mill, 10-inch mill and the continuous mill, the latter being worked almost wholly on the automatic principle.

How the fire broke out even the night officials at the mill could not determine. It is certain, however, that it originated in what is known as the "monkey" mill. Sparks from the small engine in this mill fell into the pit and spread.

Workmen Escape Unharmed.

In a moment flames burst from the center of the mill, and the men, 250 in number, passed the word to one another and hurried out. Not one was injured.

John Davis, a fireman in the 18-inch mill turned in an alarm. This was followed by two more, but all the work of the firemen could not save the plant. The timber burned like so much wool and before the second alarm had been sent in four acres of flame lit up the whole region.

Chief Miles Humphries and his men worked earnestly against great odds. The water supply became inadequate during the early part of the blaze. Then the hose proved too short to reach the heart of the mill. This was due principally to the many byways and sidings through which the hose had to be drawn.

During the progress of the fire John Hilbert of Truck C was injured, but not seriously. About 10 firemen of this company narrowly escaped being drawn into the ruins shortly after midnight.

They were playing on the upper portion of the mill near Bingham street when the big iron sides and roof fell in with a terrific crash. The firemen and half a hundred spectators ran out of the mill proper. Hilbert was struck with the nozzle of the hose and felled to the floor, but soon revived.

The engine of No. 18 company and a car of the Spring Garden avenue line collided at First avenue and Wood street while the former was hurrying to the fire. Alonzo Kennedy, the engineer, was thrown from the fire box and fell under the car. Fortunately the conductor stopped it in time to prevent Kennedy from being crushed. He was removed to No. 18 engine house and his injuries were dressed. The engine swung around at the moment of colliding, and drove the horses into the front of J. P. Shafer's furnace store, 18 Wood street, breaking a large pane of glass. The engine was damaged so that it could not be used.

The Dilworth-Porter plant stood as an investment of about $500,000. The plant employed 700 men and covered seven acres of ground. The works and equipment were last night stated by Lawrence Dilworth, chairman of the partnership, as being fully covered by insurance. Mr. Dilworth added that he could not give any details of the insurance nor fix its value off hand. He said at the time of the inquiry that he had heard of the fire but a few minutes before and did not know the extent of the damage, adding that he would be in better position to discuss these matters afer he had looked over the property this morning and reviewed the insurance papers.

Samuel T. Owens, vice chairman of the limited partnership, estimated that the property stood yesterday as an investment of $500,000, adding that he believed the buildings and their equipment were fully covered by insurance.

Pioneer Rolling Mill.

Dilworth, Porter & Co., limited, is one of the pioneer rolling mill concerns of the Pittsburgh district. The product of the plant was chiefly railway and boat spikes and merchant steel. The product had a distinctive reputation throughout the industrial world. The output of the works averaged about 100,000 gross tons annually.

The Glendon rolling mill, as the works were known in the early days of their history, was originally erected in 1857. Great extensions have since been made, the original works being rebuilt in 1870. The works contained a large complement of heating furnaces, 64 in number, 12 trains of rolls and 30 automatic and 21 handspike machines and other modern equipment and machinery. The plant was one of the very best of its kind in the country.

About a year and a half ago the firm amended its articles of limited partnership, increasing its capital stock from $800,000 to $1,200,000. Lawrence Dilworth, also of Dilworth Bros., the well-known wholesale grocers, is chairman; Samuel T. Owens, vice chairman, and Joseph R. Dilworth secretary and treasurer. The original company was Dilworth, Porter, Rolfe & Swent, the latter being a Boston manufacturer. All the early incorporators are dead.

CANTON TO HAVE THE MEMORIAL

NATIONAL COMMITTEE SO DECIDES AT CLEVELAND MEETING.

Active Work on Plans for Commemorating the Life and Work of William McKinley Now Under Way—The State Central Committees to Be Formed and Souvenir Receipts Prepared for Distribution.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 6.—The executive committee of the McKinley National Memorial association held its first meeting today at the office of Senator Hanna. The Hon. William R. Day, president of the association; Senator M. A. Hanna, vice president; Ryerson Ritchie, secretary; William A. Lynch of Canton; the Hon. Henry C. Payne of Milwaukee, Alexander H. Revell of Chicago and Senator Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana were in session the entire day.

It was decided to have a central auxiliary committe in each state and territory. The local associations which are being organized everywhere will report to the state organizations.

Power was given President Day to appoint a number of prominent representatives of social and benevolent associations, commercial and labor organizations, educational, religious and patriotic bodies and to enlist every interest that desires to aid in raising the national memorial fund. Souvenir receipts are to be designed at once, and will soon be ready for distribution to the contributors through the several state auxiliary committees.

A statement embodying the object of the McKinley National Memorial association was adopted.

The national memorial will be reared over President McKinley's grave in the city of his home. It was his own expressed desire, and the wish of those most dear to him, that his remains should find their last resting place where the bodies of his little children lie buried.

Senator Hanna left for Washington tonight and will hold a conference with George B. Cortelyou, secretary to the president, and Myron T. Herrick, there tomorrow.

Revised returns for the legislature show that the political complexion will be as follows: Senate 33 Republicans, 7 Democrats; house of representatives, 165 Republicans, 73 Democrats, 2 Social Democrats.

NO TITLE FOR ANDREW CARNEGIE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—When seen at the St. Andrews' golf links this afternoon in reference to the report that King Edward had offered him, or would offer him, a baronetcy, Andrew Carnegie said:

"Why, that is all nonsense. I don't believe there is a word of truth in it. I suppose I would have an inkling of it if anything like that were going to be done."

CARNEGIE'S PLAN STILL CARRIED OUT

Old Employes of the Carnegie Steel Company Given Small Fortunes.

The board of directors of the Carnegie Steel Company yesterday took important action, regarding a reciprocity arrangement, for the benefit of its oldest heads of departments.

Several hours after the board meeting, the heads of departments, to whom bonanzas fell, were called into the general offices of the Edgar Thomson steel works, and informed that, because of their long and conscientious services to the company, they had been given blocks of stock in the company. It was stated by men, in a position to know, that the gifts came in the form of bonds, ranging from $10,000 up to $100,000.

The beneficiaries refuse to affirm or deny the report. They stated that such a matter was purely of a private character, and concerned no one, other than the United States Steel Corporation and themselves. None of the officials at Braddock for the Edgar Thomson steel works would say aught of the matter.

The old servants of the company, who are said to have profited from the presentation of blocks of stock, are: Charles E. Dinkey, assistant to the general manager, who has been connected with the plant for a dozen years, and is a brother of Mrs. C. M. Schwab; Edward R. Oskin, chief paymaster, who has held the position several years, and was formerly engaged in other positions at the plant; George Brassett, the new general superintendent of the Carnegie blast furnaces, at Braddock, who succeeded C. G. Crawford in July; and several others, whose names it was impossible to learn. They are said to have received bonds worth from $10,000 to $50,000.

It was currently reported among other well posted officials at the works that three old officials had received $100,000 worth of bonds each. These are Thomas Cosgrove, superintendent of the transportation and labor departments of the Edgar Thomson steel works and blast furnaces, who has held the position of labor foreman for 25 years; Thomas Addenbrook, who has been superintendent of construction since the works were built; Thomas James, who has been master mechanic and assistant to the general manager for the past 23 years, and John Noey, superintendent of boilers at the steel works and furnaces for more than two decades. Last evening the workmen and under officials of the works congratulated their superiors on their good fortune.

STANDARD WINS A VICTORY.

Nebraska Referees Render a Decision Finding in Favor of the Corporation.

LINCOLN, NEB.: Nov. 6.—The Standard Oil Company scored a victory in Nebraska today when the referees appointed by the supreme court to take testimony submitted their findings to the court, declaring in favor of the company and against the state in the suit brought to oust it under the anti-trust laws.

The suit was originally brought by former Attorney General Smyth and has been pending nearly three years. The referees declare the allegations in the state petition are not sustained by the evidence.

The court at an early date will pass upon the report, and if the usual custom shall be followed it will be accepted.

BULK OF ORDER TO COME HERE

Pittsburgh Will Build 9,000 of 15,000 Cars for the Pennsylvania.

THE CONTRACT IS WORTH $9,000,000

Some of the Patents of the Pressed Steel Car Company May Be Used by the Cambria Steel Company in Its Share of the Big Order.

The Pennsylvania railroad system has placed the bulk of its authorized order of 15,000 freight cars with the Pressed Steel Car Company of Pittsburgh. The company will build 9,000 steel cars. The contract amounts to approximately $9,000,000. Early delivery is specified, the railway interest being anxious to avoid such another car shortage as now confronts it.

The Pennsylvania has placed another order for 2,000 steel cars with the Cambria Steel Company of Johnstown, Pa. This company has so far turned out only about 500 structural shape cars. They differ from those of the great Pittsburgh company in their greater weight and in the absence of the essential hydraulic process of manufacture.

It has been reported that the Pennsylvania railroad has been negotiating with the Pressed Steel Car Company for the use of some of its patents to produce its own cars. The placing of the order with the Cambria company, controlled by Pennsylvania railroad interests, may indicate that the arrangements have been made.

Officials of the Pressed Steel Car Company will not discuss this matter. It has been frequently said that the structural shape car could never be effectually introduced with the pressed steel car in its lead.

In addition to the contracts placed with these two companies, the American Car and Foundary Company has contracted to supply 1,000 cars. Contracts for the remaining 3,000 cars are yet to be let. The entire authorized order is the heaviest ever specified by a single railroad interest at one time. The Pittsburgh order is the largest ever received here.

The Pressed Steel Car Company contract includes 5,000 hopper cars of 50-ton carrying capacity each. These are intended to relieve the shortage in ore, coal, and coke cars. There are also included 2,000 low-side gondolas.

On the different lines of the Pennsylvania railroad system, east and west of Pittsburg, there are now in commission about 150,000 freight cars. A large percentage of these are of 40 and 50-ton, and even greater carrying capacity.

Transportation officials of the Northeastern Railroad of Great Britain are said to be negotiating the placing of an order for 3,000 or more steel cars produced by the Pittsburgh company. Philip Burt, general traffic manager of the railroad company, after a recent visit to Pittsburgh, recommended the purchase.

While the Pittsburgh company has sent a considerable number of cars to Europe, to Egypt, and even South Africa, this would be the first important invasion into the market of Great Britain. Steel cars are manufactured there, although of much less carrying capacity than the Pittsburgh car. The Pittsburgh company has sent a small experimental order of steel cars to England for use on the Furness railroad. Otherwise, the English market is entirely new to the Pittsburgh company.

PRESERVE POOL IS ORGANIZED

REPRESENTATIVES OF SEVENTEEN COMPANIES MEET HERE.

Hope to Better Trade Conditions, Regulate Prices, Distribute Sales Territory and Secure More Favorable Interpretation of Pure Food Laws in Various States—Heinz Only Large Preserver Not Represented.

Representatives of seventeen of the larger preserve manufacturers of the country, met yesterday at the Hotel Lincoln, and formed the American Association of Manufacturers and Distributers of Food Products, the nucleus of an organization which is designed to ultimately regulate prices and sales territory. The immediate object is given as the betterment of general trade conditions, the securing of a more just interpretation of the pure food laws, in the several states, and agitation of the necessity for the revision of frieght traffic rules.

The companies represented at yesterday's meeting have a combined capital of three and a half millions, and represent about three-fourths of the total production of the country. All of the large concerns are in the new compact, with the exception of H. J. Heinz of Pittsburgh, who is expected to be represented at the next meeting, though no word was received from him yesterday, in response to the invitation sent by the projectors.

A central office will be established by the new association, probably in either Pittsburgh or Chicago. After an all-day session, the members adjourned to meet again some time during holiday week, when committees will report, and the matter of widening the scope of the infant organization will be taken up.

Committees were appointed on by-laws, and on the revision of the classification of freight tariffs, the latter being the most urgent question. Recently, much of the product of the preserve concerns has been changed from third to second class frieght, and some of the fourth class goods has been placed in the third class. The manufacturers claim they have been discriminated against by the railroads.

The projectors aim at concerted action, not only in the demand for a more just interpretation of the pure food laws of the states, but in the enforcement of the laws against dealers, who are said to be putting adulterated products on the market. The following officers were elected:

President, W. B. McMechen, Wheeling, W. Va.; vice presidents, Len. M. Frailey, Camden, N. J.; J. Weller, Cincinnati, O.; Frank Cruikshank, Allegheny; treasurer, William H. Ritter, Philadelphia; secretary, W. H. Williams, Detroit, Mich.

Among the companies represented, were the following: Anderson Food Company, Camden, N. J.; Joseph Campbell Preserve Company, Camden; Goodwin Preserving Company, Louisville, Ky.; William M. Spencer & Son, Cincinnati; George K. McMechen & Son Company, Wheeling, W. Va.; J. Weller Company, Cincinnati, O.; P. J. Ritter, Conserve Company, Philadelphia; Philadelphia Pickling Company, Philadelphia; Van Lill Preserving Company, Baltimore; Cruikshank Brothers Company, Allegheny; Exley-Watkins Company, Wheeling; Williams Brothers Company, Detroit.

China's Grand Old Man Dead.

Great Viceroy Insisted on Working Until the Very Last.

HIS DEATH CAME AFTER HOURS OF WAITING

Physicians Found Him Unconscious This Morning and Sinking Rapidly—Minister Conger Cables the Nearness of His End.

Li Hung Chang.

PEKIN, Nov. 7.—Li Hung Chang died at 11 o'clock last night.

PEKING, Nov. 6.—The physicians who visited Li Hung Chang at 10 o'clock last night found him in good spirits, though extremely weak as the result of sitting up and working in defiance of their instructions. When they called this morning they found him unconscious and sinking rapidly. It was announced at noon that Li Hung Chang could hardly live three hours longer.

At 9 o'clock this evening Earl Li is still breathing and displaying unexpected vitality. The physicians, however, think he will probably die in the morning hours.

The burial clothes have already been put on. The court yard of the yamen is filled with life-size paper horses and chairs with coolie bearers, which his friends are sending, in accordance with Chinese custom, to be buried when he dies in order to carry his soul to heaven.

Several of the ministers of the powers have called to express sympathy.

The Chinese officials are somewhat uneasy concerning the effect his death will have on the populace; and to guard against a possible anti-foreign demonstration, the Chinese generals have disposed of their troops about the city in such a way as to command the situation. Trouble, however, is extremely probable.

The wife of Earl Li and his two sons and daughter are with him. They are greatly distressed.

Chinese officials throng the yamen. Telegrams have been sent summoning Prince Ching, who is now on his way to meet the court, and Chou Fu, provincial treasurer, from Pao-Ting-Fu. The former will assume the general charge of government affairs and the latter will act as governor of Chi-Li until Li Hung Chang's successor in that office, who will probably be Yuan Shi Kai, is appointed.

Robert Coltman, an American, who is one of the physicians attending Earl Li, told the correspondent of the Associated Press today that when he was called to act with Dr. Velde of the German legation November 1, he found the patient very weak from a severe hemorrhage, due to ulceration of the stomach.

"The hemorrhage was readily controlled," said Dr. Coltman, "but owing to the underlying condition of chronic gastritis with persistent nausea, only the mildest liquid food could be digested. Yesterday he was cheerful and without pain; but at 2 o'clock this morning he became unconscious, and was no longer able to get rid of the collection of mucus which he had been freely expectorating. Death is expected shortly, owing to symptoms supervening upon gradual carbonic acid poisoning."

Throughout the evening digitalis was frequently administered. Earl Li's persistent refusal to refrain from attending to government business have aggravated his malady while the refusal of the family to permit certain measures customary in western medical practice for relieving the stomach has contributed to bring his end near.

Sketch of His Life.

Li Hung Chang was born in 1822 at Hofei, a little city in the province of An-Huei in Central China. His family was one of pure Chinese blood, with no admixture of the Manchurian strain. The father of the future viceroy gained the lowest step in official rank by entering the class of literati through passing the district examinations in Chinese literature, but he never succeeded in advancing his position.

Young Li was more ambitious than his father. He passed both the provincial and imperial examinations, winning distinction among 20,000 competitors at the triennial imperial examination in Pekin in 1849. He was appointed a student at Han-Lin college, his position there giving him rank as a noble and paying him a salary while waiting for a government position.

The Tai-Ping rebellion, which shook China to its very foundations from 1851 to 1864, gave the ambitious student the opportunity for which he had been seeking. The rebels had captured a number of important towns and at last gained the city of Nanking, the former capital of the empire, and he raised a regiment of native troops. With these troops he performed such conspicuous service that he was brought to the notice of Tseng Kwo-Fan, the commander-in-chief, and father of Marquis Tseng, long the Chinese minister to Great Britain. His regiment was made a part of the regular army and Li was given an important command.

The "Ever Victorious Army."

In 1861, after the French invasion of China and capture of Pekin had again aroused the rebel faction, Li was appointed viceroy of the province of Kiangsu, with his capital at Shanghai. It was at this time that he was brought into close touch with Europeans and their methods, the influence of which extended throughout his later life. The rebellion was again in progress and Li took the field in person, organizing what has since become famous in history as the "Ever Victorious Army." The commander of this legion under Li was Frederick Townsend Ward, a native of Salem, Mass., who was killed in battle in 1863. He was succeeded by Charles George Gordon, since known as "Chinese" Gordon, who met death at the hands of the Mahdi at Khartoum. The extent of the rebellion which these men suppressed may best be realized when it is known that 20,000,000 lives were sacrificed and whole provinces devastated.

At the close of the Tai-Ping rebellion, Li was decorated with the three-eyed peacock feather and the yellow jacket, special marks of imperial favor and lofty authority, and since that time he has been turned to at every important crisis in Chinese history.

For a quarter of a century Earl Li held the office of viceroy of the important province of Chi-Li, having been made successor to the great Tseng Kwo-Fan, his former commander, in 1870. As viceroy of this province he was brought face to face with a most serious crisis in the first year of his authority, when the French consul to Tientsin, his wife, and 21 other foreigners, nearly all of them Frenchmen, were atrociously massacred by the populace. In this crisis he proved his ability by averting both war with France and a threatened domestic revolution.

Enormous Work Accomplished.

In addition to being viceroy of Chi-Li province, Earl Li was secretary to the grand council of state, superintendent of foreign trade for the northern ports, superintendent of coast defense for the northern district, and senior guardian of the heir apparent. He was never prime minister, for there is no such office in the Chinese empire, but on several occasions he has been called upon to perform the duties that would have fallen to such an officer in the governments of any of the great powers. He has concluded more treaties than the Chinese foreign office, has had the burden of providing food for 9,000,000 people in a famine-stricken province, and has attended to all the regulations in regard to traffic and trade. He also created and installed whatever military and naval defenses are at present in operation along the northern coast of China. During his long career as a public official, in spite of the prejudice and enmity of the ministers close to the imperial throne, he has stood consistently for the introduction of modern improvements and methods.

In spite of his long period of service as China's most able statesman, Earl Li was three times deprived of his rank and degraded to the position of a commoner. The first time was because of his tardiness in putting down the Nienfei rebellion in 1868; the second time because the Grand canal, of which he had special charge, had been destroyed by an unprecedented flood in 1871; and a third time because he was unable to secure sufficiently favorable terms for China in the Chino-Japanese treaty negotiated at Nagasaki after the close of the recent war between those two countries.

His attitude on the Corean question, favoring Japanese annexation, and his sedulous protection of American missionaries, were two other factors that brought down upon him the wrath of his countrymen.

In 1896 Li Hung Chang, accompanied by an extensive suite, visited this country, while on a tour around the world, and while in New York he placed a wreath upon the tomb of Gen. Grant, whom he always looked upon as a hero. In the recent negotiations with the great powers to arrive at a settlement of the claims for damages done by the Boxer outrages, Li Hung Chang was the first man appointed by the Chinese imperial government to look after the interests of that country in the capacity of a commissioner.

Water Company Forfeits Charter.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 6.—The state supreme court today rendered a decision forfeiting the charter of the New Orleans Water Works Company in the suits brought in behalf of the state and city. The court holds that the company misused its franchise and charged rates higher than those which the legislature authorized.

MARYLAND RESULT IS STILL IN DOUBT

Republicans Charge Democrats With Wholesale Fraud in Many Places.

(Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

BALTIMORE, Nov. 6.—The fight for supremacy in Maryland is on, and both Gorman and McComas, leaders, respectively, of the Democratic and Republican forces, are on their mettle.

The latest returns indicate that the Republicans will have 29 members from the counties and 17 members from Baltimore city in the house of delegates. Forty-eight members would give them a majority and control. Several counties are yet to be heard from. At Democratic headquarters the claim is made that the party will have 53 members, but these figures include four members from Prince Georges and one additional member from Baltimore city. Prince Georges is very close. Senator Gorman and Senator McComas are here awaiting results and advising the county leaders.

There is grave trouble in the Tenth ward of Baltimore city. Two precincts of this ward, which is in the second legislative district, are in dispute. The Democratic judges refuse to count the votes, and the Republicans charge that the returns are being held back in order to have the vote counted so that the shortage would be supplied if the party were to find itself a member short in the house. In reply to the charges come sweeping denials from Democrats, who charge that the judges objected to throwing out some of the ballots in the first district, which the Democrats claim will give them a member. There are also missing three precincts in the Fifth ward.

Excitement runs high, and among the the Republicans the feeling of bitterness is intense. "To give the Democrats control in the lower house, they claim that votes have been thrown out in large numbers. In Dorchester, which is Chairman Goldsborough's county, it is claimed that 500 of the 800 ballots said to have been thrown out are Republican. Senator McComas has received a telegram from Congressman Jackson saying: "By throwing out our ballots Democrats carry our county by 280." Congressman Mudd openly charges that the registration lists in Charles county were tampered with, and 300 Republicans stricken off before the lists left the supervisor's office. The charge is made that in Anne Arundel negroes were not permitted to vote in one district. Hundreds of ballots, it is declared, were thrown out.

Republicans claim to have elected the following delegates to the house: Allegheny 4, Baltimore city 17, Carroll 3, Calvert 2, Cecil 1, Caroline 1, Frederick 5, Garrett 2, Kent 2, Somerset 2, Talbot 1, Washington 5. Total 47. Doubtful: Prince Georges 4. Democrats claim 2 out of the 18 from Baltimore city and the 4 from Prince Georges, giving them 52. They have the senate, 10 Democrats holding over and 7 new members being elected. The Republicans have 8 members.

DAY OF HONOR TO THE FOUNDER

Celebration at Carnegie Institute Will Eclipse Those of Previous Years.

FORMER PRESIDENT IS GUEST OF HONOR

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Cleveland Will Arrive in the City This Morning. Great Anxiety to Hear Addresses Shown by Public.

Preparations are complete for the celebration of Founder's day at Carnegie institute this afternoon. All of the speakers save former President Grover Cleveland are in the city now. Mr. Cleveland is expected to arrive this morning.

The exercises this year will probably surpass those of former years. Some 3,000 invitations were issued, and judging from past years, most of them will be accepted. Heretofore the trustees of the institute issued more invitations, but after last year's experience, when hundreds of invited guests were unable to gain admission to the Music hall, the number was cut down about 1,000.

Every year since the observance of Founder's day was started the demand for invitations has increased. The celebration is getting to be one of almost national moment, and it is deemed a great honor to any public man to be invited to make an address on that occasion. Since the inception of the celebration, such men as the late President William McKinley, Andrew Carnegie, Chinese Minister Wu Ting Fang and others of national repute have been the principal speakers.

Col. Samuel Harden Church, secretary of the board of trustees, who has the celebration in charge, is of the opinion that today will be one of the greatest in the history of the institute. The personality of the chief speaker, Mr. Cleveland, his broadness and intellectuality, make the occasion a banner day in the annals of the institute.

In addition to the principal address, men of international reputation, like the veteran actor, Joseph Jefferson, and the well known artists, Robert W. Allan of London and John W. Alexander of New York, will speak. The announcement of the awards made by the international art jury will be made by President W. N. Frew of the board of trustees. Col. Church will read a report of the year's work and progress.

Archer's Son-in-Law at Organ.

Months ago the late Frederic Archer was asked to play the great organ on Founder's day and accepted. A short time before his death, when he realized that his health would not permit his taking his accustomed seat before the keyboard, Mr. Archer sent his son-in-law, Edward J. Napier, to offer his services to the board of trustees. It was Mr. Archer's wish that Mr. Napier preside at the organ and the trustees gladly accepted his offer. Mr. Napier is a splendid organist and has been prominently mentioned for the place made vacant by Mr. Archer's death.

To such an extent has the importance of Founder's day grown that the trustees are at a loss to know what they will do next year. After the invitations for today's celebration had been sent out, hundreds of persons tried by every means to obtain tickets to the exercises. This list of persons that were honored with invitations was carefully selected, and every possible space was filled, at least approximately. Col. Church said yesterday that the board of trustees had done its best this year to handle the crowds and that he did not know what would happen next year if the demand for invitations kept on increasing.

"We would have to build a hall seating at least 5,000 people to accommodate the crowds that besiege us for tickets and invitations," said Col. Church. "Founder's day has acquired such a reputation throughout the country that it is regarded as almost a national event. The crowds have been increasing yearly and the number of invitations accepted has increased very materially. This year we were compelled to cut down our invitation list because of the increase in the number of invited guests who will undoubtedly attend the exercises. I do not know what we will do next year."

Entertainment of Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland are expected to arrive in Pittsburgh this morning. They will travel in a private car furnished by President A. J. Cassatt of the Pennsylvania railroad, leaving the train at East Liberty station. After a rest at the Hotel Schenley, Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland will be taken for a short drive through the parks and along the boulevards, after which they will have a private view of the art gallery, museum and other departments of Carnegie institute.

The afternoon will be, of course, devoted to the Founder's day exercises and the reception in the art gallery. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland will not accept any social invitations while here and will lunch and dine at the Schenley. In the evening the opening concert of the Pittsburgh orchestra under direction of Victor Herbert will be held in the Music hall and Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland will attend. They leave for home tomorrow morning.

The trustees request persons holding tickets of various kinds to enter at different doors to avoid confusion. The holders of ordinary blue admission tickets will pass through the main door. Platform or box ticket holders are asked to enter by the art corridor door on the east side of the building. Holders of reserved seat tickets will be admitted through the chorus entrance on the west of the building.

Program of Exercises.

It is also announced that no seats will be held reserved after 2 o'clock. If possessors of the coupons are not in their seats at that time others will be assigned to them immediately.

The program for the afternoon's exercises has been made public by Col. Church. It is as follows:

The police arrangements for the day were completed late last night. Police Inspector Henry Whitehouse of the second district has detailed a squad of officers to meet the train bearing the former president and his wife at East Liberty station this morning. At Carnegie institute 40 policemen will be on duty. The officers will be in command of Capt. Grant Smith and Lieuts. Edward McPolland and Robert Holmes.

STERN REBUKE TO SLANDERERS

Impotence of Abusive Press Shown by the Quaker Returns

BUT ONE NEWSPAPER FOR THE REGULARS

All the Other Sheets Waged a Campaign of Personal Villification.

VICTORS IN FAVOR OF PEACE AND BUSINESS

Vanquished Indulging in Idle Threats of Contest, in Spite of the Huge Majority Against Them. Views of the Party Leaders.

BY CHESTER D. POTTER,
Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Nov. 6.—Quaker City stalwarts are delighted with the splendid majority given the Republican county ticket. The insurgents are depressed. It could not be otherwise. All concede that the result is a staggering blow for yellow journalism.

In this city the Republican organization had the support of but one morning newspaper. The opposition had the others. In color they ranged from the somber-hued, conservative Ledger to the ochre-tinted North American, the personal mouthpiece of John Wanamaker. There was no limit to personal attacks made for the purpose of staining the character of Republican candidates. Here, where these papers are most intimately known, their influence was nil. It was the same in Pittsburgh. If they exerted influence, it was in the interior counties.

Republican leaders today counsel peace, a discontinuance of the personal strife which has threatened the party for the past six years; but the insurgent managers want no peace. They say the guerilla warfare will be continued. Incidentally they cry fraud and promise to contest the result, not only in the state, but in Philadelphia. The absurdity of their claim they do not appear to appreciate. Partisan rage blinds them.

Margin Too Big for Contest.

Weaver, the stalwart candidate for district attorney, has a majority of over 43,000, and yet the fusionists assert that he was not elected. An excuse must be offered to offset the extravagant claims made, so Fusion Chairman Riter recommends a contest. Democratic Chairman Creasy indorses the suggestion. This is comedy.

Ex-Judge James Gay Gordon, whose gubernatorial aspiration was snuffed out yesterday, professes to find comfort in the outcome. He is easily pleased. Col. Alexander McClure, who had charge of the literary end of the fusion fight, also cries fraud, and says the fight goes on. But Mr. Wanamaker has not spoken. While the men on the pay roll naturally want the Union party held together, it costs money, and the question is now up to the producer of the cash. It will require a heap of faith to further finance the fusion movement.

Those in a position to know say $500,000 was spent in Philadelphia, and that an equal amount was used in the state. Quite a bunch of boodle to burn without returns.

In pleasing contradistinction to the threats and bluster of the defeated leaders are the interviews tonight given out by Mayor S. H. Ashbridge and Insurance Commissioner Israel W. Durham. The mayor said:

Views of the Faithful.

I feel gratified that both the state and city did not waver in their allegiance to Republicanism, and I am especially gratified that my neighbors in the division in which I reside gave double the majority for the Republican ticket they did one year ago. Now that the election is over, it is to be sincerely hoped that defamation of personal character will cease and that all good citizens will unite in giving their best efforts to protecting and maintaining the interests of the business community. With the possible exception of a very few, I believe the sober judgment of our citizens will be for stimulating and expanding the commercial and manufacturing interests of the city. I sincerely hope there will be a cessation of all unpleasant criticism, and that the people will join in extolling Philadelphia. Harsh words should cease and better feeling should prevail. The interests of our city and its future are far greater than the ambitions of men or the success of individuals, and I firmly believe the great majority of our citizens recognize that party struggle and factional strife should be eliminated and the best thoughts of the people given to the development of the city, its honor and its credit.

Commissioner Durham thus expressed himself:

It is just as I expected all the time, and to my mind there never was any doubt as to the outcome. I am pleased with everything that has been done, and am satisfied with the majority. This has been a campaign of villification on the part of the opposition forces, but the result of the election shows that the people of Philadelphia do not believe the malicious attacks made upon the Republican administration by several of the papers. The people formed their own opinions as to the merits of the administration and the Republican party, and voted accordingly.

Judge Maxwell's defeat was a surprise. It was due to Democratic carelessness. Realizing that the Gordon-McAleer wing of their party concentrated upon the election as district attorney of P. F. Rothermel, insurgent Republican, they voted the straight Republican ticket in a spirit of retaliation. While the yellow press claims this eliminates the Donnelly-Ryan Democratic organization, such is not the truth. Donnelly and Ryan will continue to elect state and national delegates, and must be reckoned with Col. Guffey or those who succeed him. It is said the colonel realizes this fact, and that he is now averse to giving further offense to the local regular Democratic organization.

BAG EVERYTHING IN SIGHT.

Westmoreland Republicans Turn Up Victories for Both State and County Tickets.

GREENSBURG, PA., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—All the election precincts in the county show the election of the entire Republican county ticket. Judge John B. Steele has a majority of 1,000 votes over Vincent E. Williams, Democrat. John H. Brown, Republican, defeated William C. Guffey for controller by 700 votes, and John H. Trescher, Republican, defeated David W. Shupe, Democrat, for sheriff, by 428 votes. The successful poor directors are John H. Kettering, J. G. Thompson and J. Herrington, Republicans and James T. McCann and J. Q. Truxal, Democrats.

The state Republican ticket carried the county by about 800. The exact figures will not be known until the official count is made. An interesting feature of the lively campaign just closed and leading up from the primary election in June last, was the fight for the Quay leadership between John H. Brown, the successful candidate for controller, and James S. Beacom. Mr. Beacom gracefully concedes the laurel to Brown and will act accordingly.

BARKER WILL CONTEST.

Cambria County Judge Serves Notice Upon the Democrats to That Effect.

EBENSBURG, PA., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—Judge A. V. Barker, who is, on the face of returns, defeated by Francis J. O'Connor for president judge of Cambria county by 51 votes, has notifie dthe Democrats that he will contest the election. Judge Barker and his friends assert that they have enough evidence of illegal voting to change the result as shown. In case of a contest, Judge White of Indiana county, Judge Bell of Blair and Judge Bailey of Huntington county will compose the court.

The official election returns of Cambria county have just been counted, and Yerkes and Coray have carried the county by about 100 plurality. For president judge, Francis J. O'Connor has a plurality of 51 votes over Judge A. V. Barker. William Strauss, Democratic candidate for register and recorder, was elected by 500 plurality. The balance of the Republican county ticket was elected by small pluralities. The constitutional amendments were carried in this county.

WILSON'S NOTABLE VICTORY.

Clarion County Democrats Surprised at the Showing Made by Republican Candidate for Judge.

CLARION, PA., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—The victory of Wilson, Republican, for common pleas judge, over Hindman, Democrat, has completely surprised the Hindman partisans. Wilson's majority is 587. The fight was hard and bitter, but the result has been well received.

Complete returns show the following vote on the state ticket: Treasurer—Coray, 3,961; Harris, 3,025. For supreme court judge—Yerkes, 3,959; Potter, 2,982, a Democratic majority of about 1,000. The remainder of the Democratic county ticket received about 700 majority.

CHANLER IS SANE

Former Husband of Amelie Rives Gets Court Decision in His Favor.

RICHMOND, VA., Nov. 6.—Today the Albermarle county court heard the petition to appoint a committee for John Armstrong Chanler, the divorced husband of Amelie Rives, the Princess Troubetzky, the allegation being that Chanler was insane. After examining a number of witnesses the court refused the petition, holding that nowhere did the testimony show insanity.

This decision settles the question of Chanler's ability to manage his own property interests in Virginia which will now be turned over to him. It will be remembered that Chanler was placed in a sanitarium at the north, and escaping therefrom was lost to public view for months.

PLURALITY FOR NASH IS 67,661

Ohio's Complete Returns Show Large Republican Gains.

BATTLE WAS WON ON PROSPERITY

Support for Roosevelt and Foraker the Cause of Victory.

DEMOCRATS GAINED ON LOCAL ISSUES

Leaders of Both Parties Agree That the Election of Nash and a Republican Legislature Was Due to the Prosperity of the Country.

(Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 6.—Based upon semi-official return received from 86 of the 88 counties of the state, Chairman Dick issued a statement shortly before 11 o'clock in which he places Gov. Nash's plurality at 67,661. The statement is as follows:

"We have returns from 86 out of the 88 counties of the state, leaving two to be estimated. These are Holmes and Fulton. Sixty-two of these counties give Republican majorities aggregating 90,840, 26 counties give Democratic majorities aggregating 23,179; this gives Gov. Nash a plurality of 67,661 in the state. This may be very slightly changed by the official count. The total vote in the state will probably be 900,000, but may fall below it. In the general assembly we have 68 out of the 110 members of the house, and 21 out of the 33 senators, giving us a majority on joint ballot of 35. These figures on the legislature are official and will stand.

Chairman Dick says the Republicans can thank the Bryan Democrats for a good part of their victory. These men, who were so persistently and unnecessarily mistreated by the Gold Democrats, manifested their resentment on election day. Most of them, he says, remained away from their party. A statement of the gains and losses in the several counties shows that the Democrats lost in the counties in which Bryan was strongest last year.

The taxation theories of Tom L. Johnson were not a factor in the election outside of Cuyahoga county, which shows a Republican loss of approximately 13,000.

"Off Year" Record Broken.

The Republican plurality beats all records in what has become known as the quadrennial "off year," and, with two exceptions, the records of other years. In the "off years" or those following a presidential election the Democrats have carried Ohio, the exceptions being in 1881 after the death of Garfield, and in 1885 and 1893, after the Cleveland elections. In two of these three exceptional years, the president was a Democrat and those were considered "off years" for the Democrats. With the single exception of Hoadley in 1883, the Democrats never elected a governor of Ohio in any other than "off years," since the Republican party originated, and then they won on a local issue of liquor taxation.

Wherever local issues were paramount this year, the Republicans sustained losses, notably at Columbus, on account of local option, and at Cleveland, on account of Mayor Johnson's agitation of "taxation inequalities." Where no such conditions were confronted the Republicans made gains and they carried some Democratic counties that never before were represented by Republicans. The state was carried on national issues involved in the support of President Roosevelt and the indorsement of Senator Foraker for re-election.

Due to Prosperity.

In interviews, Senator Hanna, Governor Nash, of the Republican side, and Col. Kilbourne, Chairman Daugherty, and Secretary Gilliam, on the Democratic side, agree that the result was due to trend of sentiment on national affairs and none of these six leaders or others, in interviews on the result refer to the silver question as a factor in the figures.

Chairman Daugherty added with emphasis:

"I believe Republican success is due to the assassination of McKinley and the prevailing prosperity."

Secretary Gilliam said: "The sympathy aroused by McKinley's death just before the election removed that antagonism which always exists among the opposition to the administration. There are thousands who will do things out of regard to the recently dead, who in a year's time will almost have forgotten that they ever lived. Undoubtedly, we were greatly handicapped by our inability to go upon the stump and criticise the policies of the administration. As the Republican party has been credited with the present prosperity, so it will be held strictly accountable for the reverse."

This city already is visited by many Republican candidates for clerkships and other places in the organization of the legislature in January. Among the candidates for the speakership are Representatives Cole, Crafts, Cummings, McKisson, Pollock, Panter, Price, Thomas and Willis. Owing to the Republicans succeeding unexpectedly in some Democratic counties there is quite a number of "unknown quantities" in these contests.

SUSPECTS HAD STOLEN NOTES

ALLEGED MONTANA TRAIN ROBBER CAUGHT IN ST. LOUIS.

Had $8,500 Unsigned Notes of National Bank of Helena, Mon., in His Possession—Identified as Harry Lobaugh by Bertillon System—Woman Companion Also in Custody. Suspicious Contents of Trunk.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 6.—The police have in custody a man and a woman suspected of complicity in the robbery of an express car on the Great Northern railroad near Wagner, Mont., July 3 last, when the safe was blown open and a consignment of unsigned notes for the National bank of Helena, Mont., amounting to between $50,000 and $100,000 was stolen. Of this amount $8,500 in new notes on the Helena bank was recovered, being found in the possession of the man and woman who were arrested at a hotel as Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Rose. They arrived at the hotel last Friday and announced that their stay in the city would probably be several weeks. The man was taken into custody last night and today the woman was arrested as she was about to leave the city. Their arrest resulted from finding several notes on the Helena bank and signatures forged. Both prisoners were taken before Chief Desmond today and "sweated." A photograph of the man was taken and measurements made according to the Bertillion system. Through these and circulars giving a description of the robbers the police identified Rose as Harry Lougbaugh, alias "Kid" Lougbaugh, alias Harry Alonzo.

Lillian Rose is the name given by the woman. Both prisoners were examined at some length, but very little was learned from either.

Late this afternoon Loughbaugh admitted to Chief of Detectives Desmond, under the "sweating" process, that all of the money, $8,500, taken from him and Lillian Rose, belonged to him but he would not say where he secured it. This money has been identified from description as part of the loot of the Great Northern train robbery in Montana, July 3, last.

Chief Desmond searched the trunk which was captured with the woman and found therein a small pocket dictionary, on the cover of which was written "Wagner, Mont." On the fly leaf was inscribed a note supposed by the police to have been written by Lillian Rose, but no name is signed to it.

The prisoners are being held to await information from the Montana authorities who have been telegraphed about the arrests.

LARGE EARNINGS.

Pittsburgh Brewing Company Presents a Flattering Report at Stockholders' Annual Meeting.

At the annual stockholders' meeting of the Pittsburgh Brewing Company yesterday reports of officers showed 930,209 barrels of beer sold, net profits from this over $1,600,000, and surplus at the end of the fiscal year, ending October 26, $1,213,804 93. The meeting took no action in relation to contemplated extensions of operations. The board of directors will organize today, and it is expected that the present officers will be re-elected.

Gross earnings of the company for the year were $6,058,692 44, and operating expenses, $4,471,014 19. There was paid out in interest on bonds and dividends on preferred and common stock, $1,044,635 52. In addition there was paid for state tax and marked off for depreciation of properties, $240,649 19. The company holds in its treasury 181 bonds, 7,998 shares of preferred and 10,755 shares of common stock.

President F. W. Mueller said in his report that substantial improvements have been made in the past year at the Iron City, Baeuerlein, Keystone, Mt. Pleasant, Latrobe and Uniontown breweries, and that a large bottling establishment is being erected at the Iron City plant. He calls attention to the fact that net earnings for the year were over $250,000 greater than the year before, and that the company has adhered to a policy of avoiding price advances, while improving the quality of the product.

The stockholders' meeting elected the following directors: L. Vilsack, H. E. Wainwright, F. W. Mueller, M. Winter, E. J. Frauenheim, Fred Gwinner, T. F. Straub, Joseph A. O'Neill and Marcus Aaron. John D. Nicholson was elected a member of the advisory committee.

DOUBT ABOUT SHERIFF.

Only 31 Votes Between the Candidates for That Office in Fayette County.

UNIONTOWN, PA., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—Unofficial returns from nearly all of Fayette county show that the election of the complete Republican ticket, state and county, except for sheriff, which will hardly be sure until the official count is made. Samuel E. Frock has an apparent plurality over Martin A. Keifer, Republican, of 36 votes on the returns tabulated here, but errors may change the majority to the other side. Duplicate returns from all the precincts have not reached here yet and it is from the missing ones reported here by telephone in which any errors may exist.

The greatest run made was that of Arthur S. Hagan for coroner. He is ahead of every part of his ticket and wins out with over 1,100 plurality. Alfred E. Jones, Republican, for district attorney, beats W. C. McKean 300. Thomas H. Ryan is elected poor director. William K. Allen, county surveyor by about 400 plurality. Only about 25 per cent of the vote cast in the county voted on the proposed amendments to the constitution, and the greater part of them were for the amendments. The state ticket was 300 plurality in the county.

REVIEW OF CARTER CASE.

Judge Kohlsaat to Sit and the Captain to Be Released on Bail.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Oberlin M. Carter, now a convict in the government prison at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and formerly a captain in the United States engineer corps, is to have a rehearing of his case in a civil tribunal. He now has the assurance of the government authorities that all the evidence is to be reviewed before Judge Kohlsaat in the United States circuit court in this city, the hearing to take place, probably, within a few months. Carter will be called on as a witness in his own behalf, and for the purpose of testifying in court he will be released temporarily from his place of confinement.

This is the result of the suits brought by the government some months ago in several federal courts for the purpose of recovering the proceeds of $722,582 which, it was proved at the court-martial, Carter had embezzled from the United States. His uncle, Lorenzo D. Carter, and his brother, L. Stanton Carter, were said to have reinvested this money and secreted it for the purpose of having a fortune ready for the former army officer upon his release from the military prison.

DR. SWALLOW FOUND GUILTY.

Fellow Pastors Convict Him of Falsehood and Suspend Him from the Ministry.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 6.—Dr. Silas C. Swallow was today convicted of falsehood by a committee of the Central Pennsylvania Methodist conference and suspended from the ministry until the next annual conference, which meets at Shamokin next March. The charges against Dr. Swallow were preferred by the Rev. Charles V. Hartzell, pastor of the Vine Street Methodist Episcopal church, and grew out of a controversy between Hartzell and Swallow over a publication in the Pennsylvania Methodist, of which Dr. Swallow is editor.

Dr. Swallow was the Prohibition nominee for state treasurer in 1897 and the Prohibition and Good Government candidate for governor in 1898. He was the presidential nominee of the Christian Advocate party last November and was strongly supported for the presidential nomination at the national prohibition convention at Chicago in 1900.

M'KINLEY YEAR RECORD BROKEN

New York State Republicans Increase Their Big Legislative Lead.

MAJORITY SEVEN MORE THAN LAST YEAR

The Party Profits in All City Districts Where Democrats Try to Save Municipal Ticket—Shepard Asked to Succeed Croker.

(Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 6.—In the legislature of 1902 the Republicans will have all they had last year, with a few assemblymen added. The two vacancies in the senate caused by the death of Senator Michael Russell in the Thirtieth district, and Senator Cornelius R. Parsons, in the Forty-third district, will be filled respectively by William D. Barnes and Merton E. Lewis, both Republicans. The assembly, which this year stood 105 Republicans and 45 Democrats, will stand next year 108 Republicans, 41 Democrats and one Independent Democrat—Higgins of the Third Albany district—who also was nominated by the Republicans. This is counting all of the fusion candidates in Greater New York as Republicans.

The result in the assembly is a surprise even to the most sanguine Republicans. Last year's Republican majority of 60 in the house was unprecedented and was accounted for by the very heavy vote cast for McKinley in this state, which carried along all of the Republican candidates. It was expected that the Republicans would lose in the neighborhood of 15 assemblymen this year, but instead of that, practically complete returns show that they gain three and will have a majority of 67.

In all of the city elections the Republicans appeared to have profited on the assembly vote from the efforts of the Democrats to elect their city tickets, while in the country districts the fact that the last legislature cut the direct state's tax rate just about in two, resulted in the return of practically all of the old members who were renominated, and in election of Republican members in the other districts, in response to the argument that the next legislature will be expected to back up Gov. Odell in further measures of economy in hope of entirely wiping out the direct tax rate.

NEBRASKA'S GOOD WORK.

Republican Majority May Reach 12,000 in Bryan's State.

LINCOLN, NEB., Nov. 6.—Complete and nearly complete returns from more than a third of the counties in Nebraska increase the pluralities for the Republican state ticket. If the ratio of gain shall be maintained, Sedgwick, Republican candidate for supreme judge, will have a plurality of 12,000. Chairman Lindsay of the Republican state committee says it will not be less than 7,000, and this is conservative.

A dull, throbbing pain, accompanied by a sense of tenderness and heat low down in the side, with an occasional shooting pain, indicates inflammation.

BROUGHT TEARS TO SCHLEY'S EYE

Court and People Electrified by Rayner's Fine Peroration

DEWEY LEADS CROWD IN CONGRATULATION

Thrilling Rebuke to the Traducers of the Naval Hero of Santiago.

GEREROSITY PAINTED IN GLOWING COLORS

Chief Counsel Very Sarcastic in Treatment of Opposing Minor Witnesses, at One Time Provoking Capt. Lemly to Remonstrance.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—The climax of the Schley court of inquiry came this afternoon when Mr. Rayner, the chief counsel for Admiral Schley, concluded a brilliant argument of over three hours with a peroration so eloquent and impassioned that all within the sound of his voice were profoundly touched.

This remarkable trial, he said, sought to condemn the man who had brought to a successful termination as great a naval triumph as was ever won. In vivid colors he painted the picture of the Brooklyn with Commodore Schley on the bridge fighting the entire Spanish fleet until the Oregon appeared out of the smoke. The thunders of the Brooklyn, music for the ears of his countrymen, he said, aroused Admiral Schley's envious foes. He pictured the victorious sailor suffering as few have suffered for three long years, while the fires of persecution leaped around him, and now awaiting the hour of his vindication in the verdict of the court.

Court and Audience Electrified.

"And when it comes," he concluded, "he can, from the high and exalted position that he occupies, look down upon his traducers and maligners, and with excellent pride exclaim: 'I care not for the venomous gossip of clubs, drawing rooms and cliques and the poisoned shafts of envy and of malice. I await under the guidance of divine providence the verdict of posterity.'"

The scene in the court room as he finished with these words was thrilling. The members of the court displayed evidences of emotion, and Admiral Schley himself was plainly moved. He sat, leaning back, with his hands behind his head. His chin twitched and as his counsel said he could afford to await the verdict of posterity, two big tears rolled down his cheeks. He moved uneasily to conceal his emotion and under the pretense of adjusting his glasses, brushed the tears aside.

For full 30 seconds after Mr. Rayner closed there was not a sound. Then the tension broke in a loud burst of applause. Admiral Dewey, after about half a minute, arose to remind the spectators that such a demonstration was out of place. A moment afterward the court adjourned, the judge advocate pleading that he could not well go on today.

A Line of Congratulation.

Then another remarkable thing happened. As soon as the gavel fell, the entire audience surged forward to shake the hands of Admiral Schley and Mr. Rayner; but the on-coming spectators fell back a moment as they saw Admiral Dewey and his two associates move around the table, as if by a common impulse, and congratulate Admiral Schley and his counsel. Even Capt. Lemly, the judge advocate, came forward to join in the congratulations. Then the public had its inning, and for 15 minutes after the court adjourned, Admiral Schley and Mr. Rayner were kept busy shaking hands.

Capt. Lemly will begin the closing argument tomorrow afternoon.

E. S. Theall, acting on behalf of Stayton and Campbell, who were retained by Admiral Sampson to look after the admiral's interest before the court of inquiry, today sent a letter to the court protesting against the inclusion in the record of certain statements deemed to reflect upon Admiral Sampson's conduct at Santiago. The latter is addressed to Admiral Dewey as president of the court.

Admiral Dewey announced privately before the opening of the court today that there would be no morning session of the court tomorrow. Mrs. Dewey has been indisposed recently, and the admiral will devote the forenoon tomorrow to removing her from their home in the suburbs to their city residence.

Wisdom of the Loop.

Capt. Parker, resuming his argument, maintained that the blockade of Santiago was effective, and defended the Brooklyn's loop.

Mr. Rayner began his argument by paying a compliment to Judge Advocate Lemly and his assistant, Mr. Hanna, for the "most judicial impartiality with which they have managed this case."

Discussing dispatch No. 7, known as the "Dear Schley" letter, Mr. Rayner contended that the order conveyed in that message made it incumbent upon Commodore Schley to remain at Cienfuegos. He declared that this was the key to the whole case, and that it did not admit of any other construction than that Commodore Schley should remain at Cienfuegos.

Mr. Rayner made sarcastic references to Commander Southerland's megaphone message which was never received by Commodore Schley, and to Lieut. Bristol's faith in his eye measurement rather than in the stadimeter.

Mr. Rayner said he could not believe what Lieut. Hood had said concerning the messages, written and verbal, which he had carried to Commodore Schley from Admiral Sampson. It was inconceivable that the commander-in-chief would give him a dispatch outlining his uncertainty as to the presence of the Spaniards at Cienfuegos and at the same time would give the lieutenant a verbal message saying he was positive that they were there.

A Victim of Circumstances.

Without impugning any officer of the American fleet, Mr. Rayner declared Admiral Schley was the victim of an unfortunate combination of circumstances that left him in total darkness as to the location of the Spanish fleet.

Concerning the question of coaling at sea, Mr. Rayner read the testimony of several witnesses to prove the great difficulties such a task involved. He said all they wanted to prove was that Admiral Schley was honest when he informed the department of his increasing anxiety regarding the coal supply, and that he acted according to the dictates of his own conscience.

Coming to the reconnoissance of May 31, Mr. Rayner contended that it had been Commodore Schley's chief intention to develop the Spanish land batteries, and in this, he said, he had been eminently successful.

Mr. Rayner said Capt. McCalla had admitted on the stand that he himself had disobeyed orders in not leaving the Eagle off Cienfuegos when he left for Key West. He did not, he said, mean to criticise Capt. McCalla, but if he was not to be censured for disobedience of orders, why, he asked, should Admiral Schley be?

Sets Store by Cook's Testimony.

Mr. Rayner discussed the ninth specification, which dealt with the loop of the Brooklyn on July 3, and the possibility of colliding with the Texas. He said he stood upon the testimony of Capt. Cook, who, all things taken together, had the best opportunity to give all the information about the loop. What might have happened had the Brooklyn turned to port was purely a matter of conjecture. The turn in the other direction was completely successful.

Mr. Rayner read portions of Hodgson's testimony and again fell back upon Capt. Cook's testimony as decisive of the point at issue. Capt. Cook had said, Mr. Rayner stated, that the danger of collision had never entered his head. No one, he said, had intended to attack Lieut. Commander Hodgson, but the entire controversy was Hodgson's own fault.

"There has been too much magazine discussion and too much gossip," he said.

The speaker then aroused a controversy by this passage in his remarks:

Lieut. Potts has covered himself with renown. His name will echo through the ages of undying fame. When Manila shall be forgotten and Santiago will be buried in oblivion, the name of Potts shall live. Whenever an admiral or a commodore or a captain is engaged in the carnage of mortal conflict, beware of Potts. Beware of your looks. Be careful how you walk. Be careful how you sit down. Be reserved and reticent in your speech. Model your entire course and conduct of action according to Potts, that precocious child of the kindergarten who confesses that he was always scared when he was in battle, but who, unfortunately, was never engaged in any battle sufficient enough even to arouse his timidity.

Capt. Lemly Apologizes.

At this point Capt. Lemly protested against Mr. Rayner's strictures of Lieutenant Commander Potts, calling the speaker "unreliable," and his protest led to a dramatic scene in the court room.

"You," replied Mr. Rayner, "are not only unreliable, but you are offensive."

Admiral Dewey interfered to say that the court would consider all the testimony; that Lieut. Potts had said he was scared, but that Mr. Rayner had stretched the testimony a little. There was, however, no occasion for acerbity. Capt. Lemly then said he regretted having made the remark and Mr. Rayner continued his speech.

Mr. Rayner then took up the fifth specification, alleging disobedience of the orders of May 25. He argued that there was nothing positive in the department's information, and that the orders were not mandatory.

"Is a commanding officer away from home," he asked, "to be stripped of every prerogative that he ought to possess in order to determine upon the exigencies of the occasion? If he acts honestly, according to the best judgment and light that he has, is he to be branded and consigned to ignominy because some one else in the same situation might have adopted a different course?"

Mr. Rayner dwelt at length upon Capt. Sigsbee's assurance to Commodore Schley that Cervera's fleet was not at Santiago, on the strength of which the retrograde movement to Key West was begun. Mr. Rayner then closed in these words:

"Such a trial as this has never to my knowledge taken place in the history of the world. It seemed to my mind that this case had hardly opened with the testimony of Capt. Higginson before it commenced to totter, and from day to day its visionary fabric dissolved from view. When Capt. Cook, their last witness, was put upon the stand, the entire structure collapsed; and now, when the witnesses from our own ships and the gallant captain and crew of the Oregon and Admiral Schley have narrated their unvarnished tale, the whole tenement, with all of its compartments, from its foundation to its turret, has disintegrated and lies here like a mass of blackened ruins.

It has taken three years to reveal the truth. There is not a single word that has fallen from the tongue of a single witness, friend or foe, that casts the shadow of a reflection upon the honored name of the hero of Santiago. He has never claimed the glory of that day. No word to this effect has ever gone forth from him to the American people. The valiant Cook, the heroic Clark, the lamented Philip, the intrepid and undaunted Wainwright, and all the other captains, and every man at every gun, and every soul on board every ship, are equal participants with Admiral Schley in the honor wrought upon that immortal day. We cannot strike down his figure, standing upon the bridge of the Brooklyn. There he stands upon the bridge of the Brooklyn, his ship almost alone receiving the entire fire of the Spanish foe, until the Oregon, as if upon the wings of lightning, sped into the thickness of this mortal carnage.

The Commodore's Generous Spirit.

"God bless the Oregon!" was the cheer that rang from deck to deck, and on they went, twin brothers in the chase, until the lee gun was fired from the Cristobal Colon and the despotic colors of Spain were swept from the face of her ancient possessions.

"Well done; congratulate you on the victory," was the streamer that was bent from the halyard of the Brooklyn, and from that day to this no man has ever heard from Admiral Schley the slightest whisper or intimation that he has usurped the glory of that imperishable hour. The thunders of the Brooklyn as she trembled on the waves have been discordant music to the ears of envious foes, but they have pierced with a ringing melody the ears of his countrymen and struck a responsive chord at the fireside of every American home. And, what is more than all which has been revealed in this case, as matchless as is his courage, and as unsullied as is his honor, is his beautiful character and the general spirit that animates his soul and the forgiving heart that beats within his bosom. Yes, we cannot strike him down.

Erect he stands as the McGregor,
When his step was on his native heather,
And his eye was on the peak of Ben Lomond.

His country does not want to strike him down, nor cast a blur upon the pure escutcheon of his honored name.

For three long years he has suffered, and now, thank God, the hour of his vindication has come. With composure, with resignation, with supreme and unfaltering fortitude, he awaits the judgment of this illustrious tribunal; and when that deliverance comes, he can, from the high and exalted position that he occupies, look down upon his traducers and maligners and with exultant pride exclaim: "I care not for the venomous gossip of clubs and drawing rooms and cliques and cabals, and the poisoned shafts of envy and of malice. I await, under the guidance of Divine Providence, the verdict of posterity."

Guard at the Huntingdon Reformatory Seriously Injured by Three of the Prisoners.

HUNTINGDON, PA., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—Three Philadelphia prisoners named Walters, Gibbons and George, serving second terms in the reformatory, made a murderous assault last evening upon Guard Adams, and in consequence the latter may be deprived of the use of his left hand. The three were working with a gang of whitewashers. A difficulty of some kind led to an encounter between the guard and Gibbons and George, when Walters made a dash at the unsuspecting officer with a drawn knife, which he had secreted about his person, and slashed him in a terrible manner on the hand. Other officers interfering probably averted a murder.

FRANCE DEFINES HER POSITION

Says That Some Claims Against Turkey Are of Twenty-five Years Standing—Turkey Must Pay Up at Once or Take the Consequences.

(Special to The Pittsburgh Gazette.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—France has officially communicated to the United States an explanation of her purpose in occupying the island of Mitylene, belonging to Turkey. This explanation was made today to Secretary Hay by M. de Margerie, the charge d'affaires of the Paris government, and as stated by that gentleman it is so convincing and clear as to effectually remove any misgivings which may have been entertained by the president and Mr. Hay regarding the intentions of France.

It is learned authoritatively that M. de Margerie explained that in occupying the island of Mitylene, France has no intention of permanently holding Turkish territory. A due regard for her interests in the orient compelled her to take this action. The justice of her claims has been repeatedly recognized by the sublime porte. Some of them arose out of incidents which occurred 25 years ago. They were diplomatically presented to the sultan with necessary proof. M. de Margerie himself, who was stationed in Constantinople for 10 years, was engaged in the negotiations for their settlement. The sultan agreed to pay, but failed to keep his engagements.

The matter reached a stage where French dignity could no longer permit evasion. As a sign of her displeasure, and in the hope of causing the execution of Turkish promises, the French ambassador in Constantinople was withdrawn. Two months passed, and the sultan still failed to meet his admitted obligations.

France has important interests in Turkey, religious and otherwise. French missions, French schools, hospitals, etc., are established there. In order to insure their protection in the future and to maintain French prestige, it was necessary to compel the settlement of the claims. France had no desire to precipitate complications with other powers. So, instead of landing troops on the mainland of Turkey, she determined to occupy an island belonging to the porte. France feels, and it is said here justly, that she should be reimbursed for the expense which she has incurred in dispatching a force to Mitylene, and that as compensation for the trouble to which she has been put the sultan should definitely fix the status of certain French establishments within its territory. When these demands are complied with France will withdraw from Mitylene.

By reason of his service in Constantinople M. de Margerie was able to fully explain the causes which led to the action of his government. One result, and a very important one, of the French policy will be, it is believed, to cause Turkey hereafter to meet her obligations, and it is pointed out that should an indemnity be demanded for Miss Stone the porte will show a disposition to meet the demand more expeditiously than he would have done before the French demonstration. In view of M. de Margerie's explanation, the authorities are confirmed in their purpose not to send a warship to Turkey.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 6.—The porte has sent a note to M. Bapst, councillor of the French legation, inclosing monthly drafts on the customs in payment of the Lorando and Tubini claims and embodying certain decisions of the Turkish government regarding the quays difficulties.

M. Bapst has forwarded the communication to Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—The foreign office is still without any further advices from Admiral Caillard. His dispatch of yesterday came through Constantinople, but the next dispatch giving particulars of what has happened at Mitylene is expected to be transmitted from Syra, to which island it will be carried by a dispatch boat.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—The prolonged sittings of the British cabinet yesterday and today have caused much conjecture. Mr. Chamberlain's organ, the Birmingham Post, avers that one of the principal subjects discussed was the threatening relations between France and Turkey, which may be a prelude to grave international complications.

FURIOUS AGAINST MR. CHAMBERLAIN

Frenzied German University Alumni Meet to Denounce Him and England, Which They Call the "Butcher Nation"—Violent Words Used by Dr. Gieke.

(Special Cable to The Pittsburgh Gazette.)

BERLIN, Nov. 6.—With waving of Boer banners and fanning with resentment and frenzy, 3,000 alumni of the University of Berlin tonight joined the mighty protest against Joseph Chamberlain's recent references to Germany's conduct of the Franco-Prussian war, and amid scenes of wild enthusiasm, the colonial secretary was denounced as an infamous liar, politician and scandalmonger. England was pilloried as a "butcher nation."

Many of the foremost members of the faculty of the university were among the speakers, including Adolf Wagner, professor of political science; Dr. Seeberg of the Theological school; Drs. Gielke, Kahl and Brunner.

Resolutions were adopted declaring that Chamberlain outraged the honor of the German army, and expressing hope that his statements would not pass unnoticed. Dr. Gieike, wearing an iron cross won at the siege of Paris, asserted that the French war was Germany's badge of honor as a participant in the campaign of 1870. He said Chamberlain's characterizing the war as one of murder, pillage, banishment, concentration and landgrabbing, was an intolerable libel.

The United Veteran league, at a meeting in this city, decided to draw the attention of the kaiser, through the capacity of the supreme war lord of Germany, to Chamberlain's speech.

ANOTHER COAL STRIKE ORDERED

Miners in the Wyoming Valley Told to Lay Down Tools Monday

THE COMPANY WILL NOT ARBITRATE

Cause of the Disturbance Is the Alleged Discharge of Fifty Men Who Are Accused of Joining a Recent Strike Nearby.

SCRANTON, PA., Nov. 6.—An order calling a strike at the eight collieries of the Temple Iron Company was issued at 5 o'clock p. m. to-day from the headquarters of district No. 1, United Mine Workers of America. The order is addressed to the presidents of the local unions at the collieries affected.

The order affects several thousand miners in the Lackawanna and Wyoming valleys. The strike was caused by the alleged fact that the Temple Iron Company discharged 50 men because they were blacklisted by the Lehigh Valley Company for joining a recent strike at their Maltby colliery. The order states that the officials of the Temple Iron Company refused to confer with the union and also refused to reinstate the men. It orders the men to stop work Monday, November 11, and is signed by the district president and the secretary.

The eight collieries operated by the Temple Iron Company are located in Lackawanna and Luzerne counties and employ about 4,000 men and boys. They are the Harry E., at Broderick, Forty Fort at Forty Fort; Mt. Lookout at Wyoming; Babylon, at Duryea; Lackawanna, at Olyphant; Sterrick Creek, at Packsville; Edgerton, at Archbold and Northwest, at Simpson.

The company closed down today the Mt. Lookout, Harry E. and Forty Fort collieries, supposedly in anticipation of the strike. It is expected the other collieries will be closed down tomorrow. The company refuses to make any statement.

TRAINMEN ARE HELD FOR MANSLAUGHTER

Conductor and Engineer Admit That No Flagman Was Sent Ahead.

WASHINGTON, PA., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—The inquest relative to the death of Isaac Hahn, M. J. Padden and James Beggan, who were killed in a head-on collision between a freight and passenger train east of this place last Wednesday, was held at the courthouse here today.

The inquest occupied about eight hours, and as a result Conductor F. M. Cunningham and Engineer Clarence A. Schull of No. 96, the freight train, were jailed on a charge of involuntary manslaughter. A large number of witnesses were called by Coroner Fitzpatrick, the hearing of the case attracting intense interest at this place. The testimony produced at the hearing showed that engine No. 1901, in charge of Engineer Schull and Conductor Cunningham, was running on the time of the passenger train, which figured in the collision, and that the necessary precautions to prevent a collision had not been taken. Engine No. 1901 had been ordered east, but the instructions were to keep a flagman ahead to prevent trouble, and both Cunningham and Schull admitted that they had neglected to do this, and the collision came as a consequence. Both men were released later under $500 bail. The case will be presented to the grand jury tomorrow, and if a true bill be found the trial will take place at the next term of court. Both Schull and Cunningham, who are residents of Glenwood, have lost their positions with the Baltimore & Ohio company.

Coroner McGeary says that the burial certificate was issued after a full investigation, and that McCague died from stomach trouble, which affected his heart.

Automobile Line Failed—An attempt was made yesterday to put in operation the proposed automobile line from Homestead to Whittaker, but the test resulted in failure, owing to the slippery condition of the road and its steepness. T. L. Hartnett, projector of the line, said after the trial that another kind of machine would be tried.

Dr. Chapman Coming—Evangelist J. Wilbur Chapman has accepted the invitation of the Presbyterian Sabbath School association to address that body at its meeting Monday in the First Presbyterian church. He will speak on "Requisites for Sabbath Work." Dr. Chapman will also address Pittsburgh presbytery at its meeting the next day.

Allegheny Man Disappears—Lewis Devaro, aged 28 years, who for the past two months has made his home with August Metzler at 1735 East street, Allegheny, has been mysteriously missing since Monday morning. He left the house to have a $5 bill changed, and requested the loan of an umbrella, but failed to return. He is a German and by trade a stonecutter.

Caught in a Cave-In—Five men were were buried in a cave-in yesterday at Shady avenue and Forbes street through the breaking of a screw jack. Two of them, Benjamin Tranio and Lewis Drape, were seriously injured. The men were digging a trench braced by planks supported by jack screws. One of these broke and sent about three feet of earth into the ditch.

Weekly Death List—There were 125 deaths in the city last week, the principal causes of which were pneumonia 19, bronchitis 8, consumption 7, typhoid fever 9, scarlet fever 4, diphtheria 4, violence 13. Eighteen were infants under 1 year, 27 between 1 and 10 years, and 8 between 70 and 100 years of age. Forty-three were of foreign birth. During the week there were reported 48 cases of typhoid fever, 26 of scarlet fever, 38 of diphtheria, and 5 of smallpox.

An Audit Is Demanded—The auditing committee of McKeesport councils met last night for the first time in five years to take action on the demand of many citizens who desire a thorough auditing of the city's books. J. E. Serena, chairman of the committee, called the meeting to order. A resolution was passed favoring the auditing of the city's books. The task would require three months' time and an outlay of $3,000. It is the outcome of the trouble in Tax Collector Smith's and the secretary of the school board's departments.

Money for Humane Society—At the meeting of the Humane society yesterday the following moneys were reported: H. H. Daugherty, $20; George F. Egan, $5; Miss Sofia Maxwell, $2; T. C. Jenkins, $10; Edward Dellenbach, $5; Mrs. William E. Schmertz, Jr., $2; Joseph Texter, $5; Robert W. Lynch, $5; Mrs. Robert W. Lynch, $1; fines from Alderman Henry Eynon, $10; from Alderman C. F. Oyer, $20; from Alderman John Groetzinger, $6; from Alderman S. J. Toole, $20; from Alderman Alex D. Black, $10.

Abused His Generosity—Said Alam, a Syrian, spent 10 minutes in jail yesterday. He was then released on bail for a hearing before Alderman S. J. Toole on a charge of larceny by bailee. The charge was made by Y. Siyufy, a Syrian merchant, who says Alam came to him a week ago and made a plea of poverty. Siyufy gave him a costly table cover and told him to go and sell it and bring back only its cost. Alam, he says, took the cover, but brought neither it nor the money back. When Alam was searched in jail Deputy Warden Charles Taylor found $180 in $20 gold certificates.

Record Month at Homestead—The figures for the tonnage of the plate mills of the Homestead steel works during the month of October were tabulated yesterday. They show that all departments created new records in the production of steel. The 28, 30, and 42-inch plate mills made fine showing. The 30-inch mill turned out 27,000 tons of slabs, and the 128-inch mill rolled 12,000 tons of finished plates. The 42-inch mill broke all records by turning out 9,000 tons of universal plates. The Bessemer departments turned out 1,400 tons more than in any previous month in the history of Homestead. In the open hearth and armor plate departments the tonnage above previous outputs was relatively as large.

Forgery Is Charged—A true bill has been found against W. C. Jutte, the well-known coal operator of Pittsburgh in Hancock county, West Virginia, charging forgery. The grand jury has just made the return. The charge grows out of the transfer of stock of the East Liverpool (O.) bridge. John Shrader makes the charge, alleging that in the release of his stock, amounting to some $21,000, the papers were changed, the word "assigned" being substituted for the word "released," without his knowledge. He further says the name of W. S. Smoot was put on the paper without his knowledge. Mr. Jutte last night refused to talk on the matter. "I am not prepared to make any answer to the statements yet," said he, "but I may have something to say soon."

Endeavorers to Meet—On Friday at Sheraden the annual convention of the Pittsburgh subdivision Christian Endeavor society will be held. There will be three sessions and the program is as follows: Morning session—Devotional service, J. H. Permar; address of welcome, the Rev. H. L. Freeman; consecration service, what it is and how conducted, G. T. Bradford; committee conferences. Afternoon session—Song service, H. O. Shetterly; duties of officers, Charles Johnson; "C. E. Principles and Prospects," Mrs. J. A. Johnson; "What Can the Missionary Committee Do?" Mrs. J. W. Zirckel; junior hour; business session. PARALYSI, AND COFFEE.

Symptoms Disappear When Drug Is Abandoned.

"Tea and cofee were forbidden by my physician, for I had symptoms of paralysis and it was plain that the coffee was the cause of the trouble. I began using Postum Food Coffee and am now a steady advertisement for Postum. The old symptoms of paralysis disappeared in a very brief time after I began the use of Postum and quit the use of coffee. Do not use my name publicly, if you please." ——— ———, Morrow, O. The above name can be given by the Postum Cereal Co., Ltd., Battle Creek, Mich.

Coffee is such a direct poison to the nerve centers of many highly organized people that it produces all sorts of disorders, from stomach and bowel troubles, palpitation of the heart, kidney troubles, etc., etc., up to more intricate nervous diseases, such as paralysis. The way to keep well is to leave off coffee or any nerve destroyer of that sort, and use Postum Food Coffee, which is a direct rebuilder of the nerve centers. Sure and well defined improvement in health will follow this course, as can be proven by any person who will make the trial.

MISSION GROWS INTO CHURCH

CRAFTON-INGRAM BAPTIST CONGREGATION ORGANIZED.

Labors of the Rev. Henry A. Buell, in Mission, Are Rewarded by a Call to First Pastorate of Church. Which He Has Formed. Building to Be Erected Later. Congregation Has 38 Charter Members.

The Rev. Henry A. Buell, who has had charge of the Baptist mission at Ingram since last June, has been called as regular pastor of that congregation, which was formally organized Tuesday night, and which will hereafter be known as the Crafton-Ingram Baptist church.

The Rev. Henry A. Buell.

The church began with 38 constituent members, and it is expected that many more persons of Crafton and Ingram, who belong to the city Baptist churches, will at once ally themselves with the new organization. The Ingram mission was organized a year ago last June, and has been under the fostering care of the Fourth avenue Baptist church of this city. It has been almost entirely self-supporting from the first, and last June, felt strong enough to call a pastor. Mr. Buell was called and the mission has prospered under his pastorate until it has become a full-fledged church.

Since its inception, the services of the mission have been held in the union chapel of Ingram, which was built many years ago, and was used in turn by different denominations, all of which were at that time too weak to build churches of their own. Several churches have been started at the old chapel, and now have fine buildings. The newly organized Crafton-Ingram Baptist church will continue to worship in the union building, for a while, but hopes, in time, to follow the example of the other churches, and build a home for itself. The union chapel belongs to the trustees of the Chartiers Valley Christian association. For immediate use, the new church will have a baptistry built in the chapel.

Mr. Buell was born in Maryland, in 1861. For a number of years his home has been in Philadelphia. He was graduated from Crozier Theological seminaray, Chester, Pa., in 1900. During the first years of his seminary course, he was connected with the Moody Bible institute, Chicago, as an evangelist singer.

From the seminary, he was called to the pastorate of the First Baptist church of East Pembroke, New York, and spent a successful year there, when he accepted the call to Ingram.

The Crafton-Ingram church has elected the following officers: Deacons, W. E. Downey, Courtland Wike, E. D. Frost; trustees, J. K. Brown, Clyde Brooks, W. J. Jones, F. C. Hendershot, William E. Clark, C. E. Taylor, and W. S. Croft; clerk, Clyde Brooks; treasurer, W. E. Downey; ushers, Merton P. Clark, C. Harris Wike, Charles Clark, and William Caughlie; superintendent of Bible school, William E. Clark.

Distribution of $6,000,000 Estate of Eber B. Ward of Detroit Gets Into Court.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Tubal C. Owen of Ypsilanti, Mich., today entered suit in the United States circuit court against Orrin W. Potter, for an accounting of his stewardship of the estate of the late Eber B. Ward of Detroit, Mich., Mr. Potter being the executor of the estate.

Mr. Owen alleges that the estate was worth $6,000,000 when Mr. Potter took charge of it, and that he and other heirs have not been given their shares.

FLINN'S CLAIMS ARE EXPLODED

Rural Districts of the County Show but Small Gains for State Ticket.

EFFICIENT WORK OF THE STALWARTS

Pittsburgh and Allegheny, Where Regulars Were Energetic, Show All the Big Gains—Democrats Carried but Two Districts.

The unofficial returns of Tuesday's election show that the Republican state and county tickets were elected by majorities of over 28,000. There was a gain of 9,500 over the vote cast for Barnett two years ago, while Democrats to the number of 2,100, who had voted for Creasy, refused to swallow the mongrel ticket.

The returns of the country districts were brought in to the court house yesterday. The figures show that the larger proportion of the gains in the Republican vote were made in the cities, and not in the country, where the Flinn machine claimed to be doing such great work. In Pittsburgh, where the stalwarts were energetic, the Republican gain was about 4,750, and in Allegheny, where Recorder John R. Murphy and the other leaders were vigilant, the increase will reach almost 4,800. In the boroughs and townships, there was a gain of but 456 votes.

Senator Flinn and his followers continue to claim all credit for the big majority, but when the vote is analyzed, his machine has no cause for crowing. The stalwarts laugh at the Sixth avenue politicians.

Thomas S. Bigelow said yesterday: "It matters not who gets the credit. It is the results we are after, and there can be no question that we obtained them."

The Flinnites are again predicting the removal of Recorder A. M. Brown about the middle of this month. The mayor is not worried. "I am confident that I will complete my term," said he yesterday. "The stories about my removal do not, in the least, concern me."

The returns from the boroughs and townships, like those in the cities, show that the Union party was not a factor in the contest. In the country Oakmont and Lower St. Clair township are the only places that gave Yerkes and Coray a majority. In the Third district of Moon township the state candidates were each given six votes. After this wonderful showing, the Union party announces that it will continue its "organization" for next year's contest. The management insists that it is not joking.

These country districts will not be in until today: Reserve township, Second district; Elizabeth township, Third district; North Fayette township, Fourth district; Franklin township; Fawn township; Forward township, Second and Third districts; Findley township, First district; and the three districts in Harrison township.

In 1899 they gave Barnett 315, and Creasy 204 votes. The result of the rural vote follows:

NO DEAD HORSE ISSUE.

Director Bigelow Spoils Cherished Thunder for the Coming Councilmanic Campaign.

Dead horses will not be an issue in the coming councilmanic campaign. The committee appointed to ask Director Edward M. Bigelow why he had violated the charter in buying horses without authority from councils did so yesterday.

Mr. Bigelow utterly disproved the partisan charges against him. He flatly denied, also, that any of the five animals in question had died. The committeemen seemed chagrined when they learned that the brutes were alive and well.

Director Bigelow explained that he possessed authority under the new charter to purchase supplies not exceeding $250 in value without first consulting councils. The horses, he said, cost less than $250 each.

They were badly needed, he added, and were bought in an emergency during the summer vacation of councils.

Director Bigelow admitted that the regular manner of buying supplies was under an ordinance authorizing the purchase. This requirement could not be lived up to, as councils were not in session.

Mr. Bigelow admitted that he had purchased any new street sweepers. The new ones in use were simply under trial, he said.

The investigation committee consisted of J. M. Clark, W. J. Ruhlandt and W. J. Zahnizer. It adjourned without taking any action.

ADVICE TO THE COMMITTEE.

Recorder Brown Points Out Some Things to the Councilmanic Delegation of Investigators.

Recorder Brown claims the right to remove any city officer or employe who may be hostile to his administration or who may belong to a political organization whose object is to prevent the success of his administration. Recorder Brown takes this position in a letter sent yesterday to W. A. Magee, chairman of the council committee appointed to investigate the discharge of two clerks in the assessor's office for alleged political reasons.

The recorder does not enter into a specific discussion of the case of the assessor's clerks. He merely refers to it as an example. He takes the broad ground that he is vested with the authority by the new charter to make any changes he may deem necessary to promote the success of his administration.

Recorder Brown also informed Chairman Magee and his committee that councils could not investigate, under the appointed recorder's administration, the conduct of any officer or employe unless the latter was guilty of criminality in office. All such charges, he says, should be laid before the recorder for investigation.

Free Night School.

A night school will be opened in the Duquesne building, First ward, next Monday and each evening during the winer months, from 7 to 9 o'clock. Books and supplies will be furnished without charge, and competent teachers will make up the corps of instructors. An effort is being made to secure an attendance that will make this one of the best night schools in the city.

Baby Burned to Death.

Mary Ursick, the 4-months-old child of Ignatz Ursick, who lives in Smiths court, off, Robinson street, Allegheny, died at 2 o'clock yesterday afernoon from burns sustained Tuesday morning, when her clothes caught fire from the kitchen stove.

PRESS VIEW OF THE GALLERIES

Carnegie Exhibit Not Up to Former Standards in Many Respects.

"THE PENANCE OF ELEANOR" THE FEATURE

Masterly Canvas by Edwin A. Abbey Is Not Eligible for Honors, but Is the Most Striking Painting of the Collection.

A notable reception to ex-President and Mrs. Cleveland will auspiciously open the sixth annual international exhibition of paintings in the Carnegie institute this afternoon. Last evening a private view of the exhibition was given to the trustees and their friends as well as the press and several hundred people had the enjoyable privilege of taking the bloom off the peach ere it is handed around to the gaze of the public.

The exhibition this year is a very good one, though in many respects it is not equal to those of other years. There are no paintings of great distinction either in subject or in treatment, though there are several that have commanded unusual interest both in this country and abroad. No one class of work predominates. Landscape figures and portraits are quite evenly distributed throughout the galleries.

Though not eligible for honors, Edwin A. Abbey's splendid painting, "The Penance of Eleanor," is the most striking canvas in the entire exhibition. It illustrates one of the most dramatic incidents in Shakespeare's Henry IV. Abbey represents with exquisite drawing and coloring the fair and ambitious duchess of Glostea, who for her ambitions on behalf of her husband is sentenced by Henry to be degraded. The incident depicted in the painting appears in act II., scene 4, of the second part of the play and shows the proud lady, her fair face wan with weeping, but her indomitable spirit unbroken, as she is led through the streets in a white sheet with papers pinned upon her back, her feet bare, and a taper burning in her hand. Directly behind her is Sir John Stanley, the sheriff, and his officers.

The Duchess' Speech.

Her husband has waited with faithful friends to rescue her if possible, and the artist represents the noble Eleanor as she recognizes them and speaks:

"Come you, my lord, to see my open shame?
Now thou does penance, too. Look how they gaze.
See, how the giddy multitude do point
And nod their heads and throw their eyes on thee.
Ah! Gloster, hide thee from their hateful looks
And in thy closet pent up, rue thy shame,
And ban thine enemies, both mine and thine."

Sharing the same wall with this splendid work of Abbey, which took a gold medal at the Pan-American exposition, is a smaller painting by Alfred H. Maurer, entitled "An Arrangement." It is a pleasing subject and agreeably executed. It had many admirers last evening. The grouping of the young woman in the foreground and the artistic needlework in her hands is easy and graceful.

John W. Alexander, one of the art jurors, is represented by one of his strongest works. It is the portrait of Rodin, the famous French sculptor. The painting shows the vigorous vitality and power of the quiet little man in sober gray, with his flowing beard and overhanging eyebrows. It is the first portrait of a man by Alexander to be shown in the Carnegie galleries, and gives a far greater idea of the power and strength of the artist than any other work ever seen here.

A Sympathetic Work.

Sentiment enters largely into the interest that attaches to "The Hour Glass" by Mary L. Macomber. The subject is reverently handled by the artist, and the gray-haired woman, whose years of life are swiftly passing, is duplicated in the hour glass, whose sands are rapidly slipping away. The figure, evidently a portrait, is delightfully treated and love for the woman and admiration for the artist are blended in the minds of all who see it.

On the same sidewall of the main gallery hangs another painting, more homely in sentiment but handled with almost the same degree of artistic feeling. It answers to the title, "Sewing," and is also a portrait by Ellen Etherel Ahren. The delicate and harmonious blending of color in the background, throwing into prominence the figure, a woman employed at her needlework, is very delightful to the eye, while the figure is drawn boldly.

Beside it hangs a religious painting, "The Holy Family," by Elliott Dangerfield, a new exhibitor in the Carnegie galleries. With the exception of Fritz von Uhde's "Christ's Sermon on the Mount," it is the only religious painting in the entire exhibition. Von Uhde's painting is particularly interesting, since that artist in his work follows the same plan of introducing present day people into his paintings, as does Dagnan-Bouveret, whose "Disciples at Emmaus," owned by the Carnegie galleries, has occasioned so much criticism.

Among the smaller paintings are some by artists whose work is representative of the best art. Alma-Tadema is represented by "Hero," the exquisite painting of the Greek maiden awaiting the return of Leander after swimming the Hellespont; George de Forest Brush exhibits "The Sculptor and the King," a prize winner years ago and still one of the best-known paintings by American artists; "The Silence Broken" is by the same artist, the Indian warrior in his birch canoe, resting as the great white swan sails majestically overhead; "The Card Players," is by Frank D. Millet; "Beethoven" is the work of Franz Stuck, a noble head by the great Munich painter; "The Centaur," by the same artist, is a conception of the grossness of animal nature.

A Japanese Scene.

Robert Blum's "Flower Market in Tokio" is a Japanese scene of exquisite beauty that captured a gold medal at the Pan-American exposition, and Josef Israel's "A Neighborly Visit."

A picture that attracts much attention and is no less original than artistic, is Marianne Stokes' "Little Brother and Little Sister," an illustration of Grimm's Fairy Tales.

Cecelia Beaux is represented this year by the best portrait ever shown by her in this city. The drawing and coloring are admirable.

"The Venetian Blind," by Edmund Tarbell, is one of the few startling compositions, the broad patches of light and the bare shoulders of the young woman not being altogether pleasing. A decided contrast, and as winsome as it is skilfully handled, is "The Secret," by Walter McEwen. Childish confidences are exchanged in the broad window seat, the sunlight entering and illuminating the carpet. Below hangs a portrait in profile by Frank W. Benson, a charming young girl gracefully sitting for her portrait.

Hugh Newell has a very dainty little landscape, "Sugar Trees in Spring." Frank Bramley is represented by "After the Storm." William M. Chase exhibits "A Japanese Print." Walter Gay has two pleasing interiors, Winslow Homer is represented by "The High Cliff;" "Blossoming Time in Normandy" is the work of Mary MacMonnies; John Lavery shows "A Lady in Black." Gari Melchers is represented by a peasant picture entitled, "Wedded;" Claude Monet exhibits "A Mill in Holland." Henry O. Tanner is represented by "Night." "The Mirror," by Robert Burns, is another very interesting painting.

Paintings by Jurors.

Edmond Aman-Jean, the French member of the art jury this year, has two paintings on exhibition. They are entitled "Comedy" and "Venetian Women" and are regarded by many as among his best works. Both are impressionistic. The first is a boldly drawn canvas representing a couple of women accosted by a gallant, cap in hand. Robert W. Allan, another art juror, is represented by "After the Boats Come In."

Fritz Thaulow's painting of Pittsburgh and the Monongahela river is one of the interesting paintings in the west gallery. It is in his characteristic style yet unmistakably Pittsburgh in atmosphere. Jean Francois Raffaelli is also represented by a scene from Schenley park, a purely pastoral picture and not in his best manner. A large painting, "Vanity," by Giovanni Segantini, the noted Swiss painter, hangs in the east gallery and but for its authorship would probably not have been admitted to the exhibition. It seems entirely out of place and does not possess the merit that attaches to some of this painter's work. Several paintings have been admitted which are decidedly of an inferior order. "A Field Sprite" by Gustave Verbeek is more like so-called poster art than art by any other name.

Several Pittsburgh artists were admitted to the exhibition, including Hugh Newell, Miss Anna Woodward, who is represented by a winsome little Dutch baby; Johanna W. Hailman, A. Bryan Wall, W. H. Singer, Jr., and George Carspecken, whose two portraits were hung on the line, an honor received early in the career of the young man who is still at the very beginning of serious art study.

Two hundred and forty-four paintings were admitted, the same number exhibited in 1898, and one more than in 1897. Last year there were 271.

NEW EXHIBITS IN MUSEUM.

Press View Reveals Many Interesting Things Gathered During the Past Year.

At the press view of the museum last night many new exhibits were in the halls. Several new collections have been placed on the first museum floor. The second museum floor also has wonders collected by the museum staff and are on exhibition for the first time.

One of the rarest curiosities came in late yesterday afternoon, and owing to the congested condition of the museum, had to be placed in the third floor. It is a painting of the religious type on copper and was taken by a soldier from a church at Palo, Taveta, Philippine islands, and presented to Capt. D. W. Hand, who has loaned it to Dr. Holland for Founder's Day. Paintings on copper in America are rare.

Among the new curiosities are: The white rhinoceros, shot at the headwaters of the Nile by Maj. Gibbons of the British army; a collection of hawks, made in Colombia, S. A., by Herbert H. Smith; a large collection of mammals by Taxidermist Frederic S. Webster and the famous hornbill group recently arranged by Mr. Webster. The titanotherium skeleton collected by Prof. J. B. Hatcher, curator of the museum, and the hind leg of the diplodocus, found by O. A. Peterson of the museum staff, are especially interesting. The daemonelix, or devil's cork screw, collected by Prof. Hatcher, will also attract attention. The life mask of Abraham Lincoun, taken 60 days before he was shot, by Sculptor Theodore A. Mills; numerous specimens of North American birds and skulls of extinct animals are among the special attractions.

On the third floor is the silver model of the "Santa Maria," presented by Mr. Carnegie. The casts of Aztec memorial stones, from the National museum of Mexico, is another gift from Mr. Carnegie. The Zuni Indian bride, modeled by Sculptor Mills, and a large collection of casts of Indian carvings at Smiths Ferry will be on exhibition for the first time.

PARKER-WILLARD BRIDAL.

Pittsburgh Represented at a Fashionable Wedding at National Capital.

A marriage of special interest in Pennsylvania, the birthplace of the bride, was solemnized at 12 o'clock at the home of her parents in Connecticut avenue, Washington, D. C. It was the marriage of Miss Helen Wilson Parker, daughter of E. Southard Parker, president of the National Metropolitan bank, to Harry Kellog Willard, of the wealthy Willard family of Washington. The ceremony was performed in the drawing room beneath an arch of pink chrysanthemums and smilax, by the Rev. Dr. Hamlin, of the Church of the Covenant, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Shippen of Boston, former pastor of the bridegroom. Two nieces of the bride, Margaret and Ruth Larner, wearing white and carrying a basket of flowers, preceded her. Her sister, Miss Lucy Parker, in blue crepe de chine, with a bouquet of American Beauty roses, was her maid of honor. The bride was gowned in white lace, with tulle veil confined with lilies of the valley, and carried lilies of the valley in her hand. She was led to the altar by her father, where she was met by the bridegroom, attended by his mother. The ceremony was witnessed by 10 relatives and intimate friends of the couple, and was followed by a large reception. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. George C. Wilson of Pittsburgh, the uncle and aunt of the bride; the Misses Sterrett of Philadelphia, daughter of the late Judge Sterrett, of the supreme court of Pennsylvania; and Mrs. C. W. Meyer of Mifflin; Mrs. H. A. Willard, the Hon. and Mrs. Joseph E. Willard, Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Willard, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Boyd and Miss Alice Boyd, Miss Nannie Parker and Judge and Mrs. Lawrence Weldon of Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. John Hutchinson and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Boyd of Philadelphia; Dr. and Mrs. M. L. Herr of Lancaster, Judge and Mrs. R. M. Henderson of Carlysle, Mr. Roscoe North of Selins Grove, Mrs. Eugene Field, widow of the poet; senator and Mrs. George F. Hoar, the Hon. and Mrs. B. F. McFarland, the Hon. William M. Springer, the Hon. Ellis H. Roberts, Gen. and Mrs. John M. Wilson, ex-Gov. Alexander Shepherd and family, Secretary Long and family, Justice and Mrs. Harlan and the Misses Harlan, Mr. and Mrs. Crosby S. Moyes, Mr. S. H. Kauffmann and Miss Kauffmann, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lothrop, Mr. and Mrs. Noble D. Larner, Capt. Robley D. Evans, Lieut. Gov. Woodruff of New York and Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Bell. After a wedding journey the couple will occupy a handsome house in Westminster street.

CHURCH ORGANIZED.

The Fifth Ward Mission Becomes Twelfth United Presbyterian Church of Allegheny.

The Fifth Ward Mission of Allegheny of the United Presbyterian church was last night formally formed into a church, to be known as the Twelfth United Presbyterian church of Allegheny. Two elders were ordained and installed. They are H. C. W. Hutchison and John Gwyer. Trustees have not yet been elected. The financial affairs of the church will rest for a time with the executive board, who will not retire until January.

The Fifth Ward mission was organized 23 years ago under the care of the Third United Presbyterian church of Allegheny. The Rev. George W. MacDonald, now pastor of the Seventh United Presbyterian church, was the first superintendent of the mission.

Two years ago the mission was taken from under the tuteiage of the Third church and placed in the care of the Monongahela presbytery. The present superintendent, the Rev. I. G. McCreary, who will in all probability be called as pastor, came to take charge of the mission a year ago.

The membership of the newly organized church is 53, a net gain of 20 members since Mr. McCreary assumed charge. There is a Sabbath school in connection with the church with a membership of 200.

VETERANS HAVE ORGANIZED

Members of the Tenth Form Malate Camp, Society of the Army of the Philippines.

A few young veterans of the "Fighting Tenth" met last evening at the offices of A. A. Powell, Esq., No. 432 Fourth avenue, and made plans for the formation of a Pittsburgh camp of the Pennsylvania Society of the Army of the Philippines. A. H. Anderson was made temporary chairman and "Chaplain" Robert G. Woodside temporary secretary.

A constitution was adopted with a preamble stating the object of the camp to be the perpetuating of the friendships formed in the army service. Judging from the way the boys smiled upon one another last night it seemed that such society is hardly needed. The constitution is the one recommended by the state organization and the same as that adopted by the Washington, Connellsville and Monongahela City camps.

The society will be known as "Malate Camp No. 2, Pennsylvania Society of the Army of the Philippines." After the charter has been obtained, in about two weeks, a meeting will be held, probably at the Hotel Schenley, to elect permanent officers.

TEN PERISH IN THEATER FIRE

Employes Trapped in Sleeping Quarters and Burned to Death.

ATLANTA PLAYHOUSE IS ALSO DESTROYED

Caught Fire During Progress of a Vaudeville Performance, but a Panic Was Averted and No Lives Lost—Fireman Badly Burned.

HURLEY, WIS., Nov. 6.—The Klondike theater and four other buildings were destroyed by fire here today, ten persons losing their lives. The victims were all performers and others connected with the theater who were entrapped in their sleeping quarters on the third floor.

The dead are C. W. Cleveland, H. P. Clifford, Thomas Le Claire, George Benert, H. D. Emory, Timothy Ryan, F. L. Gay, St. Louis; Thomas Ozanne, Harry Raymond, Clare Bonne.

The seriously injured are Jennie Bender, Annie Scott, Laura Russell, "Billy" McLaughlin.

The Klondike was a vaudeville theater and all of the dead and injured were connected with the theater as performers. Most of them lived at Hurley, and Thomas Le Claire was a brotner of the proprietor of the theater.

Trapped in Sleeping Quarters.

The fire started on the stage, and in a few minutes the entire structure was a mass of flames. The third story was used as sleeping quarters and the rapid spread of the fire cut off the escape of the occupants. The building was quickly consumed and the flames spread to adjoining structures. The Ironwood fire department was called to the assistance of the Hurley firemen and only by the hardest work was the town saved from being wiped out.

The losses follow: E. Le Claire's Klondike theater, $7,000; M. Cummings' Monarch saloon, $4,000; Harrigan and McPherson's saloon, $6,000; D. P. McNeil (of Chicago), $1,000; Constantine Erspaner, $500.

The charred remains of six of the victims have been recovered and search is being made for the others.

The Klondike theater burned once before, in July, 1887, when eleven women lost their lives.

Atlanta Theater Destroyed.

ATLANTA, GA., Nov. 6.—The Lyceum theater, Atlanta's vaudeville house, was destroyed by fire this afternoon. A performance was being given when the fire broke out, but the audience was dismissed in time to prevent a panic. Fred Jones, a fireman, was rescued, badly burned, from an upper window, and Roy Danner, an electrician, was injured by a fall.

The fire was preceded by an accident which caused some uneasiness in the theater. An immense electric sign extending across Edgewood avenue in front of the house fell at 2:30, just as the performance began, throwing two electricians to the ground and injuring one of them, Roy Danner. A network of wires was thrown across the street and in the vicinity of the theater. The wires became crossed and burned out a feedbox at the entrance to the theater. The smoke found its way into the opera house and caused considerable excitement in the audience. Some of those inside attempted to leave, but were immediately stopped and urged to remain seated and the performance proceeded. One hour later the roof of the theater was discovered on fire and fearing harm the management dismissed the audience, their exit being expedited by the ushers. In less than an hour the theater was in ruins.

Loss Reaches $75,000.

Fred Jones, a fireman, had a narrow escape from being burned to death. He was rescued from one of the upper windows in time to save his life. He was badly burned.

Only a portion of the wardrobes of the twelve people playing at the Lyceum this week was saved. All the scenery was burned. R. Coley Anderson, the lessee and manager of the theater, says the loss will be about $75,000, with insurance of $45,000.

The theater was owned by the Cunningham estate of Atlanta and T. H. Bowles of Milwaukee, Wis. It was at one time under the control of Henry Greenwald of New Orleans.

AN INTER-SOCIETY RALLY.

Young People's Organizations of Allegheny Churches Will Hold a Union Meeting Tonight.

The first inter-denominational rally of the young people's societies of the hill churches of Allegheny will be held this evening in the Eighth United Presbyterian church, Perrysville and Euclid avenues, Allegheny. The meeting will be attended by Christian Endeavorers, Epworth leaguers and members of the Young People's Christian union. The object of the rally is to promote sociability and a closer fellowship among the churches of the hill and to unite the energies of the young people of that district in Christian work.

At the rally Miss Kate Kyle George will conduct the devotional exercises and the following persons will speak on the various relations of the young people's society to the church: Mrs. J. C. Umstead, S. E. Baird, James B. Grier, W. W. Nesbit and E. A. Young. Four churches will be represented: The Eighth United Presbyterian, the Perrysville avenue Methodist Episcopal, the Observatory Hill Christian and the Watson Memorial Presbyterian.

KLONDIKE HOLDS ITS OWN.

The Season's Clean-Up of Gold May Amount to $25,000,000.

SEATTLE, WASH., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—A late letter from Dawson conveys the following information about the Klondike clean-up, the letter being dated October 7. The official records at the gold commissioner's office, where experts' certificates for all gold going from the country must be obtained, shows that the gold shipments from Dawson for September amounted to $3,000,000. This brings the total for the last four months to $21,643,000. There has been a big rush of gold out since October 1, and a promise that the exports of the year may eclipse those of any other year in the history of the camp.

The camp is holding its own and proving of great lasting quality. With the spurt that has occurred since the 1st of October, it would not be surprising if the shipments for the season would press hard on $25,000,000 before navigation closes.

SPEEDY WORK ON NEW CUT-OFF

BESSEMER AND LAKE ERIE BEING GREATLY IMPROVED

New Kremis-Osgood Cut-Off Will Save Distance, Reduce Grades and Do Away With Many Sharp Curves. Panhandle Bridge Over Monongahela Will Be Elevated Several Feet and Spans Will Be Lengthened.

Rapid progress is being made by the Bessemer & Lake Erie railroad on the Kremis-Osgood cut-off. The greater part of the grading and masonry is being done by the Broadhead Construction Company, and the material for the great viaduct near Shenango is being made by the American Bridge Company at its Pittsburgh plants. The total cost of the improvement will be about $400,000.

According to the present outlook the new line will be ready for use April 1 next. The line is to be of single track and will be used by south-bound freight trains exclusively. The line cuts out Shenango and Greenville, and those towns are now relieved of the dirt, noise and street blockades caused by the long ore trains of the Bessemer. The north-bound freight trains and passenger trains will follow the present route. The new cut-off has the threefold advantage of easy grades, reducing curves and shortening the line. The distance between the junction points near Osgood and Kremis by the present route through Greenville is 11.8 miles. The new line will make the distance nine miles. A four-mile grade of from 60 to 66 feet per mile will be reduced to 32 feet, and while the present line has curves of from four to nine degrees, the highest on the new will be two degrees.

Near Shenango the new line will cross by means of a 1700-foot viaduct the present tracks and those of the Erie and of the Lake Shore's Jamestown and Franklin branch.

Girls as Dining Car Employes.

T. R. Barnes, superintendent of the dining car service of the Denver & Rio Grande, has announced that he will introduce girls as waitresses on the dining cars of his road. Many of the superintendents have pronounced against the plan, while others await the result of the trial of the innovation. One superintendent says: "In the first place, there would be no place for the girls to sleep on the cars, unless they 'roughed it' as the men do: that is, sleep in the seats. The work of a waiter on a dining car consists principally of extracting corks, a species of service which would be neither suitable nor congenial for properly reared young women." Mr. Barnes, however, is not discouraged. "Girls would be neater, cleaner and quicker than men in dining car service," he says. "I shall employ them first in Colorado, to see how the public takes it. If it proves satisfactory, I may introduce the plan on the Missouri Pacific."

To Change Panhandle Bridge.

Plans have been prepared, bids received, and this week the contract will be let by Chief Engineer Thomas Rodd of the Pennsylvania lines for the changes in the Panhandle bridge across the Monongahela. Approval of the new plans has been obtained from the war department.

These plans provide for the elevation of the entire bridge several feet above its present height. With the exception of the main channel span of the bridge, the steel work now projects below the bottom of the bridge. On several spans this is to be changed. There will also be fewer and longer spans in the bridge. The total cost of the work, it is estimated, will approach $200,000. Work will be started on the improvement as soon as possible, and it is to be finished inside of a year. As in the case of the Fort Wayne bridge, now building across the Allegheny, trains will continue to use the bridge while the changes are being made.

Suit Will End Vandalia Receivership

It comes from good authority that the receivership of the Vandalia will end immediately after the final decision of the million dollar tax suit of the state of Indiana against the road. The suit is now in the supreme court of Indiana. A decision may be reached inside of a few months. While the Pennsylvania Company has had practically complete control of the road for several years, there will nevertheless be important changes in its character when the receivership is ended. It is said the road will then be made at once an integral part of the Pennsylvania system. The line will be placed under the direct supervision of the general manager of the Pennsylvania lines, and a number of official titles will be abolished.

New Official Appointments.

Judge C. B. Heisherman of Urbana, O., has been appointed solicitor of the Pennsylvania lines, to succeed the late Frank Chance.

RAILROAD NOTES.

The Wabash has ordered 50 Roger ballast cars in anticipation of its work on the new line to Pittsburgh, and other new construction work.

The Baltimore & Ohio has a corps of engineers at work surveying a line from Tabbs Crossing, two miles west of Martinsburg, W. Va., to Harper's Ferry, 22 miles, to form a cut-off for eastbound freight. Heavy grades will be avoided and eastbound freight trains will miss Martinsburg.

The transportation committee of the St. Louis World's Fair has recommended the establishment of two yards at the fair grounds, one on the north and one on the west, to be owned by the fair company, and to be open to all railroads, without discrimination. Tracks, engines and employes are all to be controlled by the fair company.

NEXT WEEK'S PLAYS.

A Variety of Entertaining Attractions Scheduled at Local Playhouses Next Week.

Miss Amelia Bingham will present "The Climbers," a new four act play of modern life by Mr. Clyde Fitch, for the first time here at the Alvin theater next Monday. Miss Bingham mounted the play with so great a lavishness and yet with so great a fidelity to artistic detail that she took rank at once with the most famous of America's theatrical producers. Especially notable is the company associated with the actress-manager in the presentation of "The Climbers." It contains a number of the most prominent actors of today and includes Robert Edeson, Frank Worthing, Ferdinand Gottschalk, James Carew, Alfred Fisher, J. B. Sturgis, Henry Warwick, Edward Moreland, Harry Wright, Jr., Minnie Dupree, Ethel Winthrop, Madge Carr Cook, Bijou Fernandes, Martin Gardiner, Florence Lloyd, Maud Ream Stover and Lillian Wright.

The big Empire theater, New York, success, "Sowing the Wind," which entertained New York city for one whole year and afterward toured the principal cities of the country with Viola Allen and Henry Miller in the leading roles, will be the bill at the Grand week starting next Monday. Both Miss Truax and Mr. Ingersoll will have an equal share of the honors in this play.

Pittsburgh likes Irish comedy when Olcott is the broth of a boy who is the central figure in the play and when it can hear him sing the plaintive ballads of the Green Isle or the dainty serenades of romantic youth. In "Garrett O'Magh," which is filling the Bijou and which soon enters on the second week, and its last, at that playhouse, Mr. Olcott is the ideal of romance.

"A Gambler's Daughter" will be produced at the Empire theater next week under most favorable auspices, as the piece has scored immense success in other cities and has been pronounced one of the most charming and delightful sensational melodramas of the day by competent critics. It will doubtless prove a decided hit here, where really good melodrama by competent players and with such new and elaborate scenecy as this organization has provided is always appreciated.

Next week's vaudeville at the Duquesne theater is of a character to please the most fastidious of Pittsburgh audiences. A feature that will be of much interest is the first appearance here in a long time of Edwin Milton Royle and Selina Fetter Royle, in their charming little comedy "Captain Impudence," supported by a company of capable actors, and embellished with special scenery. Others in the list are Gus Williams, the extremely popular comedian, in a new batch of jokes and songs; Gertrude Haynes, presenting her Choir Celestial.

Lovers of new, bright and witty burlesque (up to date) will be pleased to hear of the advent of Bob Manchester's Beauty Show, the New York star's big extravaganza company, at the Academy next week. Lovely girls, beautiful costumes, massive scenery and a chorus of 35 people.

Jefferson in "The Rivals."

There are so many delightful things about Sheridan's fine old comedy, "The Rivals," which Mr. Jefferson revived at the Alvin theater last evening, apart from the work of the several members of the company that the public is always more than repaid for seeing it again. Mr. Jefferson's "Bob Acres" is a ripened bit of that actor's best art, though he is by no means so well known in the role as is his "Rip." The audience at the Alvin last evening came early under the magic of his humor in the part and remained so to the last moment on the field of blood that had been turned into a place of general reconciliation. Second to Mr. Jefferson's work was that of John Jack as Sir Anthony. For unctious humor and fine play of mimic art, there has been nothing finer seen on the local stage in a long time. Miss Ffolliett Paget's Mrs. Malaprop is another fine piece of acting that adds to the charm of the Jefferson revival. Miss Georgia Meridan does not make a distinguished Lydia Languish, though her work is intelligent and painstaking. On Saturday evening Mr. Jefferson will be seen in "Cricket On the Hearth," and "Lend Me Five Shillings."

Pittsburgh Orchestra Concert.

The opening concert of the seventh season of the orchestra will be given tonight at 8:15 o'clock at Carnegie Music hall. Mr. Herbert, the conductor, and the entire personnel of the orchestra, are eagerly anticipating the opening of the season, and all are in an enthusiastic attitude towards the occasion. There has been such sale in the single tickets as will test the capacity of Carnegie Music hall, but there are still seats to be purchased at 319 Fifth avenue.

By arrangement with the police department of the city the management will insist on certain carriage rules beginning tonight and continuing through the season. All carriages when approaching the hall before the concert will enter at the right side, towards Schenley park, and will leave by way of Bellefield avenue. When the carriages form at the close of the concert none will be permitted to stand in the park entrance or on the side of Forbes street towards the hall; the only places where carriages will be allowed to form are as follows: Forbes street, north side of street car track in one line between the Hotel Schenley and Craig street, and in Bellefield avenue. This rule will be strictly adhered to and all patrons of the concerts are asked to instruct such drivers of carriages as are under their control to observe them. By this means concert patrons who depend on the street cars can leave at either of the side entrances at the front of the hall and reach their cars without being interfered with by carriages.

The management also desire that a more general use be made of the side exits of the hall which furnish a convenient means of egress, especially to people in the balconies.

It is earnestly urged on everyone to be in their seats promptly at 8:15 o'clock, the hour for beginning the concert. Those who arrive after that time will not be admitted to their seats until there is a pause in the playing.

The program for tonight in full is as follows:

FOURTEEN PAGES.

The Passing of Li Hung Chang.

The passing away of Li Hung Chang removes the most famous and probably the greatest of Chinese statesmen. He was pure Chinese, belonging to an ancient stock of one of the central provinces and without mixture of the Manchu blood, which by conquest gave to China its present dynasty. Nevertheless, by sheer ability he rose to the most commanding and influential position in the empire. Although his early rise was along the line of petrified scholarship, which is the avenue to official position, his distinction was gained by military service in the Tai-Ping rebellion. It is sufficient proof of the native vigor of his mind that when the Tai-Ping rebels invaded his native province he was able to rise above the slavish pedantry and inaptitude which generally disables the Chinese literati when thrown upon their own resources, and act with energy and resolution in raising troops and conducting military operations. His rise then was rapid and he became one of the great viceroys of the empire.

While his vigor and ability were generally admitted, yet he was frequently accused of craft and duplicity, and much harsh censure has been passed upon his methods. To appreciate his greatness it should not be judged by western standards. To find an analogy to his position we must go back to ancient Byzantium, where there, too, was an ancient civilization, unable to cope by open force against its foes, and supplementing what it lacked in might by subtlety and cunning. Li Hung Chang's methods were Byzantine, and his greatness was of the Byzantine type, a mixture of grandeur and meanness and yet the greatness is indubitable. Both in his merits and defects he was adapted to be a wise adviser to the Chinese imperial government during the crisis caused by the Boxer uprising, and his loss at the present juncture is irreparable. There are doubtless Chinese statesmen more imbued with western ideas, with clearer conceptions of the reforms that are needed in China, but there are none who are so well qualified as was Li Hung Chang to approach with tact and comprehension the political problems presented by any scheme of reconstruction in a country of such intense conservatism as China.

Founder's Day.

Founder's Day is one of the established annual events in the life of Pittsburgh, and today at the Carnegie institute it will be celebrated with all the impressiveness and enthusiasm for which it is noted. It is a matter for regret that the man whose generosity brought about the erection of the splendid institution cannot attend, but although absent in body he will be present in spirit, and the best wishes of all in the assemblage will go out to Andrew Carnegie.

While the founder will be missed the platform will not be lacking distinguished men, for the list of participants in the exercises includes ex-President Grover Cleveland, Messrs. John W. Alexander and Robert W. Allan, members of the international art jury, and Joseph Jefferson, the dean of the stage and an artist of much ability. Mr. Cleveland has won an enviable reputation as a public speaker, and it is a foregone conclusion that he will do justice to his reputation and his theme in his address on "The Obligations of National Co-Partnership."

The day will be further made memorable by the opening of the annual art exhibition, the reopening of the museum to the public, and the opening of the Pittsburgh orchestra season. Altogether the celebration of Founder's Day is one that appeals to the eye, the ear and the heart, and the fact is ever kept in mind that all this pleasure is due to the generosity of a man whose fame as a benefactor is world-wide.

Manila Bay Prize Money.

No one can accuse the United States government of undue haste in its distribution of prize money won by Admiral Dewey and his men. The battle of Manila Bay was fought on May day of 1898. It was early in November of 1901 that Justice Bradley, sitting in the United States district court in the city of Washington, signed the decrees of condemnation of certain vessels and equipment belonging to the king of Spain and his subjects, and captured by the American naval forces. The decree gives the names of the ships, and excepts such property as may have been restored to private owners.

Although the work of rewarding the American commander and his men, according to the laws governing naval warfare at that time, has progressed thus far, the prize winners will not receive their checks immediately. The value of the property condemned as prizes must now be ascertained, and then the secretary of the navy must deposit the amount with the secretary of the treasury, subject to the court's orders. The process is somewhat tortuous, and it is doubtful if the mariners will get their money in time to be available for the purchase of Christmas gifts.

The Lesson of the Election.

Like the proverbial jewel in the Ethiop's ear there are two spots among the results of Tuesday's election in this state that shine bright, clear and strong against the dark background of the fusion campaign of slander. The one is the manner in which the people of Allegheny county, Judge Potter's neighbors, those who know him best, flocked to his support in rebuke of those who vilified him. The other is the manner in which the people of Philadelphia, neighbors of the authors and promoters of the campaign of slander, and, therefore, thoroughly acquainted with them and their methods, rebuked and repudiated them. In Allegheny county and in Philadelphia the voice of the people was emphatic. No room is left to doubt its meaning. For the state, outside Allegheny and Philadelphia, where Judge Potter and the fusion managers are not so well known as they are at home, there is a lesson in the vote of the two counties.

The vote of Tuesday must be taken even by the purveyors of abuse as a rebuke to their methods. The respectable and self-respecting people of the state who know the facts have pronounced against the appeals to passion and hatred that reek with the odor of the gutter. These are not the things that order-loving, decent Pennsylvanians can tolerate, and they meant to say so.

A Concession From Turkey.

The United States has secured another concession from Turkey. The sublime porte has at last issued an exequatur to Dr. Thomas Herbert Norton, consul at Harpoot. The government at Washington has been exceedingly patient about this matter, as it was patient with reference to the claims for the destruction of mission property at the same place. The claims were settled at last, as readers of the telegraphic news remember, but still the Turkish government withheld permission for the new American consul to assume his duties. Dr. Norton was appointed nearly a year and a half ago, but could do nothing officially because his exequatur was withheld by the Constantinople authorities.

The United States was not alone in this matter, however. Similar recognition was withheld from the British consul, and on the same ground, that there was no commerce at that place. But British pressure secured the exequatur for the representative of the king, and then the American legation at Constantinople pointed out that the United States consul at Harpoot was waiting for official authorization to assume his functions.

Events are making it clear to Turkey that the sultan's government must get down to a business basis and not rest on whims of Turkish government officials, high or low.

The Passing of Croker.

For years Crokerism has been a synonym for all that is vicious in the politics of the metropolis, and there has been no sincere effort to refute the grave charges against the administrations resulting from his leadership and manipulation of political affairs.

Corruption of morals and politics, bartering in public contracts, blackmailing by the police, protection of vice, and kindred evils, have been the predominating traits of the Croker regime, and their long toleration by the citizens was surprising to the people of the United States and mystifying to those of foreign nations. Although there was general knowledge of these outrages against good government Croker and his followers felt so secure in their possession of the offices that they defied public sentiment, and for a long time succeeded in defeating the efforts of reformers to remove the stain of dishonor from the name of their great city. Happily for the people of New York, and for the cause of good government generally, the reign of Crokerism is now at an end, and virtue and honesty return after a long exile. Public decency has triumphed in the election of Seth Low as mayor and William T. Jerome as district attorney, as well as in the defeat of Mayor Van Wyck in his candidacy for a seat on the supreme bench. Croker at last has been driven from authority, and no man can be better spared from American politics.

Crushing the Samar Rebellion.

Although but a short time has elapsed since United States troops began the work of pacification on the island of Samar, where a detachment of soldiers was massacred recently, the hostiles have already been severely punished. The latest dispatches from that district report another defeat of the insurgents, in which they suffered a loss of 25 killed, the Americans following up their victory by burning 175 houses and capturing large stores of insurgent supplies.

The destruction of the houses was a measure of military necessity, for the reason that these villages were places of retreat for the insurgents, and in which, after secreting their arms, they posed as peaceful natives, ready to sally forth again when an opportunity presented itself. Deprived of shelter and convenient places for hatching conspiracies, the rebels are driven to the alternative of fighting in the open or surrendering. It would be a decided lack of caution were the American soldiers to pass by and spare these villages from which enemies could issue and assail them in the rear. The Samar islanders now realize the effectiveness of the retaliation they have provoked, and it is not likely that they will long delay complete submission.

Consumptive Sanatoria.

An illustration is being afforded near our own doors of the success attained in the modern treatment of that great American scourge, consumption, that should prove a profitable object lesson. At White Haven, on the top of the Blue Ridge mountains in this state, a colony of consumptives has lived during the past six months, whose members have gained steadily in weight and strength, and have experienced marked improvement in their sanitary conditions. The sanatorium is so far only partially completed, but the patients have already overrun the capacity of the place. The air is dry, without being cold, and is always free from moisture. The inmates of this unique consumptive home are provided with a suitable and nutritious dietary. They eat whenever inclination suggests, and spend virtually all of their time out of doors, even sleeping in the open air. The secret of the improved condition of the White Haven colony of consumptives is not hard to discover. The rarified air of the high mountain levels in this state offer excellent location for sanatoria of this character.

The consumptive, if there be any cure for him, must find it in the atmosphere that he breathes through his diseased lungs. This provided it only requires that his dietary and habits be directed to the end that the waste tissues be constantly repaired. The success of the establishment at White Haven would seem to indicate that here in Pennsylvania may be found natural conditions calculated to assist in the scientific warfare that is going on against this generally fatal malady. If the results said to have been attained at White Haven be verified, physicians who shall establish consumptive sanatoria in the mountains of this state will be taking a great stride forward in aiding the thousands of sufferers from the disease who feel that a trip to western altitudes is beyond their reach.

The result in Allegheny county is so satisfactory that there is glory enough for all. Judging from the course of the newspaper organs of the old organization, the larger gratification would have been to have been able to point to losses as a result of the change of administration, but this being denied, a claim is advanced to all the credit for results in which the activity and efficiency of the new organization were a conspicuous factor. We are glad to say that results show that there was a general spirit of party loyalty in Allegheny county for which both wings of the party deserve credit.

The only feature about Croker's announced retirement worthy of special mention is the fact that he delayed it a year too long.

Those gentlemen whose mission it is to explain how it all happened may now be expected to get the center of the stage.

The highway robberies in Bradford last evening lead us to suggest again that every citizen should be prepared to protect his personal property against burglary and his home against invasion. Shoot to hit and then the work of identifying the culprit will greatly facilitate, as it can be done by the police or the coroner at their earliest possible convenience.—Bradford News.

The increase in ruffianism on street cars is deserving of some action on the part of the companies. People who pay their money to ride do not care to run the chances of being mixed up in a row involving danger to themselves, merely because some person or persons under the influence of liquor choose to take charge of things.—Braddock News.

The Buffalo speech of the late president is giving much concern to some of the ultra-protectionist publications, and a great effort is being made to show that Mr. McKinley did not mean that anything should be done immediately. However, there was nothing ambiguous about the wording of the speech, and the people need no commentator in order to understand just what was intended to be said by the speaker.—New Castle Herald.

Scranton proposes to accentuate her entrance into cities of the second class by making the users of franchises contribute a handsome proportion of her annual expenses. An ordinance has been passed levying a tax upon the gross receipts of the gas, water, light, telegraph, telephone and trolley companies of the city, which will yield an income of $100,000 a year to the municipality, or enough to pay one-fourth of the total expenses of the administration. The recorder has signed the measure, and already the corporations affected are loud in their protests.—Johnstown Tribune.

A Thrifty Newsboy.

From the Boston Post.

As an instance of thrift no better example, perhaps, can be found in all Boston than that afforded by Joseph Jollis of this city. About five years ago he emigrated from Kier, Russia, to this country with less than $1 in his pocket. With this capital he began selling papers at the corner of Tremont and Boylston streets. With the exception of one morning—this time owing to illness—he has been found at his regular stand every morning for five years. His average earnings have been about $1 a day. From this small income he has been able to support himself and place in the savings bank $1,000. On Wednesday he and his brother Jacob purchased in the North End a house, for which they paid $3,000, making a partial payment and giving a mortgage for the remainder. This young financier now expects to withdraw from the paper business and engage in the shoe trade in Salem street. He has two brothers in this country and three sisters. His parents are still in Russia.

NEW YORK NOTE BOOK

Everybody Talking About the Landslide of Tuesday—Tammany Men Force an Air of Jollity, but Underlings Find Air Chilly.

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau,
Herald Building, NEW YORK, Nov. 6.

Of course, the only topic of conversation in New York today has been the "landslide." Tammany men of prominence have little to say. There is nothing to be said. The sweep was so extensive, and the annihilation of the candidates who were understood to be most representative of Tammany hall, was so thorough, that there is neither apology nor explanation to be offered by the vanquished. The emblems of the fray, in the shape of banners, advertising cards in "L" trains, and "sandwich men," have disappeared. Tammany seems as if anxious to get into its hole and keep there as soon as possible, and all its blatant confidence, that perpetually smote the ambient air for the last six weeks or so, has evaporated. About city hall there was a spirit of gaiety so patently forced, that it was pitiful. Mayor Van Wyck was not more stony than usual, and, in fact loosened up into a gladsome smile on several occasions, just to show that he was not hurt by the political black eye he got yesterday—about as hard a thump as a candidate ever suffered in New York city. He smiled on one side, like a man with a toothache. The other occupants of city departments were deep in their official duties, as a hint that they had no time to talk; and Tammany visitors to the hall, who are generally welcomed by the men drawing salary from the municipal treasury, finding things unusually chilly, soon departed. Policemen were strictly non-committal. It cannot be said that they looked grieved, and there is reason to suppose that their satisfied aspect was a real index to their feelings. Devery will surely go, and the authorities in the police department who are charged with having "shaken down" the poor patrolman, will find their powers in this was seriously curtailed. No one can tell what will be the future in the department exactly, but it is assumed that the changes therein will be beneficial to "the man that pounds the sidewalk," however much they may interfere with the income of his superiors. There will be more to tell about the result of the slaughter yesterday when the magnitude of the disaster has thoroughly penetrated the Tammany cranium.

Jerome and Devery.

Justice Jerome, the district attorney-elect, in an interview today, paid his respect to "Big Chief" Devery, saying, among other things: "Devery cannot remain in office after January 1. He will be kicked so hard when he goes out of the police department, that the vile vile wretch will never recover from it." And what from Devery? Merely this: "Go to ——."

Tammany Captain on Trial.

Amid the crash of tumbling Tammany edifices, comes the message from Albany that Capt. Diamond of the police department is on trial in the supreme court on a charge of neglect of duty. Diamond's ward man, Bissert, was sentenced to several years of hard labor in state prison lately, for accepting bribes from the keeper of a disorderly house. Now comes Diamond's turn. Under present political conditions in New York city, the captain cannot expect much help from the powers of Tammany hall. He says, however, that he can prove his innocence.

Van Wyck a Disgusted Man.

"Van Wyck is iced in," is the way one evening paper puts it. This cruel reference to the ice grab with which the mayor's name has been so unpleasantly associated, provoked only a short defiance from Van Wyck when he read it, but he disappeared immediately after office hours with the manner of a man thoroughly disgusted.

Jerome and Low Taking a Rest.

The labors of the campaign tired out both Justice Jerome and Seth Low. Neither of them was in the city this evening. Jerome went away to Lakeville, Conn., yesterday, and Mr. Low departed this afternoon for Great Barrington, Mass., to remain a week. Both have taken their families with them. They have been interviewed, of course, but they have nothing to say that differs from their expressions before election, except that they will carry out the promises of good government they made repeatedly on the stump. It is to be remarked that each credits his election to the desire of the people to do away with the dreadful public abuses of the last four years, rather than to his own personal popularity.

Shepard Not Badly Hurt.

Edward M. Shepard takes his defeat with dignity. He says that the people meant to get good government, and he believes that Seth Low will give a high-minded administration. Mr. Shepard is not so badly hurt by the result as Tammany. He is independent, and, no doubt, understands that his political prospects are almost as bright now as if he had been chosen as mayor of Greater New York. He got into bad company and had to pay the penalty, that was all.

Carnegie Eschews Politics.

Andrew Carnegie spent a large part of today on the golf links of the St. Andrews' Golf club at Yonkers. He plays a good stiff game, and he enjoys the sport, as he often says. As soon a it was learned where he was, one of the evening papers of this city called him up by telephone and asked him for an expression on the election. Mr. Carnegie had nothing to say about it for publication, however.

How James E. Wilson Got a Luncheon

There is a story on the Rialto that James E. Wilson, formerly leading man of the Grand opera house, Pittsburgh, and now playing the principal roles in the stock company of the American theater, this city, was mistaken for John T. Oakley, a candidate for sheriff, yesterday and was handsomely entertained in consequence. An enthusiastic Tammany man saw Mr. Wilson near the American theater and mistook him for Oakley, whom he resembles somewhat at first glance. Of course, no one can counterfeit Mr. Wilson's placid manner exactly, but the Tammany man was full of excitement over the election and did not trouble himself to study the supposed Oakley closely. He jumped at a conclusion, and before Wilson had recovered from his astonishment, or had mustered up energy enough to convince the stranger of his mistake, he found himself seated in a Broadway restaurant with a comfortable luncheon and an exceedingly garrulous Democrat in front of him. Well, it is Wilson's way to take things a they come, as his friends all know, and he just let events work themselves out. He took luncheon, smoked a cigar or two, and allowed the Democrat to talk politics to his heart's content. Then, in a peaceful frame of mind—for he had borne the steady stream of inanities from his companion by the simple means of not listening to them—he calmly bade the Democrat "good day" and strolled to the theater for the matinee.

Croker Denies His Abdication.

Richard Croker denies the report, which was spread early today, that he will resign from the leadership of Tammany hall, giving the place to John F. Carroll. Croker is quoted as saying: "All these stories are rot and nonsense. I am not trying to avoid any effects of the election. I am the same Richard Croker today that I ever was—loyal to my friends and subservient to my party. I am not going to resign or abdicate the so-called leadership of Tammany hall." This denial will be taken with a grain of salt, however.

Democrats Who Did Not Vote.

An analysis of the vote in Greater New York shows that 50,000 Democrats did not vote at all. The vote for Low was substantially about the same as that for McKinley last year, while Shepard's vote was, in round numbers, 50,000 less. This is the story told by the returns, and there are many comments upon it by people of all parties. An election inspector in a district where Tammany has always been strong said this afternoon that he personally knew of 29 Democrats who cut Shepard off their tickets and voted for the rest of the candidates. They would not vote for Low because he was on the opposition ticket, and they did not like Shepard. It is charged by some Tammany men that Croker caused the landslide by refusing to accept Coler as the mayoralty candidate. Coler is personally popular with Tammanyites, and it was felt by the rank and file that he was the logical candidate. The placing of Van Wyck on the ticket for justice of the supreme court was another predetermined cause of defeat. His connection with the ice scandal was too much even for Tammanyites who do not belong to the inner circle of "the Democratic club," and it was the general sentiment that he must be slaughtered, anyhow. So, with Shepard and Van Wyck forced on them against their will the rank and file found it easier not to vote at all than to doctor the ticket to suit them. This is one of the many explanations that are afloat tonight; but, as a matter of fact, there is only one explanation that explains, and that is the disgraceful record of Tammany for the past four years.

Woman Claims Credit for the Victory.

Hugh McLaughlin, Brooklyn's Democratic boss, had his next door neighbor, Mrs. Wunderlich, arrested recently because she persisted in beating carpets on the roof of her home, thus filling the McLaughlin domicile with dust. Mrs. Wunderlich has a peppery disposition, and she has been inveighing against McLaughlin ever since. She claims much of the credit of placing Seth Low in the mayor's chair, because she has worked assiduously on the platform of "anything to beat McLaughlin." She has been the loudest campaign worker in her neighborhood, and today her triumph has found loud and continuous expression at the top of a well developed voice. McLaughlin, who is an elderly, dignified, plug-hatted gentleman, declares that Mrs. Wunderlich's approval is the worst feature of the Democratic defeat.

A Star Actress in Gold.

Maude Adams in gold has come to New York. It is the statue of the charming little actress that was cast in solid gold for exhibition at the Pan-American exposition, and which has been admired by thousands of Pittsburgh visitors to the great show in Buffalo. The statue has been received at the assay office here and will be re-melted into bullion. It is estimated that it contains gold to the value of $97,000. It was said at the time of the making of the figure that it would represent Miss Adams' actual value, but considering that she makes a great deal more than that each season on the stage, it is apparent that the calculation was absurd.

Twain's Tammany Funeral Oration.

Mark Twain was in his element today as principal orator at the jubilee meeting of the "Acorns" at the headquarters of the organization in Broadway. The band played "Go Way Back and Sit Down," and then Mr. Clemens arose, with his face expressing poignant grief, which was as funny as when Marshall Wilder expresses regret over the spending of 15 cents for ice cream for a matinee girl. Mr. Clemens uttered a mock funeral oration over Tammany, beginning with "Tammany is dead, and there is wailing in the land." Then he referred to the lost ones of Tammany by name, one by one, and kept the big meeting in a roar of laughter, as Mark Twain knows so well how to do. He finished by reading a letter from Bishop Potter, in which the bishop said it was now not only "Greater New York," but "Grander New York."

MAUDE ADAMS MELTED.

Her Pan-American Statue Yields $97,000 in Gold.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—What was known as the Maude Adams statue was melted up at the United States assay office in Wall street today. The statue was made of $97,000 in gold taken out of the assay office some weeks ago.

It has been exhibited at the Pan-American exposition and was sent to the assay office from Buffalo direct.

Reciprocal Trade or Tariff War.

From the London Chronicle.

According to Mr. Kasson it is America's turn now to sing a recessional to be delivered from the consequences of "frantic boast and foolish word." Elated by their national expansion, the United States have indulged in too much national bragging, with the result that they have frightened various European countries into retaliatory duties. This emergency, Mr. Kasson holds, can only be met by treaty, and America is now at the parting of the ways between a war of tariffs with all that it involves, and a policy of reciprocity. Mr. McKinley's last speech before his assassination, it will be remembered, pointed in this latter direction; and it seems possible that the Americans, having safe-guarded the struggling youth of their industries by protective duties, may now be turning their thoughts to the wider markets offered by reciprocal treaties, if not by actual free trade.

TALES OF THE HUNT.

A son of Robert Simcox, while hunting yesterday, saw three wild turkeys. He lay behind a log until they came within range, and then shot he heads off of two of the fowls.—Lock Haven Democrat.

For some time oppossums have been a scarce animal in this vicinity, but for some good reason they are again making their homes here. A large number have been killed at Lamey's a few miles north of the city on the Dempseytown road during the past two weeks, and two have been killed in three days on the W. J. Bigler farm at Walnut Bend.—Oil City Derrick.

T. M. Miller, Oscar Albright, C. P. Zufall and Newton Martz of Hyndman and L. McGregor of Harrisburg were hunting last Thursday. Miller and McGregor each got a turkey. They say John Baker didn't like to sell any of his turkeys, but when he was offered $1 50 each, and learned that one of the birds would grace the table of a state employe at Harrisburg, he decided to let them go.—Hyndman Bulletin.

Harry Frailey was driving along the river near Shenks Ferry gunning and killed a snake which measured five feet four inches in length, and was almost as thick around as a man's arm. The reptile seemed to be standing on the end of its tail when the young man saw it, and dispatched it with a load from his gun. He did not ascertain what kind of a snake it was, but the river hills are known to contain many that are very dangerous.—Lancaster Intelligencer.

William Bennett of Hill Top, recently killed seven wild turkeys at two shots—five at one shot and two at another. Taking into consideration that the ordinary hunter has great difficulty in killing even one, Mr. Bennett's luck, or marksmanship, is something wonderful. The turkeys were in his cornfield, which gave him a much better chance than if they were in the woods. Turkeys are very plentiful in the mountains this fall, but hunters are meeting with poor success in killing them.—Wheeling Register.

SIAM'S ENVOY.

He Is on His Way to Washington to Represent His Country at the Capital of the United States—One of Our Admirers.

(Correspondence of The Gazette.)

BANGKOK, SIAM, Sept. 14.—Phya Akharaj Varadhara, his Siamese majesty's envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the United States of America, left Bangkok for Washington, September 4, accompanied by his son, a lad of 11 years, and Mom Luang Kreuwan, son of the present minister of agriculture, who goes as student interpreter to the legation. At London he will be joined by E. H. Loftus, for some years interpreter of the Siamese legation at the court of St. James, who has been appointed secretary of the legation at Washington. The minister after a stop of some weeks in England expects to reach New York in the month of November and hopes to take up the duties of his post before congress assembles.

Phya Akharaj Varadhara is the new title which, in accordance with the custom of the country, was conferred upon his excellency at his final audience with the king. Previous to that he has been known as Phya Prechada. He received his education in England, where he studied at Oxford under private tuition from 1881 to 1888. On his return to Siam in 1888 he entered the foreign office, which service he left in 1891 to take up the duties of chief of police in the city of Bangkok. In 1896 he was made commissioner of two of the government provinces adjoining Bangkok and the following year became under secretary of the local government, which position he occupied until honored by the appointment of diplomatic representative to America.

He belongs to one of the old and prominent families of the country, his grandfather having been minister and his father acting minister of the household in their time. As a Siamese he is decidedly democratic in his tastes and manner; speaks English fluently and will readily take on American ways. He has always been an admirer of the United States and as a lad of sixteen was one of a group of ten, all the sons of noblemen, who in 1875 were to be sent to America to be educated by the king. Every preparation had been made, the passage was arranged and the baggage was on board the ship. The young men were to go under the personal supervision of one John H. Chandler, a worthy citizen of the United States who had done much for the country in its early endeavors toward development and had become a trusted adviser of his majesty.

Through business and legal complications Mr. Chandler was detained on the very eve of his departure, the plan fell through and the party of young men, which would have been the first sent abroad by the government of Siam for the purpose of bringing the country into touch with the occidental world, did not proceed on its mission. Later some of these young men went to England and others to different parts of Europe. The trend of education set in other directions, and European ideas obtain in the government today. Up to the present time no youth of Siam, under the direction of his government, has been educated in the United States.

Phya Akharaj speaks with pleasure of his mission to America as the fulfillment of the desires of his youth; and he takes with him his son as the first Siamese youth of noble birth to receive impressions of the outside world through the institutions and the influences of the great republic of the west.

COST OF LIVING.

Dun's Review Fixes It at $97 40 Per Capita Per Annum, Highest in a Decade.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Dun's Review, to be issued November 9, will say: "The cost of living has now reached the highest point of the decade, notwithstanding the cheapening of many manufactured goods through improved processes and the absence of undue inflation in various classes of steel products, which was conspicuous in the spring of 1900 and brought about the subsequent severe reaction. No artificial stimulus is responsible for the present high level of manufactured products, and aside from some rise in food products due to short crops, the present position of the index number may be attributed to sound business conditions and full employment of labor at high wages.

"Prior to November 1, the top point during the past ten years was March 15, 1900, when the cost of living per capita per annum was $97 40."

Differences of Time.

From the Saturday Review.

The time of day differs in Moret-sur-Loing; differs, also, in neighboring villages. For miles around the clocks strike independently instead of in chorus, so that it is 10 at the station when it is 10 minutes to in our hotel; a quarter to 10 outside the local bijoutier's—but all hours within. When these clocks have done striking the church clock starts; there is no corroboration, no unanimity. However * * * who cares, who worries? It is almost 11; about 12; a little past 4; that suffices. We get accustomed to being strangely in three places at the very same hour. Should a friend be pressed, we can say, "That clock is fast;" if he weary us, we need not hesitate to declare it slow. And watches vary; time is of no moment in Moret. Further still from Fontainebleau, in the village of Grez, the two or three hundred inhabitants rely chiefly on the cure for the hour. He alone controls the church clock; but he, an irascible old gentleman, often quarrels with the mayor, and on these occasions stops the clock immediately, revengefully. Once the quarrel lasted three whole months; for three whole months the hands of the clock remained stationary. The mayor protested, but the cure ignored him. When at last the mayor withdrew his objection to the point at issue, the cure allowed the clock to go again. And now, if ever the mayor and cure disagree, the cure stops the clock, the mayor protests, the cure ignores him; and Grez has no church clock to tell the time until the unhappy mayor gives in.

Rural Free Dilvery.

From the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

After several months of experiment in different parts of the country the postoffice department has practically adopted the rural free delivery system as a permanent part of the postal service. In the estimates for the coming fiscal year to be presented to congress an appropriaton of $6,000,000 will be asked for to maintain and extend this rural delivery. The institution of this system affords another example of that extension of means of communication to country districts which have heretofore been only available in thickly populated localities.

By Telephone.

"Hello, Central!"

"What number, please?"

"Connect me with the tool shop, navy yard, Washington. I would hold converse with Admiral Dewey."

"All right."

Ting-a-ling-a-ling!

"Is that you, admiral?"

"My name is Dewey, but I can't give out any information respecting the court of inquiry."

"O, that's all right, admiral. I merely called you up to say that the decree for your prize money has been signed."

"What prize money?"

"For the destruction of the Spanish fleet."

"Spanish fleet? What Spanish fleet?"

"Why, admiral, the Spanish fleet you destroyed in Manila bay. You surely have not forgotten."

"O, let me see! I believe I do remember something of the sort. It occurred several years ago, didn't it?"

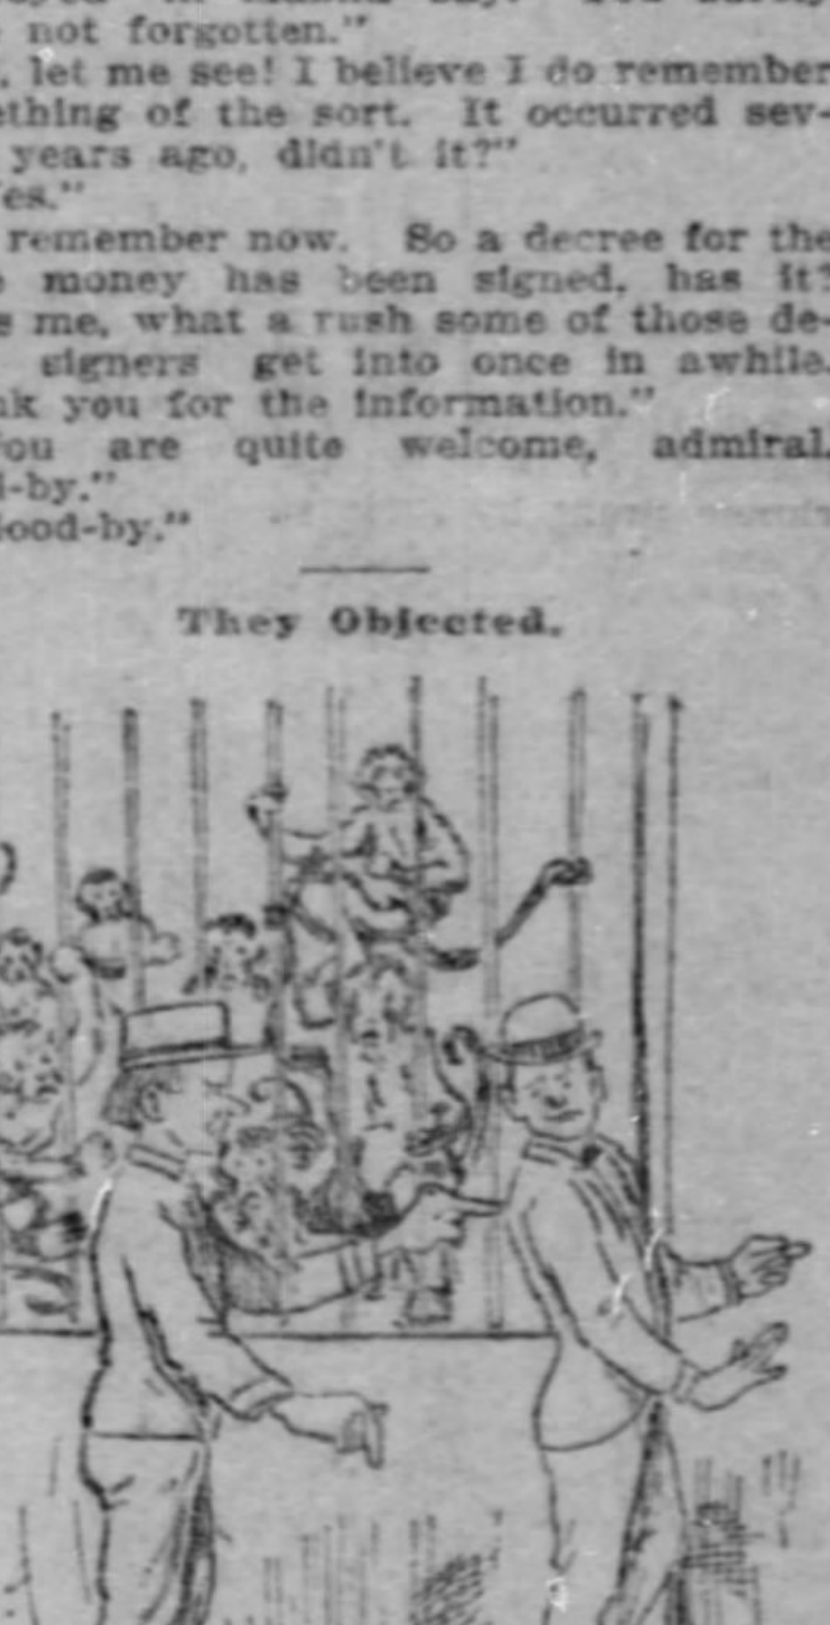
"Yes."

"I remember now. So a decree for the prize money has been signed, has it? Bless me, what a rush some of those decree signers get into once in awhile. Thank you for the information."

"You are quite welcome, admiral. Good-by."

"Good-by."

They Objected.



"I didn't know that monkeys were so intelligent as they are," said Mrs. Shadyside to her husband.

"The monkey is a very intelligent bird," said Mr. Shadyside.

"I took the children to the zoo in Highland park this afternoon," she went on, "and I saw this exhibition of monkey's intelligence. A keeper noticed a man hand something to one of the animals through the grating. Everything was perfectly still and the monkey who had received the offering was enjoying it. When the keeper stepped up to the man and tapped him on the shoulder, at the same time whispering something to him. Instantly there was the greatest commotion in that cage you could imagine. Every monkey began to vociferate loudly. The din was terrific. The animals were expressing their displeasure in no uncertain tones. It was easy to see that something had annoyed them excesively. I followed the keeper out and said:

"'I beg your pardon, but what made the monkeys begin that terrific noise?'

"'They saw me tell that man not to feed them,' the keeper replied.

"'But I didn't hear you say anything,' said I.

"'They didn't either, but they recognized the motion, and they knew I had often made persons stop feeding them. They were giving me a piece of their mind, but I don't care. I'm used to their scolding. Beside, if we let visitors feed them they will become ill. Their stomachs are easily upset and we are obliged to be careful.'

"I had no idea that monkeys were so intelligent, had you?" Mrs. Shadyside concluded.

"Well, I told you it was my opinion that the monkey is a very intelligent bird," replied Mr. Shadyside.

POINT BREEZE.

Personal Liberty.

Archbishop Ireland in North American Review.

A man's right to work is one of the most intimate rights of his being. It is the right to the exercise of his mental and bodily faculties. It is more—it is the right to his life, which depends for sustenance on the fruits of his labor. It is for the same reason the right of his wife and children to their lives. Of this right no man can, with any shadow of equity, deprive another; neither can any man by his own authority dictate to another when and how this right is to be used, else this other were his subject, his slave. And when, in order to deprive a man of this right, violence is done to him and bodily injury inflicted, then there is no measure to the injustice put upon him; all semblance of liberty is effaced; physical force becomes the ruling law in the relations of man to man.

When Martial Law was "Declared."

From the London Financial News.

When the news of the declaration of martial law at the Cape was received in London, a stock exchange runner rushed up to a well-known foreign broker who was standing on the steps of his office and exclaimed, "Martial law's been declared!" Whereupon the foreign broker turned to his partner and said, "Go up stairs at vonce, and see if ve haf got an aggount oben vith Marshall Law."

PERSONAL.

Col. Samuel Moody, assistant general passenger agent of the Pennsylvania lines west, left last night with several members of his family for Florida, where they will spend the winter. Col. Moody has been in poor health for several months, but hopes to return in the spring as vigorous as of old. Mrs. Moody, Miss Olive Moody and Mrs. Ira F. Mansfield accompanied him. The party left in a special car over the Pennsylvania at 9 o'clock. San Lucie, Fla., is their destination.

J. C. Fender, president of the Keystone Bridge Company of Philadelphia, and a former Pittsburgher, was a passenger west on the Pennsylvania limited last night. "We fusionists at Philadelphia were astounded by Allegheny county's vote Tuesday," he said. "We had expected quite the reverse, and when the news from Pittsburgh began to come in we quit counting. How do we feel over it? Oh, the general impression is that it means harmony in the future for the Republican party in Allegheny county. There seems to be little use of the fusionists attempting to fight any further. Allegheny county voters evidently are weary of dissensions and have concluded to work for the best interests of the whole party. Over in Philadelphia we feel that if Allegheny county is willing to accept the ripper we should not object."

E. E. Cline of New Philadelphia, O., former district manager of the American Sheet Steel Company, was at the Monongahela house last night. Mr. Cline said the Ohio mills, both combine plants and independents, had orders now that would run them past the holidays.

Charles Ouedey of Paris is at the Lincoln.

Nicholas E. Muessig of East Liverpool O., a dealer in liquid gold for use in decorating glass and earthenware, was at the Seventh Avenue last night. "The taste for gold decorations on everything, from furniture to china, was never stronger with the American people than it is this year," he said.

A pleasant theater party from Connellsville saw Joseph Jefferson at the Alvin last night. In the party were Mr. and Mrs. R. Marietta and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. Streewagon, Misses Rose and Eddie Streewagon, Misses Theresa and Rose Soisson, and A. D. Soisson.

Industry of a Tiny Bird.

From the Chicago Chronicle.

One of the most industrious of birds is the wren. Its industry is probably due to its appetite, which is seemingly insatiable. It seems to be always hungry and is ever on the alert for means to satisfy the cravings of its appetite.

This is the season of the year when the city man returns from his two weeks' outing in the woods primed up with more accumulated knowledge than the good old "man with the hoe" has been able to acquire in a lifetime. One of him who has been spending his vacation time in Virginia is here with details as to the abnormal craving for food displayed by young wrens. He found a nest and took up a position where he could watch at his leisure. The mother wren made 110 trips to the nest within four hours and a half, and this was the bill of fare which the three baby birds consumed:

Twenty green caterpillars, 16 May flies, 29 unidentified insects, 11 worms, 2 bugs, 10 grasshoppers, 7 spiders and a chrysalis or two.

The National McKinley Memorial.

From Public Opinion.

Remembering the fate of similar projects in the past, every one who wishes to contribute to either or both of the most important memorials to President McKinley should do so at once. The Canton memorial will commend itself to many, but there are good reasons why Washington should contain a worthy monument to the late chief executive. It is proposed to erect such a monument in the form of an arch at the Washington end of the memorial bridge which is to connect the capital city with Arlington—a plan earnestly commended to congress by Mr. McKinley as "a monument to American patriotism." The William McKinley National Memorial Arch association, of which Secretary Gage is treasurer, asks subscriptions for this project, and it should receive immediate and hearty response. It will speak poorly for the sincerity of our regard and regret for President McKinley if the plans for the Washington and Canton memorials are allowed to drag for years for want of financial support.

The Glaciers Are Going.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

According to Prof. Forel, who has made a special study of the Alpine glaciers during the past 25 years, the day of the glacier is gone. They are deteriorating slowly, but with steady persistence, and diminution becomes more marked from year to year. There is only one exception to this rule—that of Bovier, in the valley of Entremont, which since 1892 has shown continuous growth. The famous glaciers of the Rhone have shrunk 758 meters since 1874, or an average of 29 meters a year. Many have so changed during the past few years that old tourists after a few seasons of absence have failed to recognise them. Some hotels, once standing in the immediate proximity of glaciers, are now at considerable distance from them—to the serious loss of the proprietors.

WHEN IDA PUTS HER ARMOR ON.

When Ida puts her armor on
And draws her trusty blade,
The turnips in the bin turn pale,
The apples are afraid,
The quiet kitchen city wakes
And consternation feels,
And quick the tocsin pealeth forth
In long potato peels.

When Ida puts her armor on
The pots and pans succumb,
A wooden spoon her drumstick is,
A mixing pan her drum;
She charges on the kitchen folk
With silver, tin and steel;
She beats the eggs, she whips the cream,
The victory is a meal.

When Ida puts her armor on
Her breastplate is of blue
(Checked gingham ruffled top and sides),
Her gauntlets gingham, too;
And thus protected from assault
Of batter, stain and flour,
She wars with vegetable foes
And conquers in an hour.

When Ida puts her armor on
She is so fair to see
Her battle with the kitchen folk
Is reproduced in me;
So sweet she is, armed cap-a-pie,
So good her kitchen art,
I hardly know which loves her best,
My palate or my heart.

Commander Brown Thinks West Virginian May Enter President's Cabinet.

HE BELIEVES SECRETARY LONG WILL RESIGN

The "Hero of Samoa" Talks About National Affairs and Is Pleased With the State's Progress and Prosperity.

BY ED. M. HEERMANS,
Staff Correspondent.

FAIRMONT, W. VA., Nov. 6.—Commander R. M. G. Brown of the navy, who became celebrated several years ago by an achievement at Samoa during a great storm, is stopping at the Lantz hotel in this city. Commander Brown made a sail out of his sailors during the storm, by sending them into the rigging, where by the force of the wind against their bodies, his vessel and several others were saved from shipwreck. Commander Brown married a daughter of the Hon. Henry G. Davis of West Virginia, chairman of the United States delegation at the American states conference in the City of Mexico. Being a brother-in-law of Senator Elkins, and an enthusiastic Republican, as well as a man well versed in public matters, the intimation coming from Commander Brown in regard to the selection of Congressman A. G. Dayton as secretary of the navy carries much weight with it. Commander Brown was born and reared at Morgantown, and has been there on a visit. I had a long talk with Commander Brown today, and he mentioned several topics of great interest to West Virginians, as well as to others.

In speaking of naval matters, Commander Brown said he had no doubt but that Secretary Long of the navy was desirous of resigning his portfolio. Owing to family afflictions and the great expense of being a cabinet officer, he wants to return to his lucrative practice as one of the leading lawyers of New England.

West Virginia Has the Man.

"In case of his resignation, which seemed probable, it naturally occurs to navy people to think about his successor. As the president has just appointed Judge Darling from Vermont as assistant secretary, it would seem that he intends to select either a western or southern man as secretary of the navy."

ALSTON G. DAYTON,
Philippi (W. Va.) Republican Member of Congress from Second District.

Commander Brown thinks that as West Virginia has a man who probably knows more about the navy than any other man in public life, it would seem that West Virginians ought to all unite in favor of the selection of Alston G. Dayton for secretary of the navy, because of his great services on the naval committee for the last twelve years, and especially his carrying through congress what is officially known as the personnel bill, but which is generally called in the navy the Roosevelt-Dayton bill. The friendship between the two men naturally leads one to believe that Mr. Dayton would be a favorable candidate for this office. The nomination of Mr. Dayton as secretary of the navy would be a graceful recognition of West Virginia, as well as the whole south. Under the leadership of Senator Elkins, Mr. Dayton materially aided in bringing West Virginia in to the Republican column, where no doubt she will remain.

I asked Commander Brown in regard to the conference of the American states in the City of Mexico. The commander said:

"I have just returned from seeing Senator Davis and my own family off for a visit of probably some months. Senator Davis is the chairman of the United States delegates to the American states conference. They have arrived safely and the conference is now in session.

Small Republics Are Jealous.

"Of course, the great jealousy existing in the republics of South and Central America against what they call the great republic of the north, makes it very delicate business to come to a reasonable agreement. They generally think that we want to dominate over them. Of course, this is exactly what Mr. Blaine tried to do away with."

"Commander were not you in some way connected with that commission in 1889?" I asked the "hero of Samoa."

"Yes, I was appointed by the president as executive and disbursing officer of a great commission, of which Mr. Cassatt was president, to make a preliminary survey for a railway to Bolivia, thus connecting our railway systems of the north with those of Argentine. This survey was made in a satisfactory manner."

"Commander, what have you to say in regard to the resignation of Mr. Cridler, the third assistant secretary of state?"

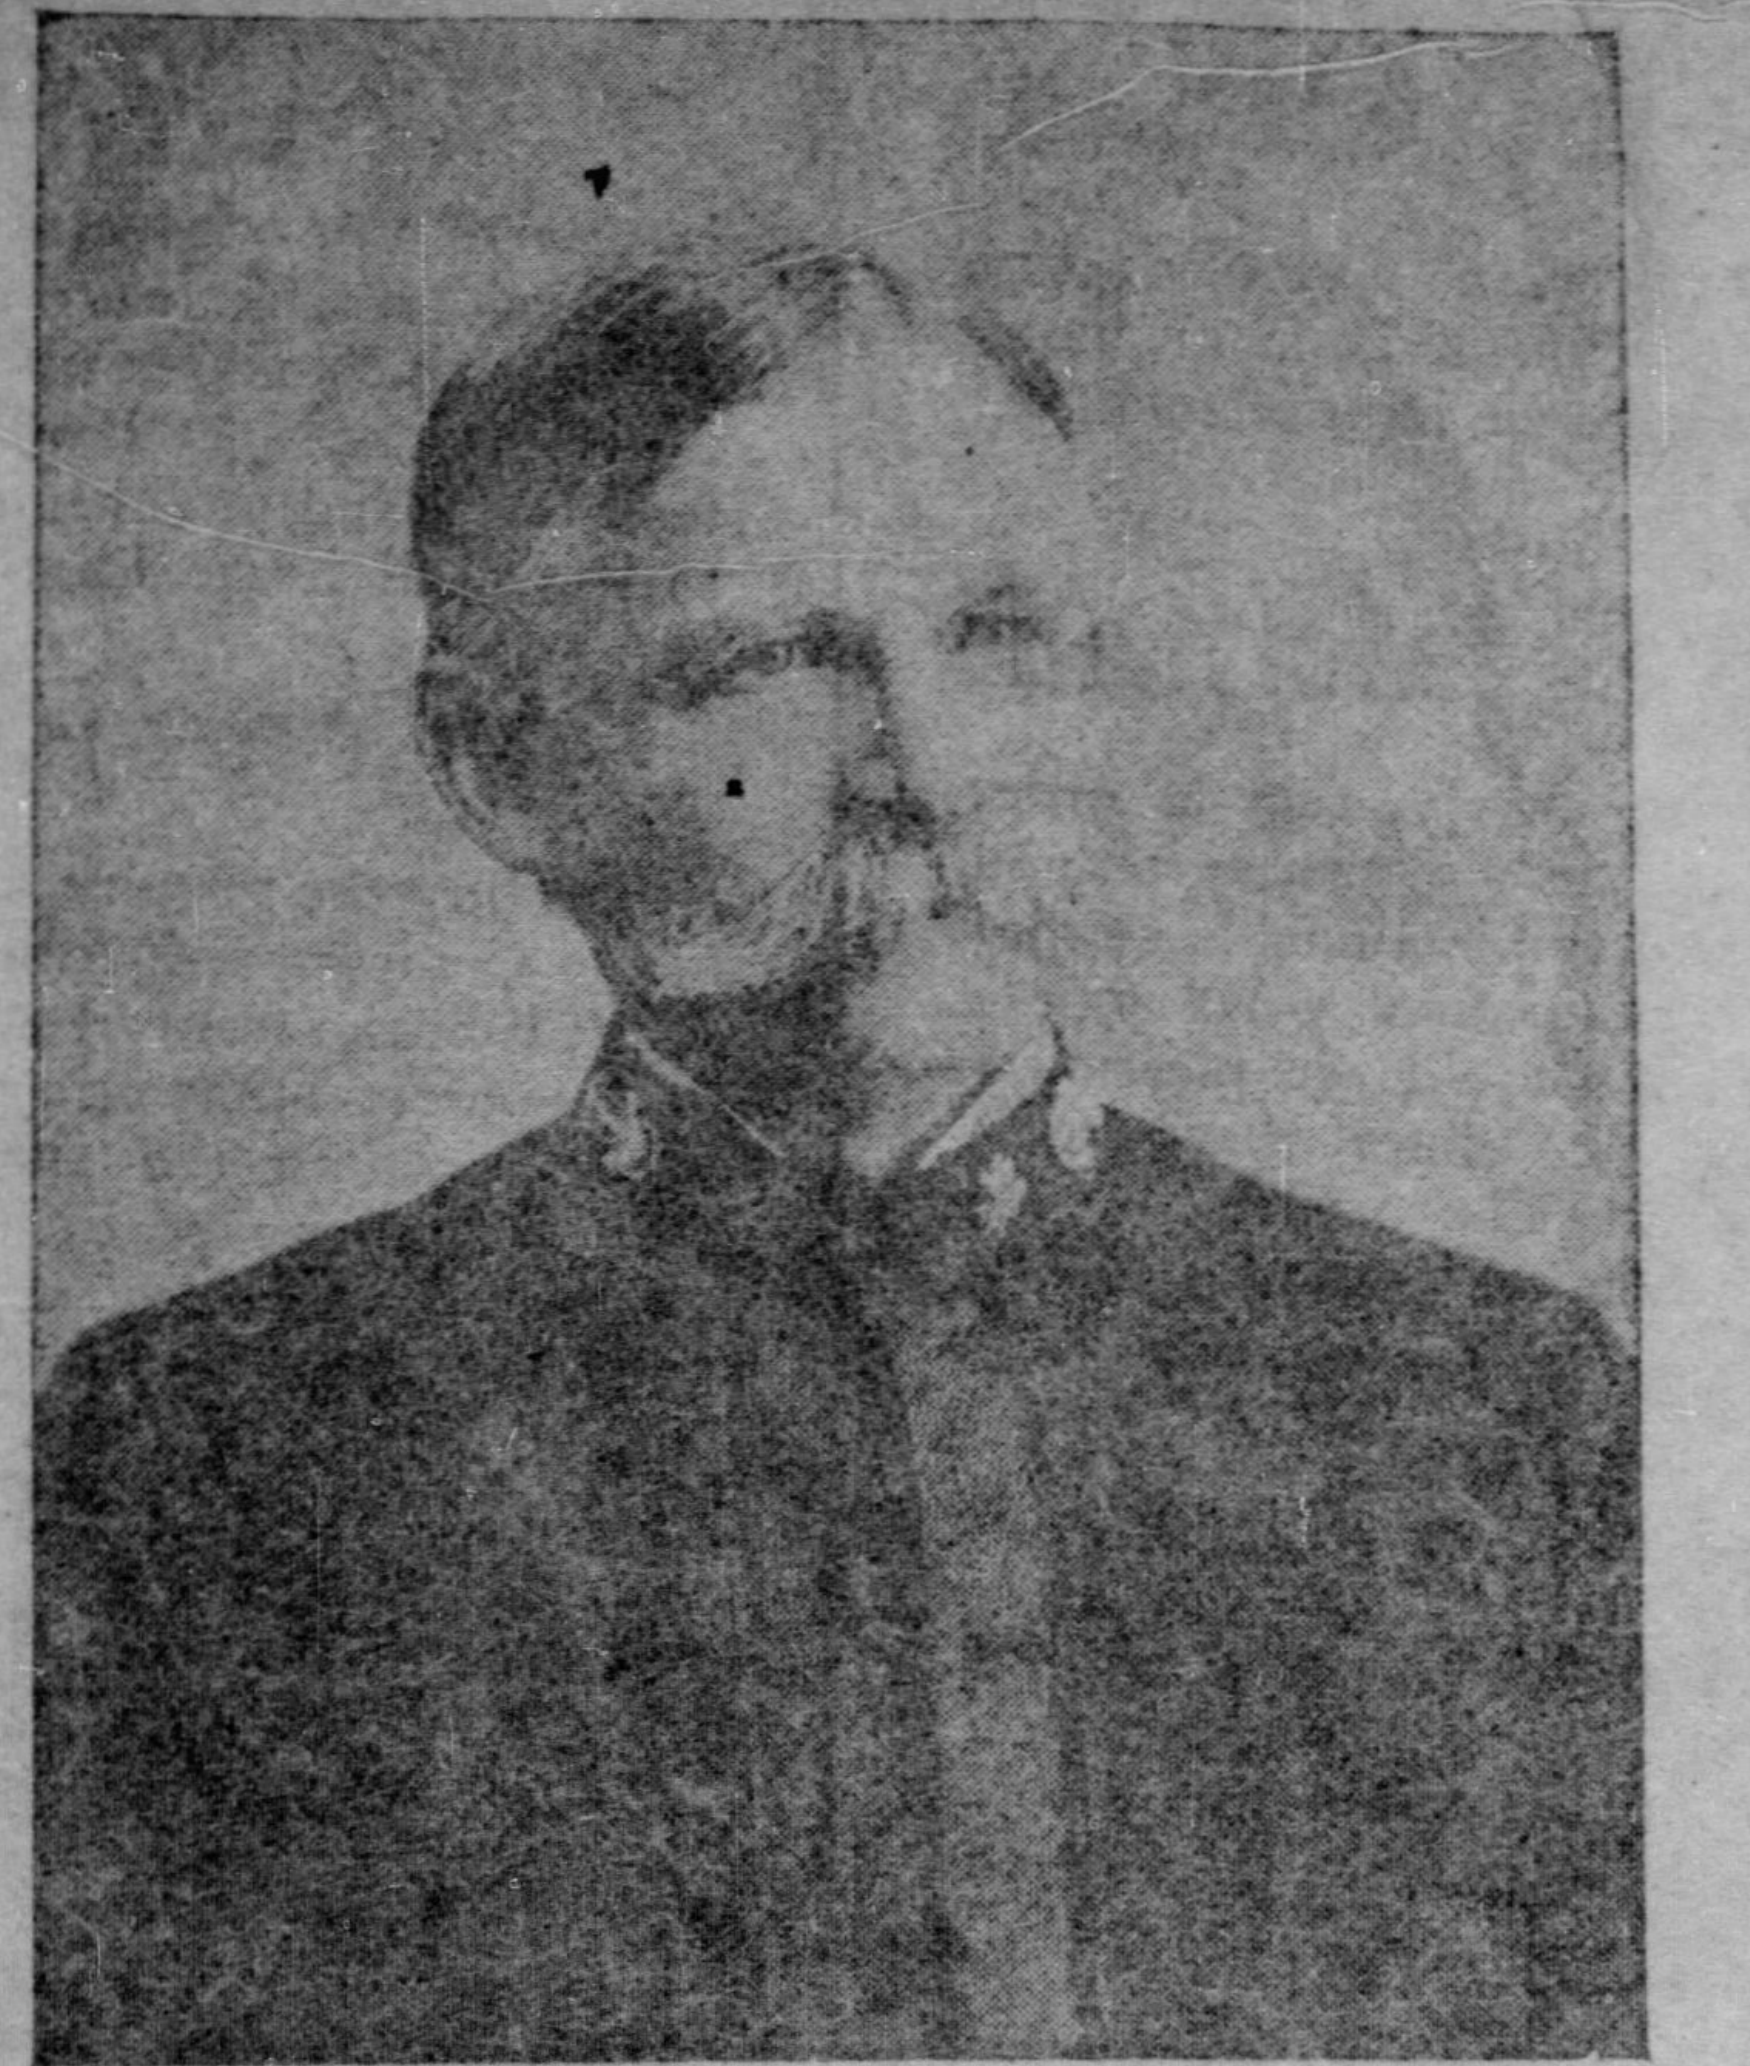
"I have known Mr. Cridler for many years," replied Commander Brown, "and not only have I admired him because he was a West Virginian, but because he has been one of the most obliging officers of the government. The newspaper talk in regard to his dismissal is ridiculous. Mr. Cridler has served nearly forty years in the state department, and about six months ago his health broke down, and he is now given a most honorable position with more than double his past pay. This will probably enable him to retire with a competency, and as a man that all West Virginians ought to be proud of."

"What are your views in regard to the Nicaragua canal?"

Advantages of Nicaragua Canal.

"In May, 1884, I made a very bitter report against the Panama canal. All reports previously had been favorable, but I exposed the rottenness of the DeLesseps management, showing that they had expended half the money, which was $120,000,000 to build the canal, and had accomplished at that time only one-third of the work. Now, in regard to the Nicaragua canal, while it is very much longer, it has the advantage of a great lake on the top of the mountain. Thus furnishing water to feed the locks of both sides."

"What do you think of the general prosperity of West Virginia, which is now attracting the attention of the entire country?"



COMMANDER R. M. G. BROWN, U. S. N.,
Hero of the Samoan Shipwreck and a Native of Morgantown, W. Va.

"I don't believe, after having traveled over all the world, that there are any people that has improved in the last 30 years like our own people in West Virginia. Of course it is rather a delicate thing to say, but the truth is that while the men have improved morally and intellectually, they have not improved in any way corresponding to what our women have improved. Thirty years ago our women thought if they had a decent calico gown on they were dressed well enough to go to church on Sunday. Nowadays when their daughters and their granddaughters go to church on Sunday they are gowned so well that they compare favorably with women in cities like Washington and New York.

"The wonderful growth of West Virginia is due to a few men belonging to ourselves, who have opened mines, made railroads and developed the great wealth of the country. We are indebted to men like Senator Camden, Henry G. Davis, Senator Elkins, the Watsons and Flemings in this city, and many others who have risked their capital in the development of West Virginia's resources. They have turned barren hills into gold mines.

Fairmont's Future Assured.

"Fairmont has improved marvelously during the past five years. It was a revelation to me today when I saw the crowded streets, the busy merchants, the vehicles without number, the street cars, and all the modern improvements. I wondered, in walking over the city, if the people really appreciated what the Watsons and Flemings and others have done for this section. There is a tendency in this age to decry and defame capitalists. The average person does not realize that the capitalist risks everything in his investments, while the tradesmen and workmen profit by their success with no risk whatever.

"I see that the miners here live in comfortable houses, furnished almost luxuriously. That they earn good wages and receive in all a quarter of a million dollars each month in cash from the Fairmont Coal Company. They appear to be better contented and are working more days at better wages, the year round, than the miners in localities where strikes are frequent.

"Let me predict, now that I am upon a subject which interests me, that of the development of my native state, that Fairmont will become a metropolis. Nothing can prevent this city from advancing rapidly, unless, perhaps, labor strifes should put an end to this constant stream of fortune which is coming into the coffers of every merchant, dealer and tradesman in Fairmont."

AMERICAN BANK WANTED.

Commissioner Rockhill Trying to Get One in Shanghai to Receive Indemnity Money.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—W. W. Rockhill, who represented this government in the final settlement with China, had a conference with Assistant Secretary Taylor of the treasury department today in regard to the representation of the United States on the commission of bankers, which by the terms of the final protocol, is charged with the duty of receiving and paying over to the several governments in interest the sums to be paid by China as indemnity. These payments will cover a period of 39 years, and the protocol provides that the several sums and interest shall be paid monthly to a commission of bankers at Shanghai, each member representing one or more of the beneficiary powers.

As there is no American bank in Shanghai, the question arises as to who should represent this government on the commission. The American consul at Shanghai recommends that the British Shanghai bank be designated to act for the United States, but Mr. Rockhill does not favor that suggestion. His visit to the treasury department was to ascertain whether or not the feasibility of an American banking institution in China of undoubted strength and recognized standing might not be considered by leading financiers at this time. The matter will receive the consideration of the treasury officials. The shares of the United States in the indemnity to be paid by China is about $25,000,000 with 4 per cent interest.

New Savings Company Organized.

The NORTH AMERICAN SAVINGS COMPANY completed its organization yesterday afternoon at the office of Lyon, McKee & Mitchell.

The capital of this institution, which is chartered under the trust company laws of Pennsylvania, is $350,000, also a paid-in surplus of $70,000.

The officers elected were W. M. Laird, President; Francis J. Torrance, Xavier Wittmer and J. W. Walker, Vice Presidents, and W. P. Fraser, Secretary and Treasurer.

The Board of Directors consists of the following men: W. M. Laird, the shoe merchant; Francis J. Torrance, Vice President of the Standard Sanitary Company; Xavier Wittmer, President of the American Gas Company and the Wittmer Brick Company; J. W. Walker of the Pittsburgh Construction Company; H. Walton Mitchell of Lyon, McKee and Mitchell; Owen McCann, the Market street merchant; J. W. Cheswright manager of the Fleming Drug Company; E. C. Weaver of Weaver, Costello & Co.; H. C. Bair of Bair & Gazzam; Dr. H. W. Urling, the well-known dentist, and David Dickson of the Diamond market.

The banking room will be located at the corner of Fourth avenue and Market street and extensive alterations are being made, which, when completed, will be one of the finest furnished rooms in the city.

There are over 200 subscribers to the stock, among whom are many merchants and trades people, which insures the bank a large commercial business from the start. In addition to this the savings feature of the bank will be made a specialty and the outlook for the success of this institution is very bright, indeed.

DEFINITE CANAL OFFER.

Panama Canal Company Has Been Awaiting Colombia's Consent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—President Hutin of the Panama Canal Company finally has submitted to Admiral Walker, head of the isthmian canal commission, a definite proposition on behalf of his company for the acquisition of all its rights by the United States government. The Panama Company has been restrained up to this moment from submitting a direct proposition owing to a clause in the concession which it holds from the government of Colombia, which prescribes forfeiture of the concession as a penalty for the making of an effort by the company to transfer its rights to another government.

In some way the Colombian government has been induced to wink at this technical violation of the concession. Its terms are not yet disclosed, and it is probable that they will not be until the isthmian canal commission publishes its report. It is understood, however, that they are considerably more favorable to this government than were the figures given to the president three years ago.

As Motherhood Approaches.
It is when the experience of maternity comes to women that they sustain their severest natural shock.
There is no time in a woman's life like that just before the experience of motherhood. At this time the blood must be rich and pure, the nerves calm and healthy, and all the organs of the body vigorous and strong.
This condition is assisted and brought about more successfully by JOHANN HOFF'S MALT EXTRACT than by anything else. It is the ideal strength builder and the weakest woman will find it delightful to take.
Johann Hoff's Malt Extract is Nature's perfect ally, because it always assists the assimilation of food, and with its help all the nutritive elements in food are made active and useful.
The care women take of themselves at this time reflects over their whole lives, and no stimulants which react should be used. It is the general strength which needs fortifying, and JOHANN HOFF'S MALT EXTRACT does this perfectly.
No woman need be unprepared for this great trial when she can so easily prove to herself the efficiency of JOHANN HOFF'S MALT EXTRACT, which for many years has done a glorious work in building up the weak by natural means.
Dr. Wm. N. Bradford of Cambridge, O., writes:
"JOHANN HOFF'S MALT EXTRACT is a certain tonic and invigorator. It imparts energy and vivacity and supplies resistance to fatigue."
Beware of imitations put up in bottles of the same shape and general style as JOHANN HOFF'S. Get JOHANN HOFF'S and you will not be disappointed. At all druggists and dealers.

I gave him Ripans, and now he would not be without them in the house. They kid me about Ripans, because no matter who comes in the house that has any kind of pain I give them a Ripans. I do not know what I would do without them. I have got all the family to taking them.

POOL LEADERS WILL CONFER

No Notable Price Changes Expected on Principal Steel Lines.

THE CAR SHORTAGE IS EMBARRASSING

Many Furnaces Suspend for Lack of Coke—Bonus Paid for Prompt Bessemer Iron—Price Advance in Foundry Iron.

Associations dominating prices in the leading lines of iron and steel production will meet today in New York. The associated producers of rails, structural material, plates and bars, will be represented. It is possible that the anticipated advanced price on steel rails may develop at the meeting, though it is unlikely. This matter will probably go over for some time. Prices in other lines will hardly be disturbed.

The engrossing issue of the iron and steel interests of the Pittsburgh district is the car shortage that has enforced the shutdown of more than a score of important blast furnaces and which threatens to cut off production at steel mills.

There is no immediate promise of relief. It comes at an unfortunate time. The furnaces and mills are crowded with orders and the enforced idleness of important blast furnace interests has seriously complicated the general iron and steel situation.

The shut down will run the business now placed into next year for delivery. Producers are not anxious to avail themselves of the price advance that seemed to be dictated by existing conditions. However, a bonus of 50 cents a ton is covered in contracts for Bessemer pig deliveries before the end of the present year.

Extensive New Contracts.

Many new contracts for reasonably prompt shipment have been placed at as high as $15 75 at the valley furnaces, or $16 50 at Pittsburgh. Much new business has been taken in the past 10 days at $15 25 at the valley furnaces on time deliveries.

Through the lack of coke arising from the car shortage two of the Carrie group of furnaces, four or five of the Carnegie furnaces, at Bessemer, three at Sharpsville, seven in the district at Youngstown, O., four in the New Castle district, and one at Hubbard, O., are closed. One of the furnaces at Duquesne and the Clinton furnace in Pittsburgh are expected to close in a short time.

The enforced closing of these blast furnaces emphasizes a pronounced lack of railway facilities in the Pittsburgh and adjoining districts. The railway facilities are seriously inadequate in main lines as well as terminals and in car and motive power requirements.

On Tuesday The Gazette announced that 18 furnaces had been forced to close. A mention of "50" was a slip intended for five. The 18 specified have a combined output of about 5,000 tons, mention of "three" being another slip intended for "these."

Eastern District Drawing.

A further draw on the output of the Pittsburgh and valley furnaces comes from the district east and beyond Harrisburg. This is unusual, and contributes to the complications by reason of the coke shortage forcing the merchant furnacemen to throw many of their plants idle.

Curtailment of the pig iron output has further increased the selling rate of forge iron. Several thousand tons were sold in the past week at prices advancing from $14 25 to $14 75 a ton.

Foundry iron amounting to 25,000 tons has been sold at Pittsburgh in the past two weeks. This aggregate has been reached through a rush of the foundrymen to cover their wants for a longer period than usual.

The sales were made at an advanced price, contracts for delivery running through the first half of next year being made on a basis of $15 25 a ton, and as high as $15 40 for the No. 2 grade. Included in this business is some for prompt shipment. It was placed as high as $15 75 a ton. Foundry iron is extremely hard to get before the close of the present year.

Through the activity of a number of new producers of wire nails the price has been forced down fully $4 a ton in the past fortnight. Other lines of the leading producer have been little affected.

Catching Up With Orders.

The American Tin Plate Company and the American Sheet Steel Company have been catching up with the business delayed through the steel workers' strike. This is reflected in reduced prices on stock shipments. A short while ago the American Tin Plate Company had business placed the early part of the year to deliver. Now the company is understood to be in position to take a limited amount of new business for delivery before the end of the year. The American Sheet Steel Company has recently covered orders placed as early as June and can now take new business for the lighter gauges of sheets for delivery in six weeks or more, while orders in the heavy gauge have to wait from 12 to 15 weeks.

The domestic producers of ferro manganese have not yet met the reduced prices of the foreign product delivered in this market. The leading producer here still holds to the price of $52 50 a ton while the imported product laid down here sells at $50 a ton. The leading producer of this district has placed much of its output with the affiliated concerns of the United States Steel Corporation.

The steel scarcity continues pronounced and prompt billets are extremely hard to get at $27 a ton for the Bessemer product. Time orders for next year's delivery can still be placed as low as $24 50 a ton, with the open-hearth product $1 a ton higher.

The steel rod market outside of the affiliated interests continues fairly active and the independent mills have business ahead for six weeks. The price for Bessemer rods holds at from $33 to $34 a ton.

Muck Bar Market.

The muck bar market continues strong enough to hold the price at $29 75 a ton. Common bar iron is selling actively at $31 a ton, Pittsburgh.

Pronounced activity continues in the skelp market. Contract sales are being made at from $1 85 to $1 95 for 100 pounds of iron skelp and $1 70 for steel skelp.

Additional orders for steel rails, including those of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Southern Pacific railroads, have been placed, running the aggregate for next year's delivery to near 2,000,000 tons. This includes the deliveries that will be carried over from this year. Girder rails are being quoted at from $36 to $38 delivered. Other rail prices are as follows: Rails, 8 pounds to the yard, $46; 12 pounds, $37; 16 pounds, $36; 20 pounds, $36; 35 pounds, $34; medium sections, $30; standard sections, $28.

The plate market is more active, the American Shipbuilding Company having apportioned part of its contemplated contracts. The Pittsburgh producers in the week past took on fully 10,000 in new business. Prices are: Tank plate, $1 60 a 100 pounds for plates up to 100 inches in width and 5 cents extra a 100 pounds for wider sizes; flange plates, $1 70 a 100 pounds; stillbottom steel, $1 90 a 100 pounds; locomotive firebox, not less than $2 and higher; 2-10-inch plates, $1 a ton extra; gauges, Nos. 8 and 9, $2 a ton.

Week's Structural Sales.

Pittsburgh producers of structural material sold over 12,000 tons in the past week. The mills have caught up but little on their orders for four months ahead. Prices remain: $1 60 a 100 pounds on beams, channels, angles and zees; tees, $1 65 a 100 pounds; beams, from 13 to 24 inches, $1 70 a 100 pounds.

Merchant bar consumers placed nearly 8,000 tons of new business with Pittsburgh producers in the past week. The minimum price remains at $1 50 for 100 pounds, with half extras.

With the price of the Tin Plate Company held at $4 for 100-pound box for the first quarter of next year, delayed deliveries still make it possible for the jobbers to secure substantial premiums. Stock tin plate for prompt shipment cannot be bought at less than $5 a box.

Stock sheets are likewise bringing cut material premiums. The price of the leading producer, based on $3 10 for the No. 28 gauge, rules only at mill for orders of 500 bundles or more, an average of 150 pounds to the bundle and fully two cars. The selling price for less than carloads of sheets from stocks is based at $3 50 for the No. 28 gauge.

Crucible Quotations.

Activity continues pronounced in the finer lines of merchant and crucible steel. Prices on cold rolled shafting are being maintained at 55 per cent off the list in less than carload orders and 60 per cent off on more than carlots. Other merchant steel quotations remain: Tire steel, $1 60 for 100 pounds net; toe calk, $1 90 net in carlots; open-hearth spring, $2 to $2 10; Bessemer plow slabs, $2 base; lay steel, $2 25; rolled lay steel, $2 50@2 75; tool steel, $7 and upward, according to quality.

The scrap market is participating in the general activity. A new combination to control prices has been formed in the west, but is not participated in by Pittsburgh dealers. Sales here in the week past were over 4,000 tons. Prices are: Old steel rails, $17 a ton; old iron rails, $19; heavy steel melting stock, $16 50@17; No. 1 wrought iron, $17 50@18; cast scrap, $13 75@14; turnings, $11 50@12; borings, $8@8 50.

The hardware trade is active in all lines. Revised prices are as follows: Carlots of wire nails to jobbers, $2 20, Pittsburgh; to retailers, $2 30; plain wire, carload lots, is quoted at $2 20 to jobbers and $2 30 to retailers; galvanized No. 9 wire, $2 70 in carlots and $2 80, less than carlots. Cut nails are held at $2 10 in carlots and $2 20 in small lots, Pittsburgh, with 2 per cent off in 10 days. Steel horseshoes are $3 30 for 100-pound kegs, and iron $3 50; carriage bolts, 65 per cent off; stove and tire bolts, 75 per cent off list, f. o. b. on stock shipments.

OUTPUT SHORT OF DEMAND.

Manufacturers Are Unable to Get Enough Billets and Pig Iron for Their Requirements.

(By Private Wire to Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Iron Age will say tomorrow:

The strength of the situation is indicated by a number of facts. The steel works of the country in the months just ended have broken all records of production, yet their output falls short of the demand. Steel consumers in notable instances are in distress because they cannot obtain a sufficient supply of billets to meet their current requirements. We may be obliged to import billets to a considerable extent until either the consumption diminishes or new steel works now under construction get into operation.

That the demand for pig iron is also outrunning the current production is shown by the steady diminution of stocks at the furnaces. The stock held by the leading producer of foundry pig iron has been depleted more than half since July 1, the reduction in October having been greater than in any of the preceding months. Other producers report a similar experience. The opening days of November have brought no tidings of a falling off in the demand for pig iron, but, on the contrary, the tonnage being daily booked is up to the October average. When southern gray forge pig iron is being sold in round quantities for shipment to Youngstown, it indicates a significant shortage in that locality.

The difficulty in securing coke because of a shortage of cars or insufficiency of locomotives, is now affecting blast furnaces so near the great coke region as the Mahoning and Shenango valleys. It can scarcely be believed, however, that the situation of these furnaces is as serious as reported in the daily papers. Strenuous efforts will certainly be made to overcome such a difficulty. Nevertheless, it is obvious that the equipment of the railroads is not equal to the traffic which they are now being called on to move.

The shortage in the corn crop, which had been expected to cut down the business of western railroads quite considerably, has been more than made up by the record-breaking movement of general merchandise.

Prices are generally stationary, although it is believed advances could easily be made and maintained on a number of products now in heavy demand. Makers, however, especially the largest, appear to be of the opinion that while the market might bear some advance, yet it would not be wise to take a step which might check consumption or cause projects to be deferred that will readily be undertaken on the present basis of costs. The only direction in which any tendency toward lower prices is observed, is in wire nails. The decline is sufficient, in connection with the high cost of steel, to cause the small manufacturers to begin to drop out of the race.

Heavy transactions in both Bessemer and basic pig iron have occurred in eastern markets. One customer is understood to have bought 25,000 tons. The demand for heavy melting steel scrap is in excess of the home supply, and figures are being made for importation.

A WEEK OF CELEBRATION.

Third Anniversary of House of New Covenant Mission to Jews to Be Observed.

The House of the New Covenant Mission to the Jews, under the direction of Maurice Ruben, will celebrate its third anniversary throughout the week, beginning December 9. The first day will be marked by special services at the mission house in Congress street. On each of the following days there will be a special service in some one of the Protestant churches of the city.

This celebration is intended primarily to bring the work of Christian teaching among the Jews to the attention of the public and awaken an interest in the work. Since its founding, three years ago, the Congress Street mission has made remarkable progress. Not only have many Hebrews in Pittsburgh and its vicinity been brought under its influence, but branches have been established in many other cities.

As the direct result of the work of the local mission, Friends of Israel unions have been established in the following places: Cleveland, O.; Altoona, Pa.; Jamestown, N. Y.; Buffalo, N. Y.; Bradford, Pa.; Youngstown, O.; Canton, O.; Akron, O., and in Canada, at St. Thomas, Brandtford, London, Hamilton, Peterboro, Toronto and Kingston.

During the past month Mr. Ruben has been traveling in New York and has organized Friends of Israel at Utica, Rochester, Troy and Oneida.

HEARD COURT'S ORDERS.

Illinois Board of Equalization Prepared to Assess Capital Stocks of Corporations.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Nov. 6.—The state board of equalization held a short session this forenoon and listened to the reading of the writ of mandamus granted by Judge Thompson last Saturday to compel the board to assess the capital stocks of 21 Chicago corporations which have escaped taxation.

Service was secured by the sheriff on Chairman McCullough, and this service was accepted by the other members of the board. The capital stock committee will make the assessment as soon as Chairman Barnes recovers from an attack of illness.

MONEY WAS REFUNDED.

New Trial Formally Refused in Attorney L. C. Barton's Case.

Lowery C. Barton, the local attorney, who was convicted of a charge of larceny a few months ago, was refused a new trial in criminal court yesterday. Barton was charged with embezzling the proceeds of a life insurance policy amounting to almost $5,000 from his sister-in-law, Isabella Barton.

An application for a new trial was made and the argument was to come up yesterday. Barton's attorney informed the court that the money had been refunded and that no argument for a new trial would be made. The motion was then formally refused by the court.

An argument was made on the motion for a new trial for George Merriman, who was convicted of a charge of voluntary manslaughter for killing Martin Reilly in Ferry street in July. It was held by the defendant's attorney that the court erred in stating before the jury that Merriman could make no plea of self-defense. No decision was made.

DAVIS ESTATE CONTEST ENDS

Closing Arguments Before Judge Hawkins on Mrs. Davis' Claims.

SOME OF THE TESTIMONY IS RIDICULED

Attorney Robertson Contends There Was a Wedding, While Attorney Petty Claims Evidence Proves C. L. Davis Never Married.

Arguments were made yesterday in orphans court before Judge W. G. Hawkins upon the claim of Catherine A. Huddleston for an interest in the estate of the late Charles L. Davis, upon the ground of their marriage August 28, 1898. Attorneys James A. Wakefield and S. S. Robertson represented the claimant. Attorneys S. A. Johnston and R. B. Petty appeared for the estate.

Attorney Robertson said the contention that the marriage was an impossibility should not be treated as important, as it was bolstered up by Mrs. Morris E. Moses. As to the testimony of William Adams, the property man at the Alvin theater, the attorney declared it would be folly to believe it. In conclusion he referred to the evidence to show that Davis had not introduced Miss Huddleston as his wife prior to the date of the alleged marriage.

Mr. Petty began his argument by taking up the testimony of the witnesses, declaring it was a common thing for Davis to introduce actresses as his wife, and said the admission to Adams by the claimant that she ought to have married Davis on his death bed was ample proof that there was no matrimonial relations between the couple. He termed the story of the marriage as ridiculous, as the alderman who is supposed to have performed the ceremony without a license knew the law, nor is it conceivable why it should have been performed on that particular Sunday with undue haste. The lawyer said there cannot be any doubt but what Miss Huddleston wanted the estate, as she declared, "Everything is mine" after Davis' death. He referred to the claimant being known around the theater as "Kitty old girl," and referred to her as a cool, calculating woman. He contended that there must have been a marriage ceremony or contract, which he denied took place, and that living together was not marriage, but only a circumstance from which a marriage may be presumed. In conclusion the attorney held there was a lack of evidence from witnesses living near the Huddleston home to show the alleged marriage relations.

MAY BE SOLD TODAY.

Judge Shafer Refuses an Injunction to Stop Sheriff's Sale of Monongahela House Property.

Judge J. D. Shafer refused the motion for a preliminary injunction in the equity proceedings of Florence C. Miller against J. Denniston Lyon and Frank Sample, trustees under the will of Charles J. Clarke, to restrain the defendants from selling the Monongahela house property on a mortgage of $35,000 held by them until the final termination of partition proceedings now pending. Upon the foreclosure proceedings the sale was adjourned from Monday until tomorrow. In the partition proceedings the court named November 26 next as the date of sale, but yesterday's decision means that the sheriff will tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock expose the historic hostelry at public sale in the corridor of the court house.

Upon the contention by the plaintiff that the defendants are not acting in good faith and are endeavoring to take the property, the court says Miller is not entitled to any relief upon this ground. The court further says the pendency of the petition is no reason why any of the tenants in common may not convey his interest, either to some of his co-tenants or to a stranger. Nor is there any legal reason why the claims of his co-tenants against him may not be enforced by a judicial sale of his interests.

As to the sale under the partition, the court says it does not seem that the defendants could possibly be prejudiced as trustees if they would postpone the sale to the next term, and if the plaintiff would pay the interest and attorney's commission, so as to relieve the trustees on the score of expense, it seems, the court says, the trustees would be fully justified in staying the present writ, and postponing the sale to the next term, in case a sale of the whole property should not be effected by the master; and that they would be relieved from the imputation of using measures which might be deemed harsh and oppressive, although within their strict legal rights.

In conclusion Judge Shafer said: "Entering into, however, the views of the law, we deem it unnecessary to discuss the question of jurisdiction, and are of the opinion that the motion for a preliminary injunction must be denied."

DILWORTH CASE UP.

Two Important Appeals Argued in the Supreme Court.

Two important cases were argued in the supreme court. One was that of Dewitt Dilworth against Arthur Kennedy and Francis J. Torrance, an appeal by the defendants from a decree of common pleas court No. 3. The court found that Kennedy holds 1,833 shares of stock, worth $50 a share, in trust for the plaintiff, subject to the payment to him of $22,912 50. The bill was dismissed as to Torrance.

Another case of interest was that of John Mellon and others against the city of Pittsburgh and others, an appeal by the plaintiffs from a decision of common pleas court No. 3, in dismissing a bill in which it was asked that the defendants be restrained from levying a special school tax in the Eighteenth ward. Other appeals heard were:

Orphans Court—Appeal of Marie Simonds from a decree in the estate of George W. Simonds; appeals of William T. Buckner and A. B. Schaffner from the audit in the estate of James H. Hays.

Common Pleas No. 1—Louis Wemer Saw Mill Company against C. B. Fessee & Co., appellants, an action on an account.

Common Pleas No. 2—Harvey D. O'Neil and others against the city of McKeesport, appellant, an action over the possession of a strip of land.

Common Pleas Court No. 3—Raymond Heh, appellant, against the Consolidated Gas Company, an action to recover damages to property by reason of a gas explosion.

LEFT LARGE ESTATES.

Several Wills Filed Leaving Property to Decedents' Family.

The will of Marie E. Steinmeyer, late of Pittsburgh, was filed. The estate is valued at $145,000. The property at Forbes street and McKee place is bequeathed to Annie Hoffman, a daughter. After the following bequests the residue of the estate is left to the decedents, three children: Elizabeth H. H. Hoffman, $6,000; Maria Miller, $500; Mrs. Henry Kalmyer, $500; Annie Neilaus, $1,000.

By the will of Mary F. Patterson, late of Allegheny, an estate worth $75,000 is left to the decedent's three children.

Mary C. Rambo, late of North Versailles township, by her will, left an estate worth $1,900 to her son.

By the will of Mary B. Wallace, late of Shaler township, Richard W. Wallace, a son, gets $500, and the balance of a $8,500 estate goes to her husband and two other children. Attorneys Jackson & Lang represent the estate.

RECALLS MINE DISASTER.

Two Damage Suits Entered Against Yough-Mon Coal Company.

Two suits filed against the Yough-Mon Coal Company in the United States circuit court for damages growing out of an explosion in Elsworth mine No. 1, in Washington county, on November 20, 1900. Mary Keples, the widow of John Keples, a miner, who was killed in the explosion, and John Stieh, a miner, who was seriously injured, each asks for $10,000 for alleged negligence in placing men in an old room where gas was known to accumulate, and where explosions had frequently occurred before.

There are 70 cases on the trial list for the November term of the United States circuit court, which opens Monday. Of these 37 cases are those brought by a number of independent oil dealers against various railroad companies under the authority of the interstate commerce commission, for discrimination in freight rates. Nine other cases are by Frank J. Hearne against different insurance companies, to recover $50,000 fire insurance.

Frank Geoglie wants $5,000 damages from the Consolidated Traction Company for the death of his daughter, who was struck by a car while crossing Main street.

Mary O'Donnell asks $3,000 damages from the Monongahela Street Railway Company for injuries received while alighting from a car at St. Clair street and Fifth avenue.

Jacob W. Zimmer says that he was struck by a car of the United Traction Company while crossing Sandusky street, Allegheny, and was seriously injured. He asks $25,000 damages.

Mrs. Sarah Bear says that while alighting from a United Traction car in Western avenue, Allegheny, the car started before she had reached the ground and she was injured. She asks $5,000 damages.

In the United States district court application was made for a formal decree in the bankruptcy case of A. Groetzinger & Sons. Objections were filed to the decree, however, and the court made no decision.

An answer was filed by the libellant in the divorce case of C. R. Notman against Isabella M. Notman. The husband says $200 counsel fees is excessive, and the demand for this amount is only an effort to have him abandon the suit.

An affidavit of defense was filed in the case of the Duquesne Supply Company against the Duquesne Supply Company to restrain the defendant from using its present name. It is stated that the intention to use the name was thoroughly advertised.

Jane Reid asks $5,000 damages from the United Traction Company for injuries received. She says that her shoulder was broken and her hands injured by being struck by a car while she was riding a bicycle in Braddock avenue, Braddock.

The master in the divorce case of Maud Saunders against Harlan A. Saunders, recommended that a decree be granted. They were married August 3, 1894, and separated July 7, 1895. For a time they lived with the respondent's mother and Mrs. Saunders says she was compelled to leave because of her mother-in-law.

William W. Spence and wife ask damages aggregating $4,400 from the Drake & Stratton Company, contractors, for the death of their son, Robert T. Spence, aged 15 years. The boy was fishing about 400 feet from lock No. 4, when a charge of dynamite was exploded. A rock struck the boy on the head and killed him.

In the suit of Augusta L. Coursin against Amy R. Blair, an action to compel the defendant to give the plaintiff a certificate for having passed through a course in physical culture, an answer was filed in which the defendant claims that the plaintiff was negligent with her lessons and did not complete her course of instruction. She also denies that the plaintiff will be unable to secure a position without having a certificate.

Teams Fight Over Football Officials

TROUBLE OVER THE OFFICIALS

Wash-Jeff and Bucknell Split on Who Shall Preside Over Their Game.

POE AND JACKSON HAVE BEEN NAMED

Bucknell's Selection Does Not Suit the Washington County People. The Homestead Stars Will Try to Wipe Out Lalus' Touchdown.

There was the liveliest kind of a row on between the officials of the Washington & Jefferson and Bucknell football teams over the selection of the men who are to preside over their contest which takes place at Exposition park on Saturday next. Both sides are warmed up over the matter, but the chances are that when the question is given serious thought there will be a compromise and further trouble averted.

It seems that when the game between the teams was decided upon there was an agreement or an understanding that each team was to be entitled to the selection of one of the officials and the man named one who had some standing in the football world. The matter of naming these officials was put off until this week and now there is a serious hitch. The Washington & Jefferson people submitted the names of Arthur Poe of the Homestead Stars and Dr. Roy Jackson, the former coach and manager of D. C. & A. C. Both of these are well known experts of the game and would make first class officials. The Bucknell officials have sent in the name of a man who is practically unknown in football and that is where the kick is, the W. & J. people saying they will not consent to the stranger acting in an official capacity, and the Bucknell people insisting on their right to name one man. It is likely that a meeting will be held today and the matter cleared up.

Two Well Matched Teams.

The game between the college elevens on Saturday promises to be a very warm affair. Judging the teams by the records made so far this season, they are pretty evenly matched and the contest should therefore be one worth looking at. George Haskins, who was with P. A. C. for a couple of years, has charge of the Bucknell team, and those who remember eGorge know that he is the kind of a coach to produce a fighting spirit among his players. Bucknell was turned out such well-known players as Christy Mathewson and Weymouth, who is Yale's star this season, and they send word that there are men on the team who are equally as good as that pair of stars.

The Washington & Jefferson team is so well known hereabouts that little need be said regarding it. This season's eleven is a very strong one and has been taught a few tricks by the team's coaches. Its record this season is a very clever one and the players are determined to place a Bucknell scalp in their trophy room. When the team reaches here on Saturday it will be accompanied by about one-half the population of Washington county, and that Washington county crowd is a hard one to beat in the rooting line. The eleven has been in secret practice for over a week and word is sent here that the players are in first class shape and ready for the hardest game Bucknell can put up.

A strong desire for revenge is the cause of the arrangement of another game between the Homestead Stars and the Lalus eleven. That touchdown that McChesney scored for Lalus when the teams met over at Exposition park three weeks ago still rankles in the breast of the Stars, and they are more than anxious to wipe out that stain on their record. The game between the teams was arranged yesterday and it will be played at Steel Works park, Homestead, on Saturday afternoon.

The Stars Enjoyed a Day of Rest.

Davy Fultz and his players were about yesterday in good shape and not one of them was any the worse for wear from the election day game. As was stated yesterday the Stars did not attempt to make the pace, but for the Brown team, in fact, very few mass plays were tried. That love for their old college was largely the reason for this, and none knew it better than the 'varsity players. Manager Fultz decided to give his players a day's rest so that regular practice was called off and the majority of the players spent the day inspecting the monster plant at Homestead. They will be at it today, however, and Manager Fultz is likely to make up for lost time.

AFTER TEAM WORK.

WASHINGTON, PA., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—The Washington and Jefferson football team had a good practice at college park this afternoon. A squad of thirty men was out in uniform and the practice lasted about two hours. Some of the regular 'varsity men are laid up from the game last Saturday, and a change was made in one or two positions. Schrontz, the big end, was placed at tackle. McKeever and Francis played the ends and both did well. None of the men with the exception of Heimberger are seriously crippled and all should, barring accidents, be in good condition for the game with the Bucknell eleven next Saturday at Pittsburgh. There may, however, be a shakeup in some of the positions, and W. and J.'s line may be considerably changed next Saturday.

The coaches this week are paying especial attention to the team and interference work, and it is claimed that the Bucknell team which bases its hopes of winning principally on the team work, will be matched by the team playing of the local kickers. The 'varsity this afternoon had no difficulty in going through the strong scrub eleven for gains, and scored almost at will. Especial attention was given to kicking and Forkum is improving considerably along this line.

Coach Knight will institute secret practice on Friday and the team and rooters will go to Pittsburgh confident of winning. Manager Craig has made arrangements for a special train to Pittsburgh on Saturday morning, and a large crowd of Washington people will attend the game.

POOR OLD ALLEGHENY.

This Time It Was Grove City's Eleven That Sent Her Team Down to Defeat.

GROVE CITY, PA., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—Allegheny college failed to score against Grove City to-day, the final score being 12 to 0. Allegheny was outclassed throughout, and but for adverse decisions of Referee Weil the local score would have been doubled, he on one occasion giving the ball to Allegheny on downs when the locals had gained a yard over their distance, and when they had the ball within 15 feet of Allegheny's goal line. For the locals Seanor, Kelly, Locke and Campbell played a fine game, the latter having runs of 25 and 30 yards and one of 50 yards for a touchdown. Williams, Taylor and Turney carried off the honors for Allegheny. Grove City scored one touchdown in each half, and the game ended with the ball in their possession on Allegheny's 20-yard line. The line-up:

Grove City—12.		Allegheny—0.
Wilson	R. E.	Taylor
Day	R. T.	Campbell
Rhodes	R. G.	Lampe
Thomas	Center	Beyer
Miller	L. G.	McCourtney
Stewart	L. T.	McQuiston
Campbell	L. E.	Fletcher
Larimer	Q. B.	Moss
Kelly	R. H.	Ashley
Seanor	L. H.	Turney
Locke	F. B.	Williams

Touchdowns—Campbell and Seanor. Goals from touchdowns—Locke, 2. Subs—Taylor for Fletcher, Harper for Taylor. Referee and umpire, alternating—Calderwood and Weil. Time—25 and 20-minute halves.

LEAGUE NAMES THE NEW CLUB

CARNEGIE COMPANY TEAM TAKES HOMESTEAD'S PLACE

The Basketball League Is Now Complete and Ready for a Busy Season. Robert Kelley Selected as Referee-Umpire—The Schedule Committee Is at Work Arranging Playing Dates for the Team.

There was a meeting of the Western Pennsylvania Basketball league yesterday at President Barbour's office and the Carnegie Steel team was admitted to take the place of H. L. A. C., making the league complete, with a membership of six teams. The complete list of clubs includes D. C. & A. C., Allegheny, Pittsburgh, Sharpsburg, Carnegie Steel and Bellefield.

After the admission of Carnegie Steel President Barbour appointed a schedule committee, composed of Messrs. Kelly, Roberts and McFadyean. This committee and the rules committee, which was appointed at a previous meeting, were requested by the president to report at the earliest possible moment.

Good Official Selected.

A matter of great importance which came up was the selection of a referee-umpire. On this question the league members seemed to be a unit and the unanimous choice resulted in the election of R. L. Kelley to fill this important position. There will also be a substitute chosen for any emergency that may arise.

Carnegie Steel, the new member, was selected out of quite a number of applicants after the membership committee had duly considered the prospects of the different clubs. The new member gives promise of being a strong organization, the players having earned good reputations with the best teams in the east. They are all employes of the Carnegie Steel Company, and employed in the offices of that company in this city. Mr. Charles Westlake, who will manage the team, was a member of the Twenty-third Street, New York, Y. M. C. A. He is himself a good player, but has not yet decided to don basketball togs and may be contented with attending to the managerial end.

The rules committee was appointed some time ago, but has been unable to make much progress because it has been unable to secure a National league guide. The schedule committee is to confer with Manager Conant of Duquesne Garden relative to the opening date, also to the length of the season and the number of exhibition games to be played. It is the wish of the league to bring on the strongest of the eastern teams and in this matter the wishes of Mr. Conant are to be sought.

Clubs Must Post a Forfeit.

The clubs will be expected to post a forfeit to guarantee their fidelity to the league and the garden and this matter was referred to the rules committee, which will report at the next meeting. Judging from the harmony that prevailed at the meeting the matter of a forfeit seemed an insignificant matter, but the managers are anxious to give form to their good intentions.

The selection of Robert Kelley as referee-umpire was unanimous and the league is to be congratulated. Kelley has proven his efficiency and his work has always given satisfaction. This is not the first honor that has been conferred this season upon "King Kel." He was the choice and was selected by the Inter-Collegiate league, composed of Geneva, Allegheny and Westminster colleges, to fill a similar position. The league will meet in the near future at the call of the president.

BETS VERY SCARCE.

Men of Money Are Not Putting It Up on the Big Fight—Ruhlin Has Friends.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Nov. 6.—Advices from Harbins Springs show that Jeffries, before he stopped sparring, had perfected himself in stopping dangerous blows. Armstrong, his sparring partner, was instructed to smash away at him with full force, and, though many of his blows reached Jeff, they did no damage because of his clever block.

Only a few bets have been registered on the outcome of the Jeffries-Ruhlin bout up to date. This is due to heavy betting on the mayoralty election. Now the probabilities are that betters will turn their attention to the coming battle and the odds will be figured out. Naturally, the champion will be the favorite, but, strange to say, the sporting men in the east, who have seen the best work of Jeffries and Ruhlin, are inclined to favor Ruhlin. Men like Jimmie Wakely, Pat Sheedy, Al Smith, Honest John Kelly and others who wager large sums on pugilistic events, intend to send a commission to the coast, and to a man they are going to bet on Ruhlin.

The demand for seats for the fight is very heavy. Large parties are coming from all coast cities, and the crowd promises to be greater than that which witnessed the memorable fight between Fitz and Sharkey.

GRIFFITH TO RETIRE.

The Well Known Pitcher Ready to Quit the Game.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—(Special.)—It is probable that next season will wind up the baseball career of Clark Griffith, captain and manager of the champion White Stockings, and one of the premier pitchers of the game. Griffith has been in the game a long time, and his intimate friends say he is making his arrangements to quit the diamond at no far distant day and retire to his Montana ranch. Griffith left tonight for Montana, accompanied by his wife, and will probably remain there the major portion of the winter.

STILL KICKING ON THE STARTS

It Was So Bad That the Poorest Horses Proved to Be Winners of Events.

FOUR FAVORITES WERE AT THE FRONT

Sparklet, Who Got Much the Best of the Start in the Third Race, Proved a Fine Thing for the Short End Men.

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Four favorites, one second choice and one outsider won at Aqueduct today and close followers of form had a fairly profitable day. Two and perhaps three of the six races were not true run, however, as the starting was again woefully bad. In two cases the race was practically decided as the barrier flew up.

The third race at five and one-half furlongs furnished the worst start of the meeting. Sparklet, second choice, at 16 to 5, was off running three or four lengths in front, while the remainder were srtung out for a hundred yards. This advantage enabled her to win, but she had to be ridden out to get the decision by a scant half length from the favorite, Early Eve. Summary:

First race, 7 furlongs, selling—Francesco, 106, Cochran, 1 to 2 and out, won; Tenagra, 99, Redfern, 12 to 1 and 4 to 1, second; Mary Worth, 111, Bullman, 10 to 1 and 3 to 1, third. Time, 1:29 1-5. Shandonfield, Lady Sterling, O'Hagen, Playlike, Locket, Blue Ridge and Gibson Light also ran.

GOOD HORSE GONE.

Robert Waddell May Never Face Starter Again.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Robert Waddell, winner of the last American Derby, and one of the most popular 3-year-olds the turf has known, broke down badly in the fourth race at Lakeside this afternoon, and may never face the flag again. The only other starters in the race at 1⅜ miles were Searcher and Frangible, the former alternating with Waddell in the lead for the first six furlongs, when the latter halted in his tracks, and Searcher won by eight lengths from Frangible. The nature and extent of the injuries to Robert Waddell have not been determined fully, but it is believed they may be so serious as to terminate his career. The accident was the feature of the day, and seemed to detract from the interest in the rest of the program. Summaries:

Object to Telephone Poles.

NEW CASTLE, PA., Nov. 6.—Judge Wallace of Erie is today hearing arguments and testimony in the legal fight of the city to prevent the Bell Telephone Company from placing poles on streets, other than those already occupied. The defendant company filed a bill asking that the injunction be dissolved and another granted, restraining the city from chopping down more poles. Citizens say they will chop down the poles, regardless of the action of the law, if they are erected before their homes.

YALE'S MEETING WAS A FIZZLE

THERE IS A LACK OF FOOTBALL ENTHUSIASM AT OLD ELI.

H. S. McClintock, the Pittsburgh Boy, Has Been Selected as Team's Regular Fullback — Harvard's Practice Was Hard and the Team Is Ready for Pennsy — There Was a Battle Royal at Princeton — Other Teams.

(Special to the Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Nov. 6.—Although much advertised, the mass meeting held at Yale this evening to arouse football enthusiasm was almost a fizzle. Not more than 500 undergraduates were present, and the arrangements were so poorly carried out that no graduates were present to make speeches.

Although the undergraduates did not turn out this evening to support the team, the old "grads" did turn out this afternoon. For the first time this season Walter Camp was on the gridiron this afternoon as a coach.

Mr. Camp said: "Whatever spare time I have will be devoted to the Yale team from now on." "Billy" Bull and Frank Butterworth both came up from New York again today to assist in the coaching.

The feature of the practice was the great improvement in the punting. H. S. McClintock of Pittsburgh, the junior who was tried for a short time at fullback yesterday, this afternoon got off some first-class kicks, one of which covered 50 yards. "Billy" Bull is devoting all his time to McClintock and declares that he is the best punter at Yale this fall. McClintock has been selected as the team's regular fullback.

Word was received this evening from Frank Hinkey, the famous captain of the '93 and '94 elevens, that he will be here tomorrow to remain until the end of the season. Hinkey is one of Yale's best coaches and a man whose advice is considered of the very best.

Harvard's Last Hard Practice.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—Harvard had her last day of heavy work before the game with Pennsylvania today. Although somewhat shorter than usual the play was full of snap and life, the team keeping up its good work of yesterday and presenting a strong defense against the scrubs. Throughout almost the entire practice the ball was in the possession of the second eleven, yet they were utterly unable to make any impression on the 'varsity line. Once they were given the ball on the 'varsity's one yard line. It took two downs to get it over and then the score was made by only a few inches.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—A royal battle took place this afternoon on the Princeton gridiron between the regular 'varsity and scrubs, the score at the end of the two 15-minute halves being 5 to 5. The work of the 'varsity was very discouraging. The old fault of fumbling was more than ordinarily frequent. On two occasions, after plowing through the scrub line for short gains, the ball was lost on the five-yard line. The fumbling was not the fault of one, but of the whole of the 'varsity back field.

In the first half the scrubs played all around the 'varsity, both on the attack and on the defense. They held the 'varsity line for consecutive gains. In this half, with a special formation the scrubs took the ball on the 50-yard line, and by onslaughts on the 'varsity tackles, drove the 'varsity back to their 10-yard line. These gains were the best seen on the gridiron this year.

Cornell Team at Work Again.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—The first scrimmage since the Princeton game found the Cornell football warriors in first rate condition. Barring Coffin, who is confined to his room with a slight attack of tonsilitis, there is not a cripple on the list. Today the 'varsity got down to work again with considerable determination, and completely outclassed the scrubs, scoring four touchdowns in 20 minutes of play.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—E. A. Newton, prominent center of last year's scrub team, joined the Pennsylvania squad on Franklin field this afternoon. Newton is one of the heaviest men playing football. He weighs 235 pounds and will be a candidate for guard.

The work today on the field, as usual, was secret and there was nothing startling in the practice except that the scrubs was able to tie the 'varsity. Three times the plucky second eleven carried the ball across the first team's goal line, Townsend, Maxson and Keller being the scorers. The 'varsity was only able to score a light number of times.

TO WORK AMONG RIVER MEN.

Allegheny County Women's Christian Temperance Union Plans to Hold Meetings.

A committee of nine rivermen, representing Harbor 25, American Association of Masters and Pilots, met last night in the Curtis home, in Fulton street, with a committee from the Allegheny County Women's Christian Temperance union. They discussed the temperance meetings, which it is proposed to hold among rivermen. The committee was appointed, in response to a request, from the committee on work among soldiers and sailors.

The idea of the temperance workers is to hold a meeting in the hall used by Harbor 25, at which, it is hoped, many of the members can be induced to be present. Last night the entire matter was discussed and the committee will report favorably. In case Harbor 25 agrees with its committee, several big temperance meetings will be held in the Iron Exchange building.

The committee included Capts. J. A. Clow, R. W. Cowan, Albert Miller, Holmes Harger, Jr., Allen Harger, William Blackstock, S. R. Dawson and Harry Black. If the meetings with masters and pilots are successful, the temperance workers hope to hold similar gatherings among the marine engineers, deck hands and all employes about the river, each branch of which has its own association.

POOR WILL BE HOUSED.

Attempt to Stop Work on the Potter County Building Frustrated by Judge Weiss' Decision.

HARRISBURG, Nov. 6.—(Special.)—Judge Weiss handed down an opinion today dismissing the application made by certain taxpayers of Potter county in the name of the commonwealth to restrain the poor directors and county commissioners from building a poor house. An election was held recently at which the proposition to erect a poor house was carried by a majority of 600, and subsequently the contract for the building was awarded at a cost of $65,000. When the building was about one-third completed and bonds had been issued to pay for it a question was raised as to the legality of the election and the matter was taken into the courts.

Judge Weiss decided the election was lawful, although the ballots cast may have been irregular, and says more harm would be done and inconvenience caused by granting the injunction than by refusing it. He decides also that the issuing of the bonds is lawful and binding upon the county and dismisses the bill at the expense of the complainants.

On the way to the department Mr. Schwab entered the White House and paid his respects to President Roosevelt. He was cordially received and invited to remain to luncheon, which he did and forgot all about his appointment with Secretary Long until it was too late for him to go. He left for New York on the afternoon train without seeing either the secretary or Admiral Neal.

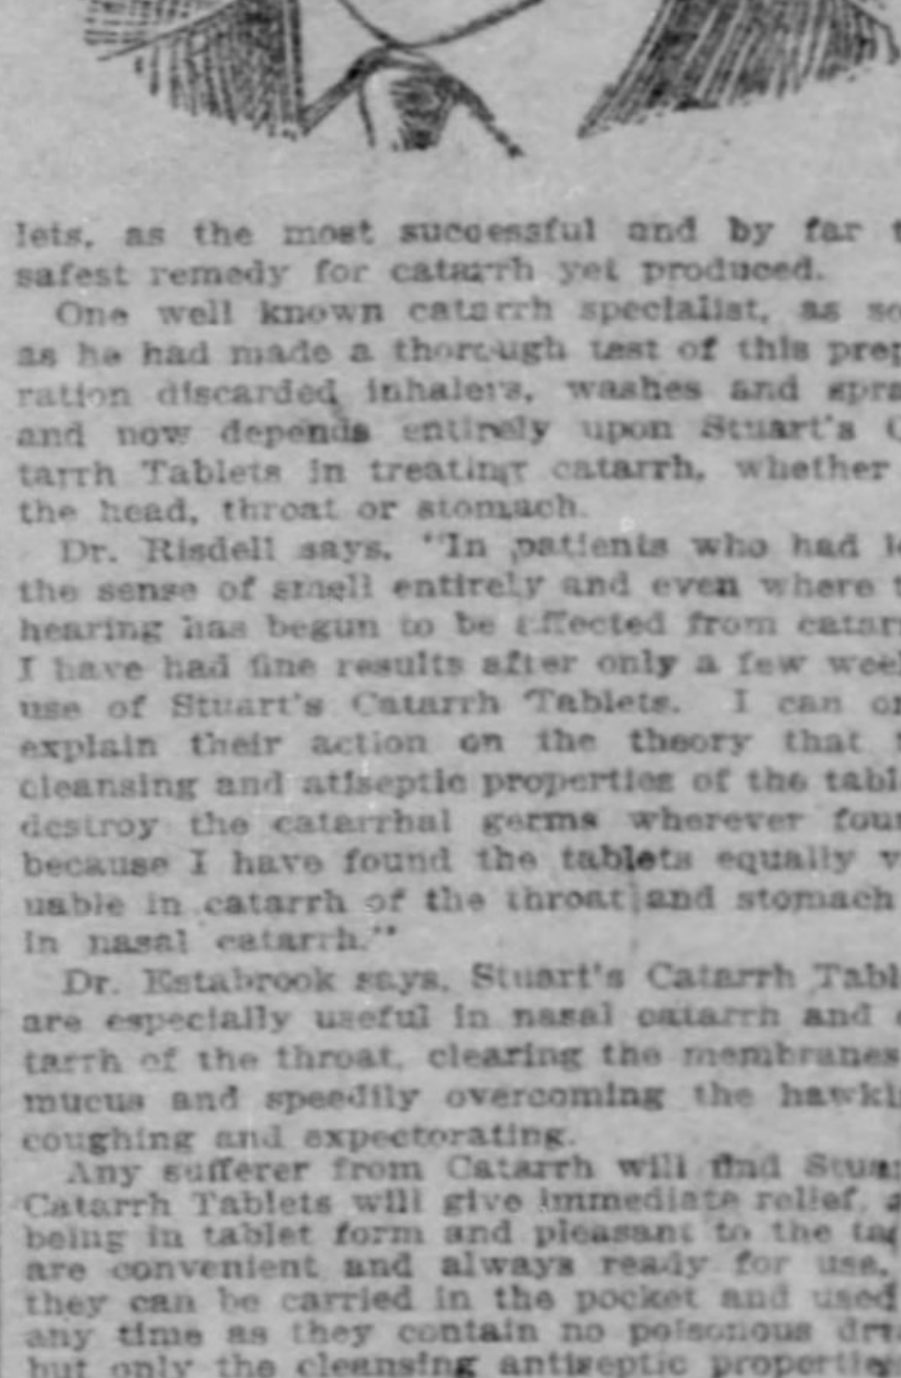
Knows No Distinction.

Rich and Poor Alike Suffer From Catarrh in This Climate.

All observant physicians have noticed the enormous increase in catarrhal diseases in recent years, and the most liberal and enlightened have cheerfully given their approval to the new internal remedy, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets, as the most successful and by far the safest remedy for catarrh yet produced.



One well known catarrh specialist, as soon as he had made a thorough test of this preparation discarded inhalers, washes and sprays and now depends entirely upon Stuart's Catarrh Tablets in treating catarrh, whether in the head, throat or stomach.

Dr. Risdell says, "In patients who had lost the sense of smell entirely and even where the hearing has begun to be affected from catarrh, I have had fine results after only a few weeks' use of Stuart's Catarrh Tablets. I can only explain their action on the theory that the cleansing and antiseptic properties of the tablets destroy the catarrhal germs wherever found, because I have found the tablets equally valuable in catarrh of the throat and stomach as in nasal catarrh."

Dr. Estabrook says, Stuart's Catarrh Tablets are especially useful in nasal catarrh and catarrh of the throat, clearing the membranes of mucus and speedily overcoming the hawking, coughing and expectorating.

Any sufferer from Catarrh will find Stuart's Catarrh Tablets will give immediate relief, and being in tablet form and pleasant to the taste, are convenient and always ready for use, as they can be carried in the pocket and used at any time as they contain no poisonous drugs, but only the cleansing antiseptic properties of Eucalpytus bark, Guiacol, blood root and Hydrastin.

All druggists sell the tablets at 50 cents for complete treatment. 117xtsg

Real Estate—Special.

WINTER HOME IN GEORGIA.

A 60-acre fruit and truck farm in Southern Georgia; it is 40 miles northeast of Thomasville and in the same belt of pine country as Thomasville; within 2½ miles of the property there is a live and growing railroad and manufacturing town, and the tract has an extensive railroad frontage, which offers unusual facilities for freight and express shipments; there is a good house of the cottage type on the place and a large, well-built barn; also plenty of good water; the whole tract is under fence, and there is enough standing timber to supply fuel and lumber for many years; about 7,000 peach and plum trees are bearing at present and are in good condition; anyone who wishes to go into the fruit and trucking business and to escape northern winters, will find this a most attractive spot; this property never has been rented; the owner, a Pittsburgh gentleman, employs a caretaker on it all the year around; we have secured a price of $5,000, which is considerably less than the property cost.

LOUD WAIL OVER THE CAR FAMINE

Prosperity Makes It Impossible for Railroads to Meet the Demand.

THE HOLDING OF CROPS PARTLY TO BLAME

New Pittsburgh Baking Company Chartered—Dividend Records of United States Steel Corporation and Standard Oil.

(By Private Wire to The Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Iron and steel interests here make no attempt to disguise their uneasiness over the shortage of cars, a condition which threatens presently to develop into a costly famine of transportation facilities. The immediate plight of the eastern steel manufacturers is embarrassing enough, but the situation begins to be utterly alarming when it is seen how meager is such relief as the railroad companies are prepared to promise.

The railroad companies, of course, are not to be criticised, as they are doing everything that lies within their power to provide cars to move the accumulated output of the steel industries and carry to them coal and coke; but to date, they have succeeded in making very little progress against conditions, which, to be sure, are abnormal and were hardly to have been anticipated. An official of one of the large transportation systems explains:

"The present volume of the country's business is so very large that the railroad companies have found it utterly impossible to satisfy all shippers. It is not true that the railroads are discriminating against manufacturers in favor of the grain states. One thousand cars loaded with grain are now on their way east, and as many of them as possible will be turned over at once to iron and steel people. In this way the situation will be somewhat relieved. It is to be remembered that the output of iron and steel this season is larger than ever before in the history of the country, and it is not strange, therefore, that the east is short of cars."

Caused Partly by Farmers.

It will be interesting to know to just what extent the present car shortage is due to the disposition recently disclosed on the part of both grain and cotton growers to hold their staples for higher prices. Cotton is now moving to seaboard in tremendous volume, but planters held it back for at least a fortnight longer than was absolutely necessary, and meanwhile, cars were lying idle in the south awaiting the pleasure of growers.

Almost precisely the same thing might be said of the western grain raisers. Thousands of empty cars have been lying idle in the west, having been sent there to be at the service of the grain movement. The railroad companies made their calculations upon the assumption that the grain would be moved east in much the same manner and volume as in other years, and although the beginning of the movement was normal enough, it was unexpectedly interrupted by the farmers themselves, who followed the example of the southern planters and were suddenly inclined to hold their grain against market developments. A vast number of cars are now scattered over the west awaiting the resumption of the grain movement, and meanwhile the iron and steel industries of the east are greatly embarrassed for want of transportation facilities.

In this connection the American Car and Foundry Company and the Pressed Steel Car Company are being operated at the extreme maximum of their respective capacities, but as compared with the urgent demand for cars their combined output is an insignificant factor of relief. Alarmists go so far as to say the iron and steel industries will suffer a severe setback until an ample supply of cars is provided forthwith.

New Pittsburgh Baking Company.

There was incorporated in New Jersey to-day the Home Bakery Company, with an authorized capital of $2,500,000. This is a Pittsburgh concern. The incorporators are Robert L. James, 207 Arch street, Allegheny; Charles A. Moore, 4744 Liberty avenue, Pittsburgh, and William L. Donahay, 1985 Main street, Pittsburgh. The information available here in respect to the plans of the company is very meager. All that is definitely known is that it will operate for the time exclusively in the Pittsburgh district. It is understood, however, that the Home Bakery Company is not in any way identified with the $3,000,000 National Bread Company, recently organized by New York interests, of whom Augustus Van Wyck was one.

Dividing the Steel Melon.

Checks aggregating $8,844,327 75 were mailed today in payment of the second quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on United States Steel preferred. These checks are drawn through the National Bank of Commerce, the First National bank and the National City bank, the former two being so-called Morgan banks and the latter a Rockefeller bank. The stock of the United States Steel Corporation is much more widely held now than was the case three months ago, and for that reason checks sent out to-day would be more widely scattered than those in payment of the first dividend; but for all that, it is not expected that the disbursements will have any adverse reflection in the bank statements this week. In a majority of instances the payment of this dividend will involve no more than the transfer of credits from one account to another in the New York banks, and at least 90 per cent of the money that goes out of New York may be expected to promptly find its way back. New York bankers count upon the return of interest and dividend money within the period of about four days.

The Standard's Dividend Record.

The directors of the Standard Oil Company today declared a dividend of 8 per cent, or $8 a share, payable on December 16 to stockholders of record at the close of business November 15. Previous dividends this year were 8 per cent declared in September, 12 per cent in June and 20 per cent in March, making a total for the year of 48 per cent, which, on the company's capital of $100,000,000, calls for the payment of $48,000,000 in dividends.

The dividend record of the Standard Oil Company for 10 years past is as follows: From 1891 to 1895, 12 per cent a year; in 1896, 31 per cent; 1897, 33 per cent; 1898, 30 per cent; 1899, 33 per cent; 1900, 48 per cent, and 48 per cent again this year, making a total since 1892 of 271 per cent, or nearly 2¾ times the entire capital. It is generally believed that John D. Rockefeller owns 40 per cent of the Standard Oil stock, in which event he would have realized since 1891 the almost incomprehensible sum of $108,400,000 in dividends.

NEWS FROM THE MINES.

Latest Finds in Gold, Silver, Copper and Other Metals in the Far Western States.

(By Private Wire to The Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Coal and iron men of Pittsburgh are reported to have paid $100,000 for the Sappan mine, in Thorn Gulch, Trinity county, Cal. The property adjoins the famous Brown Bear, which has yielded $20,000,000 gold.

In prospecting the Utah Company's ground at Tintic, Utah, a body of high grade copper ore has been opened which resembles that found in the Carisa and Centennial Eureka.

An eight-foot vein is being opened in a claim on Gold Mountain, Utah, in which there is a streak running $600 gold and 12 ounces silver to the ton.

One of the foreign miners employed in the Ready Bullion, on Douglas Island, Alaska, was caught stealing a nugget worth $1,600 a few days ago. The appearance of the pocket in which it was found indicated that another large chunk had been abstracted.

Cheyenne, Wyo., reports that a Canadian syndicate has bought the Rambler copper mine in Douglas creek district for $1,000,000.

On Raven Hill, Cripple Creek, a 12-inch vein has been exposed on the surface of the Rhinoceros that assays from $48 to $1,788 gold to the ton. The strike is near the original lode from which $100,000 was produced some years ago.

Prospectors and grub stake men are out in force on the Petrilio mountains, in New Mexico. Copper has been found in large quantities and there are gold, silver and lead deposits, which will be opened by the new Bisbee road.

The Radcliffe gold mines, in Inyo county, Nev., were recently sold through chancery or bankruptcy proceedings to satisfy three judgments aggregating about $115,000.

A strike of gold ore is reported in the old Peru mine at Unionville, Nev. The property has been operated for a year past by Surveyor General Kelly of Nevada.

Americans Opened Buoyant.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Commercial Advertiser's London financial cablegram: American stocks opened buoyant, and on the outburst of strength in this department the market hardened. Consols strengthened, but foreign issues were heavy on the French seizure of the Mitylene customs ports. Rio Tintos spurted ⅝ to 46½ with American issues, which opened strong on an unofficial announcement of a settlement of the Northern Pacific situation. The defeat of Tammany, too, had a good effect, as London regards it as having an important bearing on American credit. Good authorities say that it is the beginning of a second boom. Union Pacific led in the advance, but New York took tempting profits, causing a relapse. The list picked up on the curb after business, Atchison being a strong favorite, with big calls to the end of January at 3¼ per cent. Southern Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande and Erie were all in demand. Gold to the amount of £5,000 has gone to South America. There is continued buying of gold at 77s 11¾d. Paris exchange is 25.10½. Berlin 20.41.

Dry Goods.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Borden has announced that he will reduce wages 10 per cent on November 18. Print cloth market weaker for futures. January and February deliveries regulars sold at 3c and narrow odds on that basis. Borden paid 3⅛c for spot regulars. The market has been quite dull today in all departments of cotton goods, but no quotable change in prices. Men's wear woolens and dress goods are quiet and unchanged.

Dried Fruits.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—There was not much doing in the market for evaporated apples today, but the feeling remains quite steady at full former prices. State, common to good, 6@8c; prime, 8½c; choice, 9c; fancy, 9¼@9½c; California dried fruits were dull but about steady; prunes, 3¾@7c; apricots, Royal, 8½@13c; Moor Park, 8@12c; peaches, peeled, 11@18c; unpeeled, 6@9½c.

Heavy Dealings in Shares of Western Railways

BULL DRIVE IN WALL STREET

Imminence of Northern Pacific Settlement Spurs Dealers Into Activity.

DETAILS HAVE NOT BEEN ARRANGED

But Confidence Is Felt in the Outcome by the Speculative Community—Activity Confined to the Railroads.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Today's stock market was dominated by the authoritative admissions from various quarters that the basis had been agreed upon for the settlement of the Northern Pacific controversy, although the reports of an early official announcement were deprecated, as it was said details remain yet to be arranged. The arrival from Europe today of W. K. Vanderbilt, who was named by Mr. Morgan as the final arbitrator of any difference upon which the conciliation board of directors might not be able to come to an agreement, helped to incite the large speculative buying, which was notable among all the transcontinental railways. The dealings in Union Pacific and St. Paul were on a scale to recall the days of the stock market boom in the spring of this year, and the resulting rise in St. Paul reached 4⅞ and in Union Pacific 4½. The Union Pacific convertible bonds were absorbed at the same time on an enormous scale. In Southern Pacific the rise reached 1¼, Great Northern preferred 1¼, Atchison 2⅝ and in Northwest 3⅞. Northern Pacific preferred fluctuated narrowly, thus suggesting that its present price is near to its valuation under the plan. The southwesterns and some of the southern stocks afforded another center of activity and strength, based on the series of extraordinarily favorable returns of gross earnings for the fourth week in October. The southern railway stocks were also aided by the vote of Cincinnati in favor of extending the lease of the Cincinnati Southern. In these groups there were gains in Nashville, Manhattan and St. Louis of 3½, St. Louis & San Francisco 3¼, Southern Railway preferred 2⅞, Missouri Pacific 2⅝, St. Louis Southwestern preferred 2 and the Denver & Rio Grande stocks, Texas & Pacific, Louisville & Nashville and Southern Railway from 1⅛ to 1¾. The increase in railway earnings for the fourth week in October over those for the corresponding period of last year for Missouri Pacific reached 25 per cent, St. Louis & San Francisco 25 per cent, Louisville & Nashville 14 per cent and Missouri, Kansas & Texas 12 per cent. There were other roads with almost equally striking gains, but they did not share in the advance. In fact, outside the stocks mentioned and a few rather obscure stocks the movement of the market was sluggish and irregular with no striking show of general strength until just at the last. A number of specialties were notably weak early in the day, including Sugar, Amalgamated Copper, Peoples Gas, American Ice and Metropolitan Street Railway, but except in Sugar and Amalgamated Copper there were strong recoveries. In Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis preferred, Wells Fargo, Pacific Coast, St. Lawrence & Adirondack, Chicago & Eastern Illinois, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh and Rutland preferred there were gains of 2 to 6 points. The additional gold engagements for export had but a momentary effect on the market and the monetary situation fell into the background completely as a market factor.

The large dealings in bonds centered in the Union Pacific and other convertible bond issues and speculative bonds. Total sales par value, $6,370,000. United States bonds were all unchanged on the last call.

Foreign Bourses.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—Money was in fair demand today, apprehensions being felt that it would be more stringent after tomorrow's consols payment. Uncertainty as to the future hardened discounts.

On the stock exchange prices were a trifle steadier and business was attenuated. Consols hardened somewhat, again declined and recovered at the close. Besides the causes named, the collapse was attributed to heavy selling by American houses rather than pay up the installment due tomorrow. A further fall is considered probable in view of the conditions of money and the prospect of a further issue. Americans were the best section of the market. They were firm and quiet at the opening, pending the resumption of business in New York. Union Pacifics were the feature on the reported Northern Pacific settlement. There was little business doing, however, and the market closed irregular. Rio Tintos improved. Grand Trunks were harder, especially seconds and thirds.

PARIS, Nov. 6.—Business on the bourse opened hesitating today, but prices soon steadied and gradually improved. The whole list was affected by the strength of rentes. Prices closed firm. Spanish 4s were offered at the beginning owing to the state of exchange, but recovered sharply and closed at the highest point of the day. Turks were weaker. Industrials advanced. Rio Tintos hardened on numerous repurchases. DeBeers were strong. The private rate of discount is unchanged at 2 15-16 per cent.

BERDIN, Nov. 6.—Prices on the boerse today were irregular. Americans and Canadian Pacifics were buoyant on advices regarding the final settlement of the Northwestern deal. Locals were quiet but rather firmer. Internationals received no attention. The Franco-Turkish dispute had little effect on business.

Coffee and Sugar.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Coffee futures opened steady in tone with prices 5 to 10 points higher in sympathy with Europe, owing to a notable scarcity of selling orders. Bullish sentiment prevailed throughout the session, being greatly strengthened in the early afternoon by advices from well-known Rio and Santos houses that the drought still continued in the Santos district, and with prospects even more unfavorable. Trading was slack in the morning, but this crop news was followed by a rush of covering and investment buying, which gave the market a firm closing at a net advance of 10 to 20 points. Sales, 50,500 bags, including December at 6.05@6.20c; January, 6.15c; March, 6.35c; May, 6.55@6.65c; June, 6.60@6.65c; July, 6.70@6.80c; September, 6.90@7.00c. Metals.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—Features of importance were lacking in the market for metals today. Tin was quiet and featureless at $24 60@25 00, locally as well as abroad, where spot closed £113 7s 6d and futures at £106 10s 6d. Copper was also quiet at home and abroad, closing here at $15 85@17 00 for Lake Superior and $16 37½@16 62½ for casting and electrolytic. At London spot copper closed at £65 12s 6d and futures at £64 17s 6d. Lead was easy and is 3d lower at London, closing with spot quoted at £11 8s 9d. Here dull at $4 37½. Spelter was quiet here at $4 37½ and 2s 6d lower at London, £16 12s 6d. Domestic iron markets were without change and very quiet. Pig iron warrants, $9 50@10 50. No. 1 northern foundry, $15 00@16 00; No. 2 foundry, southern, $14 00@15 00; No. 1 foundry, southern, $14 50@15 50; No. 1 foundry, southern, soft, $14 50@16 00. PROTEST AGAINST RATES.

Interstate Commerce Commission Hears Argument on Freight Tariffs on Hay.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—The interstate commerce commission began its sessions here today and the complaint of the National Hay association that railroad rates in hay are too high were taken up at once. T. E. Goodrich, attorney for the hay association, occupied the witness stand during the forenoon and testified that the rates in freight tariffs on hay had curtailed the business of raisers to a most serious extent.

Thirty railroads which are named in the petition for a lower rate were represented by attorneys who contended that the rate is just.

WHEAT REACTS ON REALIZING

Long Holders of Cereals Take Advantage of Chance to Take Profits.

IMPORTANT BULL NEWS WAS ABSENT

Belief That Slump Was Only Temporary Caused Slight Rally at the Close—Corn and Oats Acted in Sympathy With Wheat.

CHICAGO, Nov. 6.—Liquidation for profits on the part of long holders of wheat and corn weakened the grain markets today, December wheat closing ⅜@½c lower, December corn ¼@⅜c depressed, and December oats ⅛c down. Provisions closed unchanged to 2½@5c lower.

Wheat opened strong and higher, buoyed by a strong cable list. There was a good commission house demand early, and December opened ⅛@¼c advanced, at 72½c to 72⅝c. Prices even went to 72⅞c for a few moments, but at that figure the rush of commission house orders was overcome by a general disposition to take profits. The corn market was acting in a similar manner, and when longs in both pits began to sell, and there was no important bull news to support the market, prices began to slide downward, and at one time touched 71¾c. There seemed to be a belief current that the slump was only temporary, and shorts covering brought a reaction at the close. December closing weak, ⅜@½c depressed, at 71⅞@72c. Local receipts were 135 cars; Minneapolis and Duluth reported 630 cars, making a total for the three points of 765, against the same number last week, and 1,371 a year ago. Primary receipts were only 932,000 bushels, compared with 1,445,000 bushels last year. Seaboard clearances in wheat and flour equaled 997,000 bushels.

Corn was very strong at the opening, both Liverpool cash and future cables being higher. The spot demand here was firm, and river points were still seeking to fill their buying orders in this market. This brought an opening advance for December of ⅛@¼c, at 59⅝c to 59¾c, and the rise continued up to 60⅛c. At this figure dealers in the provision pit flocked to corn to take profits and sold great quantities. The pit, however, was in a buying mood, and took all offered. Later, on the wheat weakness, this corn was put on the market and a sharp break followed. December closing weak, ¼@⅜c, at 59⅛@59¼c. Receipts were only 74 cars.

Oats were fairly active, and opened higher in sympathy with other grains and on the strong cash situation. There was considerable liquidation in this pit, but in the face of it prices held well, particularly for the May delivery, in which there was the greater trade. December opened ⅛c up, fluctuated narrowly, and closed ⅛c down, at 37½c. Receipts were 148 cars.

Provisions were heavy and dull. Prices were a trifle better at the opening, on a small demand for the short account. Hogs were a shade lower, and on liberal offerings prices reacted and closed steady. January pork closed unchanged, at $14 82½; January lard, 2½@5c up, at $8 52½, and January ribs unchanged, at $7 67½.

Estimated receipts for tomorrow: Wheat 100 cars, corn 75 cars, oats 120 cars, hogs 29,000 head.

The leading futures are corrected by Lathrop R. Bacon & Co., members of the Chicago board of trade, 209 Sixth street, are as follows:

BEATEN TO DEATH.

Buffalo Iceman Found Dying Near a Saloon.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 6.—Ernest Merkt, an iceman, was found dying in an alley alongside Frank Murphy's saloon on Alabama street early today and died before an ambulance arrived.

Murphy and a dozen other men who were about the place are under arrest as witnesses. Merkt apparently had been kicked and beaten to death.

GOOD OIL PRODUCER IN GREENE COUNTY

Developments in the Southwest Have Fallen Into Something of a Rut.

Developments in the lower southwest fields have dropped into a rut that it will take a good rain to lift them out of. In nearly all fields work is shut down on account of the scarcity of water. The prolonged drougth has left many of the West Virginia and Southeastern Ohio streams absolutely dry, and a good rainfall is the only thing that can bring relief. In the interim operators in many fields are taking advantage of the good roads to get material into the fields, and when the conditions are favorable a large amount of new work will be started.

Reports from the fields yesterday told only of light wells and dusters.

In the Fink creek development in Lewis county, W. Va., the South Penn Oil Company has completed its No. 9 on the M & B. McDonald farm and has a gasser in the Gantz sand. The same company's No. 2 on the B. Maxwell farm is one of the same kind.

North of Bealls Mills, Lewis county, J. M. Guffey & Co. have drilled their No. 2 on the John A. Collins farm through the fifth sand and have a duster. In the Sand Fork pool in the same county, the same company has drilled in its No. 15 on the James Mullady farm and has 1,500 feet of fluid in the hole. It will make some kind of a producer. In the Bealls Mills pool the South Penn Oil Company has drilled its No. 2 on the D. E. Ramsburg farm through the stray and Gordon sands and found both formations barren. It is now drilling to the fifth sand.

In the old Elk Fork development in Tyler county the Carter Oil Company has drilled its No. 5 on the Beatty heirs' farm through the sand and has a very small pumper, not good for more than 3 or 4 barrels a day.

In the old Whisky run development in Ritchie county, Spence, Smith & Co. have drilled their No. 2 on the Thomas Dye farm through the sand and have a duster. The location is 2,000 feet east of No. 1 on the same farm.

In the Pine Grove development, Wetzel county, the South Penn Oil Company has completed No. 2 on the A. B. Straight farm and has a small pumper in the Gordon sand.

Good Producer in Greene.

In the Bristoria development in Greene county the South Penn Oil Company has drilled in its No. 3 on the J. L. Pethtel farm and has a producer that placed 250 barrels to its credit the first 24 hours.

In the Mt. Morris district, Turner & McCullough have completed their No. 16 on the Daniel Garrison farm and have a very small pumper.

On Straight creek, Sheridan district, Calhoun county, Swan & Co. have completed the rig for a test well on the John A. Pepper farm.

On Steer creek, Sherman district, J. Harris & Co. are ready to start at a test well on the S. Stump farm.

Southeastern Ohio.

On the Ohio side in the shallow sand territory near Chester Hill, Morgan county, Gunsburg & Co. have completed a test well on the Dallas Devore farm and have a duster. In the same development Reynolds & Co. have completed a test well on the J. M. Geddes farm and have a duster.

On Wolf creek the Octo Oil Company has drilled in a test well on the M. B. Pugh farm and has a show for a producer.

Eachel, Ritchie & Co.'s No. 37 on the E. Bowman farm is holding up at 110 barrels a day.

P. M. Shannon has drilled his No. 44 on the Economy tract in Beaver county to a depth of 3,300 feet and abandoned it, having found nothing at the depth named. This is the well that was drilled through the 100-foot some time ago and was dry, and was then drilled on down in search of the Speechley sand, but failed to find that formation.

Producing Property Sold.

In Pleasant county, W. Va., the Octo Oil Company has sold its leases and wells on the Sol Bills, Sol Pethtel and Reynolds heirs' farms to S. Y. Rumage. There are 450 acres in the farms, on which there are 43 producing wells. The consideration, it is stated, was $175,000.

BOAT-BUILDING STOPPED.

Low Water on the Clarion Forces Industry to Suspend.

Boat builders along the Clarion river have suspended operations for the season on account of the low water and the advent of cold weather. Timber men are unable to move their logs. This will curtail the output of boat bottoms for next season. The market at Pittsburgh has been cleaned up.

Some builders do not like the introduction of Oregon fir in the local market, as barge and flat building material. It is said that when the wood is taken out of the water and exposed to the sun, it splits and does not stand the strain as well as hemlock.

Pine has always been used in the construction of barges heretofore. Coalboats are made of hemlock. The average life of a pine barge is said to be 10 years.

Pilot Charles Stewart, who was on the Iron Age, expects to go to California this winter.

Capt. Henry Wilkins, formerly of the Belle McGown, is now in command of the Cruiser.

The stage of water at Davis Island dam at 9 o'clock last night was 1.8 feet and stationary.

No name has been officially selected for the steel mill towboat being built at Dubuque for the coal combination.

Capt. John Keim will command the Alice Brown, and Capt. Frank Hyatt will walk the deck of the big J. B. Finley the coming season.

Pilots Charles Boles and John McDavid have hired with the Budd Coal Company to pilot the towboat Lookout to Louisville, on the first rise in the river, with a tow of coal.

The Ohio river continues to fall and there are no indications of a rise. The contractors working on the Ohio river dams have been making good progress, being assisted by the low water.

Capt. F. H. Wilkins, formerly of the Belle McGowan, has been transferred to the steamer Cruiser, and Capt. Thomas Dunlevy of the Nellie Walton has been transferred to the steamer Hornet No. 2.

The Mississippi river commission is now on its semi-annual tour of inspecting the Fathers of Waters from Cairo to New Orleans on the board the United States steamer Mississippi, with Gus Haines and George Partee at the wheel.

The West Virginia Lumber Company of Pittsburgh, which recently purchased large holdings along the Bluestone river, in West Virginia, expects to be able to market its timber shortly. The Pocahontas coal combination will build a coal road through the property.

During the enforced lay-up of the government snagboat Woodruff at West Louisville, W. H. Christian, her master, has had the men at work clearing the harbor at that place and directly opposite on the Indiana shore, so that when a boating stage arrives towboats can make up their tows at that place instead of at Sand island, as has been the custom.

Capt. Robert Jenkins, Sr., a retired coal operator, was one of the first to engage in the business at Pittsburgh. He is 75 years old and makes occasional visits to the river. Capt. Jenkins has been a reader of The Pittsburgh Gazette since 1852. He generally spends the winters in California, but says that he wants to remain in Pittsburgh this winter if his health will permit.

Weigle & Co. of Roscoe, Pa., are building a number of flats for the Riverview Coal Company, it is thought, although the firm has closed no deal for their purchase. The flats will be 18x90 feet and will hold about 6,000 bushels of coal. Francis Rock is president and J. C. Work secretary of the company. Both are from Uniontown. The company will do a local and Cincinnati business. The company has a coal road and tipple in the Sixth pool, near Lock No. 6.

BANK WILL INCREASE STOCK.

Stockholders of Farmers' Deposit Vote to Issue 3,000 Shares to Sell at $800.

The stockholders of the Farmers' Deposit National bank voted almost unanimously yesterday to increase the capital stock from $500,000 to $800,000. An additional 3,000 shares of stock will be issued and sold at $800 each. Most of the new stock has been subscribed for. Three new shares may be bought for each five already owned.

The sale of the 3,000 new shares at $800 per share will amount to $2,400,000. Of this $200,000 will be added to the capital stock and $2,100,000 will be added to the surplus. This will be devoted to building their handsome new banking house in Wood street, near Fifth avenue.

The Farmers' Deposit National bank is one of the oldest in Pennsylvania. It was organized in 1832 with a capital stock of $300,000. This was increased in 1895 to $500,000. The bank has loans, discounts and investment securities aggregating $13,286,024. The new capital, surplus and undivided profits of the concern are $6,524,833.

The last sale of the bank's stock was made on 'change June 20, when 10 shares were sold at $975 per share. One thousand dollars has been bid several times since for the stock and several small lots have been offered at $1,050.

Local Stocks Were Active but Very Irregular

SHARP GAIN IN WINDOW GLASS

Both Stocks Were Stronger and in Good Demand at Higher Prices.

STEEL COMPANY SHARES WERE VERY DULL

Coal and Brewing Stocks Were Lower—Bank and Trust Issues Broke—Airbrake Slumped—Traction and Philadelphia Strong.

The market on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange yesterday was decidedly erratic in its course, but fairly active as to the total volume of business. All told, about 6,000 shares and $5,000 bonds changed hands, divided among 26 different securities. Of this number seven advanced from ⅛ to $9 a share, eight declined from ¼ to $4, ten were unchanged, and one sold for the first time. The close was quite strong in spots and weak in others, considerable activity prevailing. The greatest strength of the day was manifested by the American Window Glass issues. Less that 400 shares of the common stock came out under a demand that sent the price from 57 at the opening to 57⅞ at the close and 58 bid after the last sale, the gain for the day being ⅝. The preferred was unusually active and after opening at 89½ (the lowest price in months), jumped to 90 for large amounts, closing strong at that price bid. The steel company shares were very dull but closed steady and unchanged, Crucible common at 23 for 250 shares and the preferred at 84½@84¼ for 400. After the last sale of the preferred 84¼ was bid for 500 shares without offers. United States steel did not sell, though the common closed at 42⅝ asked, 41⅞ having been bid at the first call. The preferred was not mentioned for quotable lots. Pittsburgh Coal common was weaker and fairly active, declining ⅛ to 27¼ at the close on sales of 900 shares. The preferred was less active but ⅜ lower, at 92⅜. The Brewing stocks opened firm and grew firmer until the last call, when they became decidedly weak, the common closing at 25, a loss of ⅜, and the preferred at 44¼, a loss of ¼. The presumption is that there was something unsatisfactory about the report made at the annual meeting, but the figures submitted fail to show any grounds for such feeling. The sales, it is true, showed a falling off for the year, but only of about 55 barrels, while on the other hand, the undivided profits show an increase of $327,393 63 over 1900, or 5.35 on the common stock over and above the interest and dividend payments on the bonds and common and preferred stocks and for depreciation. The net earnings for the year were $1,617,678 25 and the total undivided profits October 26 amounted to $1,218,894 93. The dividends will be declared next Monday. From such a good showing there is only one way to account for the weakness yesterday of the stocks and that is, that the course of the market was the same as that which followed the issuance of every other good statement made recently, commencing with that of the United States Steel corporation. Good statements now-a-days seem to be bear cards. Citizens National bank declined 1½ to 80½ and Equitable Trust $4 to $181. Marsden was ¼ lower, at 4¼. River Coal issues advanced fractionally on small trading. Westinghouse Airbrake was decidedly weak and broke 1½ to 168½ at the close, on sales of 255 shares. Consolidated traction stocks and receipts were strong and in demand at higher prices. So was Philadelphia common, which advanced to 48⅝ bid. In the quotations Columbia National bank at $395 asked and Monongahela National at $265 asked, were each $5 lower. Pressed Steel Car common advanced to 43 bid, with no offers under 44. The preferred opened at 81½ bid at the first call, but jumped $2 to 83½ bid at the last. There were no sales of either. The strength of these issues was probably due to the fact, which had just become known that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company had awarded the Pressed Steel Car Company a contract for 9,000 new steel cars. There were no other important changes.

PITTSBURGH FEATURES.

Bank exchanges gained $2,011,419 14.

Total sales Pittsburgh stock exchange 5,898 shares, $5,000 bonds and 120 receipts.

A. W. Glass common was strong and advanced to 57⅞ sales, 58 bid.

A. W. Glass preferred was strong at 90. Sales 819 shares.

Crucible Steel closed at 23 and the preferred at 84¼.

There was no trading in United States Steel.

Pittsburgh Coal issues were weak and lower.

Consolidated Traction and Philadelphia common advanced.

Westinghouse Airbrake broke $1 50 to 168½.

The following is a complete summary of the day's official transactions on the Pittsburgh stock exchange. Hard Sugars Decline Ten Points

PITTSBURGH PRICES FOR FARM PRODUCTS

Livelier Market for Chickens, and Prices Advance. Oranges Decline

Hay, Grain and Feed.

The wheat market was much stronger and more confident, influenced largely by liberal foreign buying; this had its effect upon other grains, and corn and oats were especially affected in sympathy, prices in Chicago going much higher. Active buying in the west also served to stimulate the corn situation, and the close of the market was firm. Local quotations are higher, shelled corn going forward more than a cent per bushel, the advance in ear being less. Oats took another upward turn, 46 cents being asked for No. 2 white, with offerings firmly held at 45½ cents.

Receipts bulletined: Manchester yards, 31 cars hay, 2 cars straw, 10 cars oats, 6 cars rye, 2 cars corn; Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis railroad, 1 car hay, 3 cars feed, 5 cars oats; Baltimore & Ohio railroad, 1 car hay; Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad, 2 cars hay, 1 car straw; total receipts, 63 cars.

Groceries.

Hard sugars were reduced ten points all along the line yesterday, the decline corresponding to a like reduction made in soft sugars last week. Selling here is steady, but moderate in volume, while eastern markets are quiet and somewhat listless. Flour is no higher, actual selling prices being $3 90 for fancy spring patent, the firmer condition and more confident feeling in wheat not having yet affected flour, nor is it likely to do so unless there is a more decided upturn than has yet characterized the situation. Coffee is unchanged, the primal markets reported as spiritless, with a general absence of speculative interest in the market for contracts. Molasses prices are steady, and syrups are firm for all grades.

Flour—Jobbers' price: Fancy spring patents, $3 85@4 00; fancy winter patents, $3 70@3 80; straight winter, $3 60@3 70; bakers' spring, $3 50@3 60; rye, $3 20@3 25; graham, $4 25@4 50; cornmeal, bbl, $3 50@3 75; 10-lb cotton bags, 20c each.

Canned Goods.

Jobbers generally have commenced to sell tomatoes more nearly at prices based on values at the moment rather than on conditions of stocks as they were. Purchases now made in the east are on a higher basis than those made earlier in the season, although there has been some disposition here not to follow the market until old stocks were exhausted. Now, however, the tendency is to sell at value, and quotations are higher on this account. A range of $1 12½ to $1 20 for standards is necessary to cover all sales.

Dried Fruits.

Currants continue in active demand and are firmer than they were on account of the failure to arrive of some supplies that had been expected. There is promise of a strong market during the fall. Domestic raisins are more plentiful and the market is easier. New York reports a depression in evaporated apples owing to liberal offerings of off grades.

Evaporated apricots, in bags, 10½@11c; 25-lb boxes, 11½@12c; apples, in bulk, 9½c; 1-lb cartons, 10@11c; peaches, 9@12c; raisins, 1-lb pkgs, 9@9½c; raisins, Muscatels, 2 and 4 crown, 50-lb boxes, 7½@7¾c per lb; seeded, 1-lb packages, 8@9½c; Ondaria Valencia, 7⅜c; raspberries, 26@27c; currants, cleaned, 25 and 50-lb packages, [illegible]; California prunes, 4½@7½c.

Fruits and Produce.

While the demand for potatoes shows some increase, there is not yet a real active movement, and receipts, which amounted to 28 cars in the last two days, have been amply sufficient for the request. Sweets are steady, $3 50 being obtained for fancy Jersey stock, with mediums selling much lower. Apples are not in heavy receipt, only two cars arriving yesterday, but there is a lack of strong demand which keeps the market from going forward rapidly. Cabbage is arriving in large quantities, but dealers claim that it is costing too much to allow the market to decline. Brussels sprouts are higher. Green and wax beans are coming in much more abundantly, and are lower in price. Squash is not quite so stiff in price as it was, the strong condition of the market having attracted supplies which have made the situation easier. Grapes are weak, prices now quoted being fully high enough to cover the market.

Tropical Fruits and Nuts.

The feature yesterday was a decline in oranges amounting to almost a dollar per box on Jamaicas and half that much for Floridas. Receipts are heavy, and while there are many oranges selling the supply is such as to hold prices down. Lemons are somewhat neglected of late, and are quiet, while bananas have steady sale at unchanged figures. Almeria grapes are moving satisfactorily, with prices firm. There is no change in nut quotations; demand is fair, but not large.

Limes—Box, $1 00.

Butter, Eggs and Cheese.

Real improvement is noticeable in the market, especially in butter and eggs, the demand for the former having been augmented by the colder weather, while the fact that some western distributing markets are higher helped the situation throughout the country. Eggs are good property, and steadily adhere to quotations, except when sales are made at higher figures. There is no real change in cheese, although there is some increase in demand.

Eggs—Fresh, candled, doz, 21@22c; storage, 18@18½c.

Poultry.

Much more active buying of live chickens characterized trading yesterday, and quotations for springers and old fowls are stronger and higher. Dressed remained unchanged and are selling freely, but the particular [illegible] ing has come in live. Turkeys are very firm, dressed holding steadily to quotations, which range from 15 to 16 cents, while ducks are arriving only moderately and are firm. The improvement in the market is due to the increased demand caused by cooler weather.

NEW HOUSES IN TWENTY-SECOND WARD

Building Operations in East Pittsburgh—Mt. Lebanon Sale of Lots. Charleroi Has a Building Boom. Church Site and Hospital Addition

Two purchases were made yesterday by the United Engineering and Foundry Company, which amounted to $335,000. The company acquired the property at the corner of Fifty-fourth street and the Allegheny Valley railroad, formerly owned by the Frank Kneeland Machine Company, paying for the same $175,000. The plot includes 4¾ acres and fronts 442 feet on the railroad and 482 feet in Fifty-fourth street, extending to the harbor line of the Allegheny river. A number of foundry buildings stand on the plot.

The other purchase was that of the property of the Lincoln Foundry Company, at Sixty-first street and the Allegheny Valley railroad. This lot, which is also improved with foundry buildings, covers about four acres. The purchase price was $160,000. The two purchases were part of the plan adopted by the United Engineering and Foundry Company when it was formed, on July 1, by the consolidation of the Frank Kneeland Machine Company, the Lincoln Foundry Company, McGill & Co., whose works are at Twenty-seventh street, and the Lloyd-Booth Company of Youngstown, O.

Isaac W. Frank, who is president of the new company, said last night that the main plant of the company would be at Fifty-fourth street, where all kinds of machinery will be manufactured. The old Lincoln foundry plant will be used exclusively to manufacture rolls.

The W. Allshouse Company, limited, is building three brick houses in Woodmont street and Negley avenue, Twenty-second ward, to cost $6,000 each, or $18,000 in all. The houses all front in the north side of Woodmont street. The lots on which they stand are 40x100 feet. Each of the houses will have 10 rooms, and be provided with all modern conveniences.

H. G. Gallinger has awarded the contract for 10 houses, to be built in his Crestas plan of lots, in East Pittsburgh. The houses will be frame and have six rooms each. They will cost $1,800 each, or a total of $18,000. The lots on which they are built are 25x120 feet, and front on Miles avenue, Milligan avenue, Crestas avenue and Porter street. Fourteen lots in the Crestas plan have been sold this week for $150 each by Mr. Gallinger.

E. C. Kleinman sold to Miss Emma May Anderson a lot, 35x154 feet, in the east side of South Herbert avenue, Neville Island, for $3,500. The lot is improved, with a six room frame house, which will be used for a residence. Mr. Kleinman is preparing to build a three story brick store building in North Herbert avenue, to cost $5,000.

Charleroi has enjoyed a building boom during the past year which has placed it in the front rank of Monongahela Valley towns in point of enterprise and growth. For the year just past 1,932 dwellings have been erected at a cost of $220,000; 16 business houses, costing $141,000, and additions to manufacturing plants, valued at over $100,000. To keep pace with the growth in population, additional business blocks are now in contemplation, which will cost $100,000 more.

C. Baltensperger, Jr., has sold to a syndicate of Pittsburgh real estate men 30 acres of land in the Mt. Lebanon district for $30,000, or $1,000 an acre. The plot will be laid off in lots soon, and building operations will be begun. The same broker sold for Joseph Breil two lots in the Edgewood plan, for $1,500 cash. Also a farm near Monessen for $4,000 cash. Mortgages have been placed by Mr. Baltensperger this week as follows: Penn avenue property $9,000, Avalon business and residence property $8,000, South Side residence property $3,000.

McElroy of the Citizens National bank, and one of the proprietors of the Hotel Schenley, is among the members of a new company, with $20,000 capital, which has purchased a large tract of land adjoining the town of Manor, in Westmoreland county, and will soon have the largest poultry farm in the United States. A NEW PENSION PLAN PROPOSED Commissioner H. C. Evans Recommends a Traveling Board of Examiners.

LOCAL INFLUENCES TO BE ELIMINATED

Law Relating to Widows Difficult to Administer, but Ought to Be Repealed, Says the Report--Some Glaring Frauds.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—In his annual report, the commissioner of pensions discusses at length the faults of the present system of pensioning and the difficulties in the way of determining the merits of claims for pension and increase.

The commissioner calls attention to the unsatisfactory conditions attending the legal and medical adjudications of claims for pensions. Cases are usually settled upon ex parte evidence prepared and submitted by attorneys whose fee is dependent upon the allowance of the claims. The medical examinations which determine the rates of pension in invalid claims are made by surgeons who are the neighborhood practitioners, whose appointment is usually a reward for political services, and who are subject to local influences that bias their judgment.

As a remedy for these abuses the commissioner recommends the following method of ascertaining the facts in pension claims: That traveling medical examining boards be constituted, consisting of two skilled medical examiners, one attorney and one stenographer and typewriter. These boards would meet at the county seat of each county, say, twice a year, and the claimants would receive notice in advance of their coming. The movements of the board would be directed from the bureau, and the claimants can appear before the board with their witnesses and the merits of their claims would be legally and medically determined without delay.

Relating to Widows' Pensions.

Attention is directed to the friction that attends the administration of the act of August 7, 1882, which provides that immoral conduct of a widow pensioner shall operate to terminate her pension; but the absence of such a law, it is stated, would encourage and permit such pensioners to dishonor the memory of their soldier husbands while still enjoying the bounty of the government, and, on the other hand, the widow who respects the law and honors society by legally entering into the marriage relation loses her pension. The commissioner says that while the law is a difficult one to administer, yet he cannot recommend its repeal.

Attention is invited again to the necessity of repealing the act of June 7, 1888, which swept away all limitations as to the filing of widow's claims under the general law and brought about conditions which are stated to be a standing invitation to file fraudulent claims, the arrearages being so large and the chances of detection so small. Referring to "slave" marriages, the commissioner says that with a shrewd and competent attorney backed by willing witneses, the government has no chance, and if the special examiners of the bureau endeavor to ascertain the facts the interested parties at once cry aloud that "the spies" of the bureau are persecuting the poor widows.

Deeds of Dishonest Guardian.

In January, 1900, a rule was adopted requiring guardians of pensioners to render to the bureau annual accounts of their receipts and expenditures of pension money. The rule was followed by startling disclosures. Guardians were found to be drawing pensions long after the death of their wards. Many cases were found where insane pensioners had been placed in asylums and other public institutions as indigent persons while the guardians had drawn the pension during the whole period, and either diverted it for other purposes or allowed it to accumulate for the benefit of the pensioner's legal representatives.

The commissioner called the attention of the secretary of the interior to these abuses, and in an opinion dated May 22, 1901, the secretary decided that the guardian of a pensioner is the agent of the United States for the proper expenditure of pension money in his hands, and that guardians holding pension funds are subject to the direction of the commissioner of pensions both before and after the death of their wards. It was decided also that all pension moneys in the hands of a guardian at the date of a pensioner's death, are in the nature of accrued pension, and, therefore, subject to the provisions of the act of March 2, 1895, with regard to the disposition of such funds.

The report presents a number of interesting features connected with the filing of claims for pension on account of the war with Spain and the insurrection in the Philippine islands. It is shown that the soldiers of these wars enjoy much greater benefits than were accorded to the soldiers of the civil war, in the amount of pensions granted for the same degree of disability.

BANK WILL RESUME.

Seventh National Secures Consent of Comptroller Ridgely.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 6.—Edwin Gould, president, and William Nelson Cromwell, counsel of New York, with Forrest Raynor, receiver of the Seventh National bank of New York, met Comptroller Ridgely by appointment today. They submitted the final papers for the resumption of the bank.

The comptroller approved this plan, by which the depositors, numbering 2,000, are paid in full with allowance for interest, and the bank will resume business under the old name within the next few days.

Carpets at 1/3 & 1/2 Off--Thursday, Friday & Saturday.

The entire Carpet and Rug Floor will have to be emptied next week to make room for Christmas Toys. The Carpets and Rugs will be moved to the Fifth Floor, where temporary quarters, not nearly large enough to hold our present stock, have been found. We are forced, therefore, to immediately and considerably reduce our stock. To accomplish this purpose we will, during the next 3 days, sell Carpets and Rugs for less than wholesale prices. But while this sale will attract many dealers as well as consumers, we want it understood that our reduced prices are absolutely net to everybody, and that no discount will be given to dealers, no matter how large lots they may buy.
